Business Is Tops In Monroe Area

DURING DECEMBER

Local Business Best In Louisiana

Business in the Monroe Trade Area last December was the best of any area in the state, showing only a minor loss and that due primarily to a two-week siege of unusually bad weather, a survey showed yesterday.

The trade area, of which Monroe is the hub, is composed of 10 Northeast Louisiana parishes. In the city area, a check and estimate indicated that overall business was up instead of down, with many merchants reporting 1960 as one of their best years from the point of total sales.

"And we would have broken all kinds of records if the weather in December had been anyway near normal," one merchant said, adding that the week after Christmas "was one of the best I can ever remember."

GOOD PICTURE

The overall good business picture for this area was outlined in a report by the Louisiana Business Review, which is published by the Louisiana State University College of Commerce. Business conditions and trends in the state are indicated by the amount of sales taxes collected.

The report showed that sales tax collections last December in the Monroe area totaled $419,826, a drop of only 1.7 per cent from the $427,206 collected in 1959. There was no breakdown by cities in this or the other areas.

Meanwhile, in the other six trade areas of the state, sales tax collections from December 1959 and December 1960 and showing a sharp decrease were:

Alexandria, $442,971 to $420,837, down five per cent; Baton Rouge $841,508 to $798,043, down 5.4; Lafayette, $604,796 to $574,064, down 9.3; Lake Charles, $459,863 to $388,914, down 15.4; New Orleans, $3,401,164 to $2,973,257, down 12.6, and Shreveport $961,003 to $872,403, down 11.1.

Statewide the decreased averaged 10.3 per cent.

Searchers Find Wrecked Plane; Others Missing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The body of an Eastern businessman was found in the wreckage of his plane in snowswept northern Utah late Saturday, ending on a tragic note one of three separate search efforts for light planes missing in the Rocky Mountain states.

Five persons still are missing on flights over Wyoming and Colorado.

Rescuers said William D. Kelley Jr., 36, of Cumberland, Md., died when his single-engine craft crashed in a gully about 20 miles north of Brigham City, Utah.

Kelley was technical director of the Allegany Instrument Co. of Cumberland. He was en route to Brigham City from Salt Lake City, where he attended sessions of the American Rocket Society.

He left the Utah capital alone about midnight Thursday. A snowstorm struck that region about the same time.

Twenty-four planes and more than 100 persons participated in a day-long search in central and southern Colorado Saturday for a private plane missing with three persons aboard. The craft disappeared Friday on a flight from Denver to Alamosa, Colo.

Aboard the plane were the Alamosa city manager, Pat Floyd; his sister, Betty, 19, and the pilot, Bill Bradley.

They were last heard from about 6:30 p.m. Friday in the area around Pueblo.

Senator's Aide Gets U.S. Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has chosen Frank W. McCulloch, administrative assistant to Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., to be chairman of the National Labor Relations Board.

"It's a terrific challenge and a great honor," McCulloch told a reporter Saturday after his appointment was announced.

McCulloch, 55, practiced law in Chicago after his graduation in 1929 from the Harvard Law School, and became active in social settlement work. He earned his bachelor's degree at Williams College in 1926.

The NLRB chairmanship is a $20,500-a-year position. On the board he will replace Arthur Kimball, who has been serving under a recess appointment.

Pineville Man Arrested For Safe Robbery

Local Police Mum On Report; Taken In Bossier City

A Pineville man suspected in the theft of a safe from Monroe which contained about $5,500 in cash and checks, was arrested by Bossier City detectives Saturday. Local police refused to comment.

The man, Thomas Calvin Freeman, 33, is suspected of the robbery at the Department of Revenue office in Monroe last Thursday.

Shreveport sources said that Freeman was transferred to Monroe officers sometime yesterday afternoon.

'TOO BUSY'

Chief of Police James C. Kelly declined to comment on the whereabouts of Freeman. When questioned yesterday afternoon, Kelly said he was "too busy" and had "no comment." The chief was contacted about 5 o'clock shortly after completing a lengthy interrogation session.

It was not known who Kelly was questioning.

No one had been booked in the case by the local police department late last night.

Bossier City detective chief Steve Norris said another man and woman had been arrested in Monroe for questioning in the case. Local officials were mum on the reported arrests.

Norris said that his department had not questioned Freeman and he declined to comment on what the man was doing in the Bossier City area.

During the past few years there have been a number of unsolved safe burglaries in the city of Monroe.

Freeman was arrested about 9

Merchants Here See '61 As Excellent

By DALLAS ROPER

The prophets of "doom and gloom" in the business world will have to look someplace other than the Twin Cities to paint their black picture of economic despair. It just isn't so here, according to businessmen.

Despite moanings around the country on poor business conditions local merchants declare that they are doing good.

During the first month of this year business continued an upward trend in the Twin Cities and statements from all types of merchants ranged from "excellent" to "we're doing as good as last year." Last year was among the best.

On DeSiard Street businessmen were jubilant. They said their business was good despite problems in the downtown area with traffic and congestion. Their rate of increase since 1959 seems to bear them out.

Officer Slain By Mistake In Escapee Search

CAMDEN, N. J. (AP)—One of the many patrolmen searching Camden's 18-story City Hall for an escaped prisoner shot and killed a police sergeant Saturday by mistake.

The sergeant, Carmen Fuscellaro, 33, was shot as he lunged off balance through a doorway after pushing too hard on the door, which was stuck.

He had been working with a German shepherd along a dark fourth-floor corridor.

"I've just shot Carmen," shouted Patrolman Dennis Evans, 28, as he burst into a room where reporters were gathered. "Get the police. Get an ambulance. Get a priest."

Evans, mistaking Fuscellaro for Donald Murphy, 29, the escapee, had fired a 12-gauge riot gun from four feet away.

Fuscellaro was in civilian clothes and was wearing the same type of blue overalls as Murphy. The prisoner was being held in the City Hall jail on the sixth floor for trial on an auto theft charge.

He was a trusty and somehow had obtained a pistol which he fired at a guard during his escape. The bullet missed its mark.

The search of City Hall lasted three hours, and an hour after Fuscellaro's death. Then a taxicab driver identified a picture of Murphy as that of the man he drove to Philadelphia — Murphy's home town—right after the escape.

AFTER POLICE CHASE

Would-Be Pirates, Invaders Captured

MIAMI (UPI) — An attempted invasion of Cuba ended in city jail Saturday for four would - be pirates who seized a tugboat in a pocket-sized "Santa Maria incident" on Biscayne Bay.

Detectives held Kenneth G. Woodland, 27, Kenneth J. Proctor, 28, Harry C. Johnson, 24, and Guillermo Herrado, 22, all of Miami, for investigation in seizure of the 42-foot tug "Gil Rokie."

A watchman, J.C. Johnson, 54, of Tampa, said he was in the control room of a dredge tied up at Julia Tuttle causeway over Biscayne Bay when three men clambered up the ladder.

"They told me they didn't want to hurt me, but were just going to tie me up," Johnson said. "One had a gun, an automatic. They were pretty polite about the whole thing."

Johnson said they tied his hands and feet and a short time later he heard the tug nearby take off.

A police harbor launch pursued the captured tug around the bay for about 45 minutes, mostly in circles. The would-be pirates did not know how to operate the air pressure steering system and the craft wound up grounded on a sandbar.

The men said they had loaded six rifles aboard to use against the forces of Premier Fidel Castro when they reached Cuba. Police recovered one of them. The men said they had thrown the others overboard.

A fifth man in the hijack attempt jumped overboard and escaped, detectives said.

Soviets Hurl Sputnik Into Space Orbit

No Mention Of Life On Biggest Satellite Yet

MOSCOW (UPI) — Russia Saturday launched into orbit a 7.1-ton Sputnik-more than big enough to carry a man — but there was no mention of life aboard and a scientist said it would burn to a space cinder in a matter of days.

(Italian and German scientists in the West reported hearing sounds like Morse code and "heavy breathing" over usual Soviet space radio frequencies on Thursday. But the Soviet Tass news agency definitely said the Sputnik launching was Saturday.)

An "improved multi-stage rocket" hurled Sputnik V into space, Tass said. It gave remarkably few other details. The usual listing of space radio frequencies was omitted from the brief initial statement.

Ivan Shevlyahov of Moscow Planetarium called the space shot "a leap in the creation of rockets for space travel."

MAY BURN

But Tass called it a "Sputnik" not a "Spaceship." The latter word has been used whenever animals have been carried beyond earth.

Shevlyakov said the Sputnik was whirling so close to earth it would hit the atmosphere and burn like a shooting star from friction in a few days.

It was the heaviest man-made satellite ever put into orbit and according to Tass was circling the earth once every 89.8 minutes in an egg-shaped path. Its farthest point from earth (apogee) was measured at 203.4 miles; its closest (perigee) was 138.9 miles.

This was Sputnik V, the fifth satellite launched by Russia and the 10th known Soviet space object. In addition to the five satellites, there have been three luniks (moon rockets) and two "spaceships," one of which brought a load of animals back to earth. The other burned up with two dogs and other living creatures aboard last Dec. 3.

Tass said the launching was "in conformity with the plan for designing and perfecting space ships of increased weight."

The first Sputnik, launched Oct. 4, 1957, weighed 184 pounds. Each succeeding Sputnik was heavier.

Sputnik IV, launched last May 15, weighed 4.5 tons and may still be orbiting earth. Lunik I, a 1.5-ton rocket, is believed to be orbiting the sun. Until today, no other Soviet space vehicles remained aloft.

Soviet scientists apparently believed the Sputnik V shot was successful. Tass said its orbit was "close" to the one intended, and that equipment aboard "functioned normally."

Time and place of launching was not announced. It is believed most Soviet launchings have taken place early in the morning.

Mena Slaying Suspect To Be Returned Today

COVINGTON, La. (AP) — The St. Tammany Parish sheriff's office expects to hand over Mrs. Norma MacDonald, 49, to Arkansas authorities Sunday.

Sheriff Bruce Scogin of Mena, Ark., is expected here by auto to return Mrs. MacDonald to Mena, where she is accused of having slain her former husband, E. B. MacDonald, 73.

Parts of MacDonald's body were found on a farm near Mena, Ark., and other parts were found here at a residence rented by Mrs. MacDonald.

She denied having slain MacDonald, but admitted having helped dispose of the body, which had been carved up.

Mrs. MacDonald, who was divorced from MacDonald in 1952, subsequently re-married and divorced.

Officers said MacDonald was slain Dec. 22. Mrs. MacDonald came to Covington Dec. 24.

The Louisiana Supreme Court affirmed a lower court ruling that Mrs. MacDonald must return to Arkansas to answer charges. She has been in jail here.

Cloudy, Rains Expected Today

Occasional light rain might move into the Monroe area today, according to the weatherman. The outlook throughout the state calls for cloudy skies and rain.

Cool temperatures are also in the outlook.

The high expected today ranges from 42 to 52 degrees. The low will be in the 30's.

Saturday's high recorded by Federal Aviation at Selman Field was 46 with a low reading of 28.

The sun will set today at 5:44 p.m.

Spouse Slain During Fight About Money

WINNFIELD (Special) — A Winn Parish father of eight was charged with murder Saturday following the fatal shooting of his wife at their home near Calvin early Friday night during family trouble over debts, authorities said.

A coroner's inquest impaneled in the Eighth District Courtroom here Saturday morning returned a verdict that Mrs. Henry C. Johnson, 40, died as a result of a .22 caliber gunshot wound in the head inflicted by her husband.

According to sources, the bullet entered Mrs. Johnson's head between the right eye and the nose. Death came at 7:45 p.m.

HELD IN JAIL

Johnson is being held in the Winn Parish jail.

The children, ages ranging from 4 days to 14 years, were at home shortly after dark when the shooting occurred in the mother's bedroom, authorities stated.

The children, five daughters and three sons, were taken to the home of a twin sister of the dead woman.

Lawmen said that statements from Johnson told the story in this manner.

The oldest girl, aged 14, Johnson and the girl's aunt drove the ten miles into Winnfield Friday morning for the girl to go to the doctor, buy groceries and for Johnson to pay a housenote.

This accomplished, they returned home about 2 p.m.

About 3 p.m. the school children returned and Johnson began arguing with his wife about debts.

Johnson stated he was drinking from a bottle of antiseptic during the afternoon, authorities said.

Johnson said he then prepared to go to a neighbor's house and asked his nine-year-old son to

Noted Area Woman Dies; Rites Today

FARMERVILLE (Special) — Funeral services will be held this afternoon for Mrs Harvey G. Fields Sr., 71-year-old housewife, who died at her home in Farmerville Friday night after a short illness.

Mrs. Fields, a native and lifelong resident of Union Parish, was the wife of former U. S. Attorney General Harvey G. Fields Sr.

She was active in the Farmerville Methodist Church and took part in the women's missionary circle.

Mrs. Fields was the mother of Union Parish Rep. T. T. Fields, and her husband is now practicing law in Farmerville.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. today at the Farmerville Methodist Church with the Rev. Tom Crosby officiating, assisted by the Rev. L. D. Hall.

Burial will be in City Cemetery under the direction of Kilpatrick's Funeral Home of Farmerville.

Survivors include her husband, Harvey G. Fields Sr., Farmerville; two sons, Rep. Fields of Farmerville and Harvey G. Fields Jr., Los Angeles, Calif.; one daughter, Mrs. Dwayne Copeland, Homer; one sister, Mrs. Nina Taylor, Ruston; and two grandchildren.

Serving as pallbearers will be Max Gilmore, Stein Baughman Sr., Palmer Dean, Jack Turnage, J. C. Long and Alvin Green.

Fire Destroys Historic Church

OTTAWA (UPI)—Fire destroyed an historic church and an art gallery and threatened for a time Saturday to spread through the main shopping area in the heart of the capital.

A state of emergency order issued by Mayor Charlotte Whitton brought half the fire department's 350 men to the scene and all available policemen to keep back a crowd estimated at 2,000.

Firemen confined the blaze to the 85-year-old, three-story Dominion-United Church and the Robertson Galleries. It was controlled before it could spread to the Parliament buildings two blocks away.

The fire broke out in a rear packing room of the gallery and spread quickly through the 1,700-seat church.

Damage to the building was estimated unofficially at $500,000. A spokesman for the art gallery said at least $20,000 worth of paintings were destroyed.

EMERGENCIES DECREED

Heavy Snowfall Paralyzes Cities

By United Press International

A savage snowstorm dumped 17 inches of snow on New York City Saturday, paralyzing auto, rail and air transportation in the city's worst winter in history.

The storm howled up the Eastern Seaboard on gale force winds and crippled scores of cities and towns from Newark, N. J., to Hartford, Conn.

It was the fifth major snowstorm for snow-weary New Yorkers and the 17-inch blanket was the city's worst snowfall in 13 years.

95 MILE WINDS

Only essential traffic was permitted to move along snow-clogged arteries in the metropolis. In populous Nassau County, on Long Island, a state of emergency was in force, permitting only fuel oil trucks and other vehicles essential to the life of a city.

Howling winds churned up high seas along the coast and gusts clocked at 95 miles an hour swayed the Texas tower off Cape Cod. The crew, unworried, reported they were warm and safe and "playing darts."

The Coast Guard cutter Acushnet, defying 15-foot waves and gale winds rammed through drifting ice to rescue a fishing vessel and its 11-man crew off the Boston coast.

Air traffic was at a standstill. All flights were canceled at snow-choked Idlewild and LaGuardia airports in New York. Logan International Airport at Boston and airports in Newark, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh were closed.

New Englanders called the storm a Noreaster. The area was threatened with fuel oil shortages and coastal flooding.

The storm has cost the lives of 74 persons since it was spawned over the Midwest Thursday. The deaths resulted from exposure,

Near Deaths, Birth Occur In Snowstorm

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Two near deaths and one birth Saturday illustrated the effects on travel of a blinding wind - whipped snowstorm.

Daniel W. Burkholder, 62; his wife, Grace, 58, and daughter, Ruth, 19, of New Holland, were stuck in their pickup truck on a road near rural Blue Ball late Friday night.

Burkholder kept the motor of his truck running to stay warm. After two hours of sitting, the daughter hiked half a mile through deep snow to a farmhouse.

When a fire engine reached the scene, the truck was almost buried in a drift and the Burkholders had been overcome by Carbon monoxide fumes. In all, they spent 5½ hours in the truck.

About the same time the Burkholders got stuck, John Kauffman of nearby Christiana called a doctor. His wife was in labor.

When the doctor traveled the several miles, in 5½ hours, he found Kauffman had delivered an 8-pound, 8-ounce daughter, his fifth child.

N.O. Catholics Asked To Break School Boycott

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Roman Catholic organization called upon Catholics in New Orleans Saturday to break the white boycott at two public schools in which Negro pupils have been entered.

The statement came from the 26-member board of the National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice as it concluded a two-day meeting.

"In the case of those parents whose children should be in the Frantz and McDonogh schools," the statement said, "we urge consideration of the harm to their children by encouraging lawlessness, by transporting them to schools outside New Orleans, or by not sending them to school at all."

Almost all white pupils have remained away from the two New Orleans schools since they admitted a few Negro students under court order.

The statement referred to a November 1960 statement by the U. S. Catholic bishops which discussed the importance of individual responsibility in efforts to achieve interracial justice.

The board added: "There comes a time, and this is one in Louisiana, when private attitude and action is an insufficient display of a just attitude, of a willingness to do right."

The statement urged Catholics "to give open support to constructive steps forward," and added: "Otherwise the racist will lead; and if such is the case, the right-thinking, but silent, man shares the responsibility for this evil."

'GRANDFATHER CLAUSE'

Last Convention Participant Dies

WINNFIELD (Special) — The last surviving member of the Louisiana Constitutional Convention of 1898 which put the "grandfather clause" into the state's government has died in a Winnfield hospital.

B. W. Bailey, 92, one of the many products of Winn Parish to carve his name in the annals of state history, succumbed Friday night after several days hospitalization here.

He had lived in retirement here since 1933, when he stepped down as president of the Winnfield Bank.

Born here as the son of a farmer who moved from Georgia in 1869, Bailey had risen through the ranks of hotel man, newspapre publisher, banker and was elected to the constitutional convention on the Populist ticket.

He was an active organizational man in the type of hardnosed politics common to rural areas at the time.

In 1900 he was elected sheriff of Winn Parish on the same ticket and was the last public official elected here from that party.

In the early 1900's he sparked oil drilling on Cedar Creek south of Winnfield and lived to see a promising Wilcox oil spread erupt in the Joyce-Colgrad and Crossroads fields where oil fever is now sky high.

Before 1928 he entertained the idea of creating a game preserve by throwing a dam across the Saline Bayou west of here.

H. B. Boseman credits the reality of this dream to Bailey's efforts.

Pineville Man Arrested For Safe Robbery

Local Police Mum On Report; Taken In Bossier City

A Pineville man ,suspected in the theft of a safe from Monroe which contained about $5,500 in cash and checks, was arrested by Bossier City detectives Saturday. Local police refused to comment.

The man, Thomas Calvin Freeman, 33, is suspected of the robbery at the Department of Revenue office in Monroe last Thursday.

Shreveport sources said that Freeman was transferred to Monroe officers sometime yesterday afternoon.

'TOO BUSY'

Chief of Police James C. Kelly declined to comment on the whereabouts of Freeman. When questioned yesterday afternoon, Kelly said he was "too busy" and had "no comment." The chief was contacted about 5 o'clock shortly after completing a lengthy interrogation session.

It was not known who Kelly was questioning.

No one had been booked in the case by the local police department late last night.

Bossier City detective chief Steve Norris said another man and woman had been arrested in Monroe for questioning in the case. Local officials were mum on the reported arrests.

Norris said that his department had not questioned Freeman and he declined to comment on what the man was doing in the Bossier City area.

During the past few years there have been a number of unsolved safe burglaries in the city of Monroe.

Freeman was arrested about 9

Officer Slain By Mistake In Escapee Search

CAMDEN, N. J. (AP)—One of the many patrolmen searching Camden's 18-story City Hall for an escaped prisoner shot and killed a police sergeant Saturday by mistake.

The sergeant, Carmen Fuscellaro, 33, was shot as he lunged off balance through a doorway after pushing too hard on the door, which was stuck.

He had been working with a German shepherd along a dark fourth-floor corridor.

"I've just shot Carmen," shouted Patrolman Dennis Evans, 23, as he burst into a room where reporters were gathered. "Get the police. Get an ambulance. Get a priest."

Evans, mistaking Fuscellaro for Donald Murphy, 29, the escapee, had fired a 12-gauge riot gun from four feet away.

Fuscellaro was in civilian clothes and was wearing the same type of blue overalls as Murphy. The prisoner was being held in the City Hall jail on the sixth floor for trial on an auto theft charge.

He was a trusty and somehow had obtained a pistol which he fired at a guard during his escape. The bullet missed its mark.

The search of City Hall lasted three hours, and an hour after Fuscellaro's death. Then a taxicab driver identified a picture of Murphy as that of the man he drove to Philadelphia — Murphy's home town—right after the escape.

Mena Slaying Suspect To Be Returned Today

COVINGTON, La. (AP) — The St. Tammany Parish sheriff's office expects to hand over Mrs. Norma MacDonald, 49, to Arkansas authorities Sunday.

Sheriff Bruce Scogin of Mena, Ark., is expected here by auto to return Mrs. MacDonald to Mena, where she is accused of having slain her former husband, E. B. MacDonald, 73.

Parts of MacDonald's body were found on a farm near Mena, Ark., and other parts were found here at a residence rented by Mrs. MacDonald.

She denied having slain MacDonald, but admitted having helped dispose of the body, which had been carved up.

Mrs. MacDonald, who was divorced from MacDonald in 1952, subsequently re-married and divorced.

Officers said MacDonald was slain Dec. 22. Mrs. MacDonald came to Covington Dec. 24.

The Louisiana Supreme Court affirmed a lower court ruling that Mrs. MacDonald must return to Arkansas to answer charges. She has been in jail here.

Noted Area Woman Dies; Rites Today

FARMERVILLE (Special) — Funeral services will be held this afternoon for Mrs Harvey G. Fields Sr., 71-year-old housewife, who died at her home in Farmerville Friday night after a short illness.

Mrs. Fields, a native and lifelong resident of Union Parish, was the wife of former U. S. Attorney General Harvey G. Fields Sr.

She was active in the Farmerville Methodist Church and took part in the women's missionary circle.

Mrs. Fields was the mother of Union Parish Rep. T. T. Fields, and her husband is now practicing law in Farmerville.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. today at the Farmerville Methodist Church with the Rev. Tom Crosby officiating, assisted by the Rev. L. D. Hall.

Burial will be in City Cemetery under the direction of Kilpatrick's Funeral Home of Farmerville.

Survivors include her husband, Harvey G. Fields Sr., Farmerville; two sons, Rep. Fields of Farmerville and Harvey G. Fields Jr., Los Angeles, Calif.; one daughter, Mrs. Dwayne Copeland, Homer; one sister, Mrs. Nina Taylor, Ruston; and two grandchildren.

Serving as pallbearers will be Max Gilmore, Stein Baughman Sr., Palmer Dean, Jack Turnage, J. C. Long and Alvin Green.

EMERGENCIES DECREED

Heavy Snowfall Paralyzes Cities

By United Press International

A savage snowstorm dumped 17 inches of snow on New York City Saturday, paralyzing auto, rail and air transportation in the city's worst winter in history.

The storm howled up the Eastern Seaboard on gale force winds and crippled scores of cities and towns from Newark, N. J., to Hartford, Conn.

It was the fifth major snowstorm for snow-weary New Yorkers and the 17-inch blanket was the city's worst snowfall in 13 years.

95 MILE WINDS

Only essential traffic was permitted to move along snow-clogged arteries in the metropolis. In populous Nassau County, on Long Island, a state of emergency was in force, permitting only fuel oil trucks and other vehicles essential to the life of a city.

Howling winds churned up high seas along the coast and gusts clocked at 95 miles an hour swayed the Texas tower off Cape Cod. The crew, unworried, reported they were warm and safe and "playing darts."

The Coast Guard cutter Acushnet, defying 15-foot waves and gale winds rammed through drifting ice to rescue a fishing vessel and its 11-man crew off the Boston coast.

Air traffic was at a standstill. All flights were canceled at snow-choked Idlewild and LaGuardia airports in New York. Logan International Airport at Boston and airports in Newark, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh were closed.

New Englanders called the storm a Noreaster. The area was threatened with fuel oil shortages and coastal flooding.

The storm has cost the lives of 74 persons since it was spawned over the Midwest Thursday. The deaths resulted from exposure,

Near Deaths, Birth Occur In Snowstorm

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Two near deaths and one birth Saturday illustrated the effects on travel of a blinding wind - whipped snowstorm.

Daniel W. Burkholder, 62; his wife, Grace, 58, and daughter, Ruth, 19, of New Holland, were stuck in their pickup truck on a road near rural Blue Ball late Friday night.

Burkholder kept the motor of his truck running to stay warm. After two hours of sitting, the daughter hiked half a mile through deep snow to a farmhouse.

When a fire engine reached the scene, the truck was almost buried in a drift and the Burkholders had been overcome by Carbon monoxide fumes. In all, they spent 5½ hours in the truck.

About the same time the Burkholders got stuck, John Kauffman of nearby Christiana called a doctor. His wife was in labor.

When the doctor traveled the several miles, in 5½ hours, he found Kauffman had delivered an 8-pound, 8-ounce daughter, his fifth child.

N.O. Catholics Asked To Break School Boycott

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Roman Catholic organization called upon Catholics in New Orleans Saturday to break the white boycott at two public schools in which Negro pupils have been entered.

The statement came from the 26-member board of the National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice as it concluded a two-day meeting.

"In the case of those parents whose children should be in the Frantz and McDonogh schools," the statement said, "we urge consideration of the harm to their children by encouraging lawlessness, by transporting them to schools outside New Orleans, or by not sending them to school at all."

Almost all white pupils have remained away from the two New Orleans schools since they admitted a few Negro students under court order.

The statement referred to a November 1960 statement by the U. S. Catholic bishops which discussed the importance of individual responsibility in efforts to achieve interracial justice.

The board added: "There comes a time, and this is one in Louisiana, when private attitude and action is an insufficient display of a just attitude, of a willingness to do right."

The statement urged Catholics "to give open support to constructive steps forward," and added: "Otherwise the racist will lead; and if such is the case, the right-thinking, but silent, man shares the responsibility for this evil."

Searchers Find Wrecked Plane; Others Missing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The body of an Eastern businessman was found in the wreckage of his plane in snowswept northern Utah late Saturday, ending on a tragic note one of three separate search efforts for light planes missing in the Rocky Mountain states.

Five persons still are missing on flights over Wyoming and Colorado.

Rescuers said William D. Kelley Jr., 36, of Cumberland, Md., died when his single-engine craft crashed in a gully about 20 miles north of Brigham City, Utah.

Kelley was technical director of the Allegany Instrument Co. of Cumberland. He was en route to Brigham City from Salt Lake City, where he attended sessions of the American Rocket Society.

He left the Utah capital alone about midnight Thursday. A snowstorm struck that region about the same time.

Twenty-four planes and more than 100 persons participated in a day-long search in central and southern Colorado Saturday for a private plane missing with three persons aboard. The craft disappeared Friday on a flight from Denver to Alamosa, Colo.

Aboard the plane were the Alamosa city manager, Pat Floyd; his sister, Betty, 19, and the pilot, Bill Bradley.

They were last heard from about 6:30 p.m. Friday in the area around Pueblo.

Senator's Aide Gets U.S. Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has chosen Frank W. McCulloch, administrative assistant to Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., to be chairman of the National Labor Relations Board.

"It's a terrific challenge and a great honor," McCulloch told a reporter Saturday after his appointment was announced.

McCulloch, 55, practiced law in Chicago after his graduation in 1929 from the Harvard Law School, and became active in social settlement work. He earned his bachelor's degree at Williams College in 1926.

The NLRB chairmanship is a $20,500-a-year position. On the board he will replace Arthur Kimball, who has been serving under a recess appointment.

AFTER POLICE CHASE

Would-Be Pirates, Invaders Captured

MIAMI (UPI) — An attempted invasion of Cuba ended in city jail Saturday for four would - be pirates who seized a tugboat in a pocket-sized "Santa Maria incident" on Biscayne Bay.

Detectives held Kenneth G. Woodland, 27, Kenneth J. Proctor, 28, Harry C. Johnson, 24, and Guillermo Herrado, 22, all of Miami, for investigation in seizure of the 42-foot tug "Gil Rokie."

A watchman, J.C. Johnson, 54, of Tampa, said he was in the control room of a dredge tied up at Julia Tuttle causeway over Biscayne Bay when three men clambered up the ladder.

"They told me they didn't want to hurt me, but were just going to tie me up," Johnson said. "One had a gun, an automatic. They were pretty polite about the whole thing."

Johnson said they tied his hands and feet and a short time later he heard the tug nearby take off.

A police harbor launch pursued the captured tug around the bay for about 45 minutes, mostly in circles. The would-be pirates did not know how to operate the air pressure steering system and the craft wound up grounded on a sandbar.

The men said they had loaded six rifles aboard to use against the forces of Premier Fidel Castro when they reached Cuba. Police recovered one of them. The men said they had thrown the others overboard.

A fifth man in the hijack attempt jumped overboard and escaped, detectives said.

Cloudy, Rains Expected Today

Occasional light rain might move into the Monroe area today, according to the weatherman. The outlook throughout the state calls for cloudy skies and rain.

Cool temperatures are also in the outlook.

The high expected today ranges from 42 to 52 degrees. The low will be in the 30's.

Saturday's high recorded by Federal Aviation at Selman Field was 46 with a low reading of 28.

The sun will set today at 5:44 p.m.

Fire Destroys Historic Church

OTTAWA (UPI)—Fire destroyed an historic church and an art gallery and threatened for a time Saturday to spread through the main shopping area in the heart of the capital.

A state of emergency order issued by Mayor Charlotte Whitton brought half the fire department's 350 men to the scene and all available policemen to keep back a crowd estimated at 2,000.

Firemen confined the blaze to the 85-year-old, three-story Dominion-United Church and the Robertson Galleries. It was controlled before it could spread to the Parliament buildings two blocks away.

The fire broke out in a rear packing room of the gallery and spread quickly through the 1,700-seat church.

Damage to the building was estimated unofficially at $500,000. A spokesman for the art gallery said at least $20,000 worth of paintings were destroyed.

'GRANDFATHER CLAUSE'

Last Convention Participant Dies

WINNFIELD (Special) — The last surviving member of the Louisiana Constitutional Convention of 1898 which put the "grandfather clause" into the state's government has died in a Winnfield hospital.

B. W. Bailey, 92, one of the many products of Winn Parish to carve his name in the annals of state history, succumbed Friday night after several days hospitalization here.

He had lived in retirement here since 1933, when he stepped down as president of the Winnfield Bank.

Born here as the son of a farmer who moved from Georgia in 1859, Bailey had risen through the ranks of hotel man, newspapre publisher, banker and was elected to the constitutional convention on the Populist ticket.

He was an active organizational man in the type of hardnosed politics common to rural areas at the time.

In 1900 he was elected sheriff of Winn Parish on the same ticket and was the last public official elected here from that party.

In the early 1900's he sparked oil drilling on Cedar Creek south of Winnfield and lived to see a promising Wilcox oil spread erupt in the Joyce-Colgrad and Crossroads fields where oil fever is now sky high.

Before 1928 he entertained the idea of creating a game preserve by throwing a dam across the Saline Bayou west of here.

H. B. Bozeman credits the reality of this dream to Bailey's efforts.

While Bozeman was chairman of the House Appropriations com-

Local Business Best In Louisiana

only a 1.5 per cent drop from $246,866 in 1959 to $243,042 in 1960.

Based on the amount of sales taxes collected, the volume of business in the Monroe Trade Area during December 1960 should total $20,992,300, as compared to $21,365,300 in December, 1959. In Ouachita Parish the figure for December, 1960, would be $12,152,000 as compared to $12,343,400 in December, 1959.

Using an approximate figure, it was estimated that total sales in the Monroe Trade Area in 1960 was nearly $170,000,000.

In the other parishes in the trade area outside of Ouachita, collections in December, 1959, and 1960, and the percentage difference were:

Caldwell, $7,656 to $8,598, down 10.9 per cent; East Carroll, $15,446 to $16,737, down 7.7; Franklin $26,804 to $28,296, down 5.8; Madison $18,189 to $19,306, down 5.8; Morehouse $45,538 to $41,448, up 9.9; Richland $28,912 to $29,097, down 0.6; Tensas, $9,318 to $9,145, up 1.9; Union, $13,825 to $15,087, down 8.4, and West Carroll, $12,605 to $12,624, down 4.2.

The LSU index survey showed a tremendous increase in the value of building permits issued in Monroe for the two-month period. In December, 1960, a total of $833,709 was issued compared to $215,780 in December, 1959, an increase of a whopping 193.7 per cent.

Another big increase for the City of Monroe was noted in department store sales. The report showed an increase of 5.4 per cent for the city in December, 1960, over December, 1959. This compared to a 6.2 per cent increase for DeRidder; 2.6 for New Iberia; 3.5 for Opelousas, and 0.9 for Shreveport. Alexandria, Bastrop, Baton Rouge, Lake Charles, Morgan City, Natchitoches, New Orleans and Tallulah showed decreases. Statewide the decrease was 5.9 per cent.

Gnerally, in all lines of the index, even where losses were reported, Monroe was well above the statewide average, in per cent.

Other business indexes compiled for Monroe for the months of December, 1960, and December, 1959, showed:

Department store sales, up 5.4 per cent; retail grocery sales, down 4.4; Retail Drug sales, down 5.1; Men's clothing sales down 12.4; Women's clothing sales down 13.4; shoe store sales down 9.4; furniture sales down 6.6; building material sales up 32.1; retail hardware sales 37.2; auto supplies and accessories up 6.9; postal receipts, up 2.4; wholesale grocery sales down 1.1; electric power consumption up 16.3; telephone service up 6.0; building permits 193.7; and bank deposits, down 1.5.

It was pointed out that the tremendous accomplishment was made by Twin - City merchants and others in the area despite the fact that according to the weather bureau this has been one of the worst winters — from November until now — in some 20 years.

At the same time, it was explained, that the drop noted in some categories of business here was due to money being channeled into Christmas toys and similar items which were not listed as such.

Rome Police Battle Riots By Fascists

ROME (AP) — Teen-age Students and steel-helmeted riot police battled in Roman streets Saturday as Fascist politicians sought to turn anti-Austrian demonstrators against both Italy's Communist party.

It was the fourth day in a row that students, many of them still in short trousers, took to the streets for protest rallies in Italy's dispute with Austria over the South Tyrol.

Dozens of police and students suffered minor injuries in the previous street clashes, and at least a score more were hurt Saturday.

At one point a sports car driven by American actor John Barrymore Jr., was caught in the traffic jam created by the marching students. Barrymore started blowing his horn. Several students jumped on the car and smashed its windows. Barrymore was not hurt.

As on the previous days, gangs of book-carrying youths — including a sprinkling of pig-tailed girls — tried to stone the Austrian embassy. They were driven off by police.

But unlike the previous days, a large portion of the students also turned their ire on Italians.

These were students who accepted the leadership of members of the Fascist Italian Social Movement. They constituted only a minority of the demonstrating students, but perhaps were the noisiest single group.

First they appeared in Piazza Venezia, the square where crowds used to gather to hear harangues by Benito Mussolini. The students scattered leaflets denouncing Premier Amintore Fanfani's government, saying it was too soft on the South Tyrol issue.

Driven from the piazza by police, about 400 of the Fascist-led students charged into the nearby Via delle Botteghe Oscure — Street of the Dark Shops — where the Communist party has its headquarters.

They hurled paper cartons fused and filled with gasoline toward the Communist building. No damage was done. Several Communists charged out of the building. They carried fire extinguishers which they turned on the youths.

Police in red riot jeeps charged into the crowd. Order was restored in minutes.

STRUCK BOY

Discovering that the batteries in the light were dead, Johnson, according to his statement, got mad and accused his son of using the light. He admittedly struck the boy with the barrel of the gun.

At this point, Mrs. Johnson interceded in behalf of her son and Johnson fired at her, the bullet striking her in the head.

The son ran outside to join the other children who had gone out ahead of him with the baby before the shooting.

Johnson said he loaded his shotgun and told his children he was going to the woods to kill himself but said he could not go through with it when his children began crying.

Funeral services are slated today for Mrs. Johnson at the Bethlehem Baptist Church near Calvin at 2:30 p.m. with the Revs. E. J. Yocum and C. B. Bates officiating. Burial will follow in the church cemetery under the direction of First National Funeral Home of Natchitoches.

Survivors include her husband and five daughters, Leona, Essie, Lessie, Dinah and Mary Louise Johnson, all of Calvin; three sons, Henry C. Johnson Jr., William Patrick Johnson and Ricky Lynn Johnson, all of Calvin: and one twin sister, Mrs. Floy Johnson, also of Calvin.

Blizzard Fails To Stop Shows

NEW YORK (AP)—Through all the turmoil, the show biz attitude was the show—you guessed it—must go on. Here's how some of the Broadway stars made it to Saturday's matinees:

Ethel Merman hitched a ride with a doctor driving to a hospital. Sir Laurence Olivier slogged 32 blocks on foot. His costar, Anthony Quinn, arrived via a truck returning costumes from the cleaners. Phil Silvers traveled on a newspaper delivery truck.

The most dramatic mode was claimed by Joan Plowright, who managed a lift with a college student driving a horse-drawn sleigh.

He is survived by his widow of Winnfield, a daughter, Mrs. Rene Dickerson, Winnfield: and a sister, Mrs. L. Rickerson, Winnfield.

C. E. Shumaker Services Tuesday

Carlton Earl Shumaker, 63, died Thursday morning at his residence at 407 Vernon Street, Monroe.

Mr. Shumaker, who has only resided in Monroe for aboutthree months, is formerly of Wayne County, Ohio.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Tuesday in the chapel of Kilpatrick's Funeral Home of West Monroe with the Rev. Edgar Wiggins officiating. Burial will be in Hasley Cemetery under the direction of Kilpatrick's.

Mr. Shumaker is survived by eight sons, Robert of Monroe, Frank of San Francisco, Calif., Richard of Oregon, Henry of Phoenix, Ariz., Jack of Kelso, Wash., Kenneth of Lorraine, Ohio, Larry of Tacoma, Wash., and James of Minneapolis, Minn.; three daughters, Mrs. Jessie McQuate, Olivesburg, Ohio, Mrs. Donna Hill, Lorraine, Ohio, and Mrs. Patricia Hill, Phoenix, Ariz.; 38 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Snow Brings Housewives Sad Plight

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of suburban housewives could moan a sad lament in their snow-shrouded dwellings Saturday deeply hurt at the lack of attention given their plight in blizzard weather.

Take an average suburban development: dump about 16 inches of snow on it; send the men of the house scratching into the city to earn the daily bread, and what's left at home?

A sometimes frightened, sometimes disappointed, sometimes lonely and always uncomfortable wife and mother.

"Sure, the men have to battle the snow to get to town and to work and I'm the first to admit the poor housewife left at home with nothing to do but wait for the thaw?"

Many suburban housewives have children under foot. The snow that fell during the last 24 hours made it impossible for them to drive cars. It's too deep to wade through with two or three youngsters.

The milkman couldn't make it Saturday morning. The bakery truck didn't even get out of the downtown garage. The grocery store delivery boy gave up the fight after trying to pull one sled load of purchases through the deep cover.

So the larder is checked. A can of kidney beans, two boxes of macaroni; half a box of saltines and two cup cakes. The last few cigarettes left the house in the pack the husband unthinkingly grabbed as he set out to brave the elements en route to work.

The little boy begins to appear flushed. He becomes irritable. His forehead is hot.A quick call to the pediatrician. He calls the drugstore and prescribes a wonder drug, the same medicine that always worked like magic before.

But the drug store isn't making any deliveries, doctor.

Back to grandma's remedies—hot molasses and sugar. It works, but it will take days—days with a cranky youngster.

The coffee klatch with the girl next door is out of the question. One of her youngsters is sick too.

Why not set the embers to glowing in the fireplace? The garage doors are blocked with drifts and there is no wood in the house.

Oh well, the husband will be home in a few hours. A quick call to the office to remind him about bringing home some milk and bread and cigarettes.

What, the railroad is shut down? You're going to have to stay in a hotel overnight?

"Oh, yes," one disgruntled housewife said, "they've got it tough. It's a snap for us."

Sure.

Food Sales Climb

NEW YORK (UPI) — Total retail food sales in the U.S. last year rose 3.8 per cent from 1959 to a record - breaking figure of $65,710,000,000 according to a survey by the Food Field Reporter and Food Topics.

Even Stork Bogs Down In Blizzard

GLEN COVE, N. Y. (AP) — It was such a blizzard that even the stork couldn't make any time.

Ruth Herbst of Syosset began getting warnings Saturday morning that her baby was on the way. Her husband, Joseph, a TV engineer, called police because he feared his own car wouldn't make it to the hospital in the piling snow.

Police responded, bogged down, called on a snowplow for help. Then the plow broke down. Mrs. Herbst was transferred to a second police car. It stuck in a drift. She finally reached Glen Cove hospital aboard a second plow, but still ahead of the stork.

Mother and son, father, police and snowplow operators all are doing well.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y. (AP) —The blizzard piled snow 20 inches deep outside and there was a power failure inside, but the wedding went off on schedule Saturday.

Candles provided the illumination at Our Lady of Victory Catholic church.

And to replace the church organ which operates only on electricity, a small portable organ was brought in from the adjoining church school.

The newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Alfredo, said they plan to honeymoon in California and Hawaii, and live in Florida until Easter. By then, they hope, the snow will melt.

NEW YORK (AP)—Some 177 vacationers who had set out by ship Friday night for the summery Caribbean shivered out the storm Saturday aboard the liner Nassau tied up a Hudson River pier.

The ship turned back after a light collision with a freighter as it left the harbor.

The tourists stayed aboard while the company arranged for transfer to another liner.

NEW YORK (AP)—The city's 700 public health nurses went on emergency duty Saturday. Dr. Leona Baumgartner, city health commissioner, ordered them to put themselves at the disposal of the nearest police precinct to assist in childbirth and other emergencies over-exertion and auto accidents on snow-packed or icy roads.

Illinois counted 11 deaths. There were 10 in Ohio and Pennsylvania, 6 in Tennessee and 5 in Massachusetts. Wyoming and New York had 4, New Jersey and Michigan 3, Iowa, Indiana, Rhode Island and Missouri 2 each and one each in Virginia, Georgia, Kentucky and Wisconsin.

Meanwhile, a new storm developed into one of the season's worst snowfalls over the southern plains.

The storm, which covered an area including parts of Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Texas, slowly pushed eastward, and weathermen issued heavy snow warnings through western and northwest Missouri.

The storm dumped 5 to 6 inches of snow during its early hours over the plains, particularly in the Texas and Oklahoma panhandles. The U.S. Weather Bureau said up to 8 inches of snow was expected to blanket the Texas panhandle by Sunday morning. A narrow band of freezing rain and sleet iced the region just to the south of the snow.

Driving conditions were poor, the weather bureau said, and were expected to become more hazardous as the storm intensified.

Searches continued Saturday for two planes which disappeared in snowy sections of Colorado and Wyoming.

Near Lander, Wyo., search teams moved toward a mining town in the hunt for a light plane, which vanished Friday with a pilot and Life Magazine correspondent Terry Turner of Denver aboard.

Three persons were aboard a plane which disappeared in the Gardner) Colo., area during a snowstorm Friday night.

The Midwest, which felt the first force of the eastern storm, began its cleanup operations from the worst snows of winter to strike the nation's mid-section.

At Chicago, covered with an 8-inch blanket of snow and drifts up to 3 or 4 feet deep, temperatures eased somewhat to give residents a breather. Police appealed to car owners to dig out an estimated 75,000 autos marooned on city streets.

But the midwestern snows were no match for the near - blizzard that struck the East.

New York state, already reeling from its longest deep freeze in 92 years, was staggered anew under the storm's wallop.

The New York City 24 -hour snowfall raised the city's total snowfall since the blizzard of Dec. 11 to almost 60 inches. It made the storm the worst in the city since the all-time record snowfall of 25.8 inches in 1947.

A state of emergency was declared at Syracuse, N.Y., paralyzed by an accumulation of 30 inches of snow. Many upstate New York areas had 2 or more feet of snow on the ground when the storm began.

The storm heaped 24 inches of snow on Cortland County, N.Y., 15 inches on Binghamton and 13 on Tannersville. In northwest Connecticut, drifts mounded 15 feet deep, and 12-foot walls of snow clogged suburban New York areas.

Transportation in and out of New York City by car, train, bus and air was either paralyzed or hopelessly snarled. Downtown Manhattan streets were all but deserted. Trains ran late, ship movements were virtually halted, and residents of luxury apartments on Park Avenue were snowbound by five-foot drifts.

Highways through the Midwest generally were open, but snow-packed and treacherous.

Local Business Best In Louisiana

only a 1.5 per cent drop from $246,868 in 1959 to $243,042 in 1960.

Based on the amount of sales taxes collected, the volume of business in the Monroe Trade Area during December 1960 should total $20,992,300, as compared to $21,365,300 in December, 1959. In Ouachita Parish the figure for December, 1960, would be $12,152,000 as compared to $12,343,400 in December, 1959.

Using an approximate figure, it was estimated that total sales in the Monroe Trade Area in 1960 was nearly $170,000,000.

In the other parishes in the trade area outside of Ouachita, collections in December, 1959, and 1960, and the percentage difference were:

Caldwell, $7,658 to $8,598, down 10.9 per cent; East Carroll, $15,445 to $16,737, down 7.7; Franklin $25,804 to $28,296, down 8.8; Madison $18,189 to $19,306, down 5.8; Morehouse $45,538 to $41,448, up 9.9; Richland $28,912 to $29,097, down 0.6; Tensas, $9,318 to $9,145, up 1.9; Union, $13,825 to $15,087, down 8.4, and West Carroll, $12,095 to $12,624, down 4.2.

The LSU index survey showed a tremendous increase in the value of building permits issued in Monroe for the two-month period. In December, 1960, a total of $633,709 was issued compared to $215,780 in December, 1959, an increase of a whopping 193.7 per cent.

Another big increase for the City of Monroe was noted in department store sales. The report showed an increase of 5.4 per cent for the city in December, 1960, over December, 1959. This compared to a 6.2 per cent increase for DeRidder; 2.6 for New Iberia; 3.5 for Opelousas, and 0.9 for Shreveport. Alexandria, Bastrop, Baton Rouge, Lake Charles, Morgan City, Natchitoches, New Orleans and Tallulah showed decreases. Statewide the decrease was 5.9 per cent.

Gnerally, in all lines of the index, even where losses were reported, Monroe was well above the statewide average, in per cent.

Other business indexes compiled for Monroe for the months of December, 1960, and December, 1959, showed:

Department store sales, up 5.4 per cent; retail grocery sales, down 4.4; Retail Drug sales, down 5.1; Men's clothing sales down 12.4; Women's clothing sales down 13.4; shoe store sales down 9.4; furniture sales down 6.6; building material sales up 32.1; retail hardware sales 37.2; auto supplies and accessories up 6.9; postal receipts, up 2.4; wholesale grocery sales down 1.1; electric power consumption up 16.3; telephone service up 6.0; building permits 193.7; and bank deposits, down 1.5.

It was pointed out that the tremendous accomplishment was made by Twin - City merchants and others in the area despite the fact that according to the weather bureau this has been one of the worst winters — from November until now — in some 20 years.

At the same time, it was explained, that the drop noted in some categories of business here was due to money being channeled into Christmas toys and similar items which were not listed as such.

Rome Police Battle Riots By Fascists

ROME (AP) — Teen-age Students and steel-helmeted riot police battled in Roman streets Saturday as Fascist politicians sought to turn anti-Austrian demonstrators against both Italy's Communist party.

It was the fourth day in a row that students, many of them still in short trousers, took to the streets for protest rallies in Italy's dispute with Austria over the South Tyrol.

Dozens of police and students suffered minor injuries in the previous street clashes, and at least a score more were hurt Saturday.

At one point a sports car driven by American actor John Barrymore Jr., was caught in the traffic jam created by the marching students. Barrymore started blowing his horn. Several students jumped on the car and smashed its windows. Barrymore was not hurt.

As on the previous days, gangs of book-carrying youths — including a sprinkling of pig-tailed girls — tried to stone the Austrian embassy. They were driven off by police.

But unlike the previous days, a large portion of the students also turned their ire on Italians.

These were students who accepted the leadership of members of the Fascist Italian Social Movement. They constituted only a minority of the demonstrating students, but perhaps were the noisiest single group.

First they appeared in Piazza Venezia, the square where crowds used to gather to hear harangues by Benito Mussolini. The students scattered leaflets denouncing Premier Amintore Fanfani's government, saying it was too soft on the South Tyrol issue.

Driven from the piazza by police, about 400 of the Fascist-led students charged into the nearby Via delle Botteghe Oscure — Street of the Dark Shops — where the Communist party has its headquarters.

They hurled paper cartons fused and filled with gasoline toward the Communist building. No damage was done. Several Communists charged out of the building. They carried fire extinguishers which they turned on the youths.

Police in red riot jeeps charged into the crowd. Order was restored in minutes.

STRUCK BOY

Discovering that the batteries in the light were dead, Johnson, according to his statement, got mad and accused his son of using the light. He admittedly struck the boy with the barrel of the gun.

At this point, Mrs. Johnson interceded in behalf of her son and Johnson fired at her, the bullet striking her in the head.

The son ran outside to join the other children who had gone out ahead of him with the baby before the shooting.

Johnson said he loaded his shotgun and told his children he was going to the woods to kill himself but said he could not go through with it when his children began crying.

Funeral services are slated today for Mrs. Johnson at the Bethlehem Baptist Church near Calvin at 2:30 p.m. with the Revs. E. J. Yocum and C. B. Bates officiating. Burial will follow in the church cemetery under the direction of First National Funeral Home of Natchitoches.

Survivors include her husband and five daughters, Leona, Eassie, Lessie, Dinah and Mary Louise Johnson, all of Calvin; three sons, Henry C. Johnson Jr., William Patrick Johnson and Ricky Lynn Johnson, all of Calvin: and one twin sister, Mrs. Floy Johnson, also of Calvin.

Blizzard Fails To Stop Shows

NEW YORK (AP)—Through all the turmoil, the show biz attitude was the show—you guessed it—must go on. Here's how some of the Broadway stars made it to Saturday's matinees:

Ethel Merman hitched a ride with a doctor driving to a hospital. Sir Laurence Olivier slogged 32 blocks on foot. His costar, Anthony Quinn, arrived via a truck returning costumes from the cleaners. Phil Silvers traveled on a newspaper delivery truck.

The most dramatic mode was claimed by Joan Plowright, who managed a lift with a college student driving a horse-drawn sleigh.

The result was the present Northwest Louisiana Game and Fish preserve, an economic and natural boon to Winn and Natchitoches Parishes, which embraces thousands of acres of timberland and waters in the Saline, Clear and Black Lakes area.

Funeral services will be at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the First Methodist Church here with the Rev. R. H. Staples officiating. Burial will be in the Winnfield cemetery under the direction of Southern Funeral Home.

He is survived by his widow of Winnfield, a daughter, Mrs. Rene Dickerson, Winnfield; and a sister, Mrs. L. Rickerson, Winnfield.

C. E. Shumaker Services Tuesday

Carlton Earl Shumaker, 63, died Thursday morning at his residence at 407 Vernon Street, Monroe.

Mr. Shumaker, who has only resided in Monroe for aboutthree months, is formerly of Wayne County, Ohio.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Tuesday in the chapel of Kilpatrick's Funeral Home of West Monroe with the Rev. Edgar Wiggins officiating. Burial will be in Hasley Cemetery under the direction of Kilpatrick's.

Mr. Shumaker is survived by eight sons, Robert of Monroe, Frank of San Francisco, Calif., Richard of Oregon, Henry of Phoenix, Ariz., Jack of Kelso, Wash., Kenneth of Lorraine, Ohio, Larry of Tacoma, Wash., and James of Minneapolis, Minn.; three daughters, Mrs. Jessie McQuate, Olivesburg, Ohio, Mrs. Donna Hill, Lorraine, Ohio, and Mrs. Patricia Hill, Phoenix, Ariz.; 38 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Snow Brings Housewives Sad Plight

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of suburban housewives could moan a sad lament in their snow-shrouded dwellings Saturday deeply hurt at the lack of attention given their plight in blizzard weather.

Take an average suburban development: dump about 16 inches of snow on it; send the men of the house scratching into the city to earn the daily bread, and what's left at home?

A sometimes frightened, sometimes disappointed, sometimes lonely and always uncomfortable wife and mother.

"Sure, the men have to battle the snow to get to town and to work and I'm the first to admit the poor housewife left at home with nothing to do but wait for the thaw?"

Many suburban housewives have children under foot. The snow that fell during the last 24 hours made it impossible for them to drive cars. It's too deep to wade through with two or three youngsters.

The milkman couldn't make it Saturday morning. The bakery truck didn't even get out of the downtown garage. The grocery store delivery boy gave up the fight after trying to pull one sled load of purchases through the deep cover.

So the larder is checked. A can of kidney beans, two boxes of macaroni; half a box of saltines and two cup cakes. The last few cigarettes left the house in the pack the husband unthinkingly grabbed as he set out to brave the elements en route to work.

The little boy begins to appear flushed. He becomes irritable. His forehead is hot.A quick call to the pediatrician. He calls the drugstore and prescribes a wonder drug, the same medicine that always worked like magic before.

But the drug store isn't making any deliveries, doctor.

Back to grandma's remedies—hot molasses and sugar. It works, but it will take days—days with a cranky youngster.

The coffee klatch with the girl next door is out of the question. One of her youngsters is sick too.

Why not set the embers to glowing in the fireplace? The garage doors are blocked with drifts and there is no wood in the house.

Oh well, the husband will be home in a few hours. A quick call to the office to remind him about bringing home some milk and bread and cigarettes.

What, the railroad is shut down? You're going to have to stay in a hotel overnight?

"Oh, yes," one disgruntled housewife said, "they've got it tough. It's a snap for us."

Sure.

Food Sales Climb

NEW YORK (UPI) — Total retail food sales in the U.S. last year rose 3.8 per cent from 1959 to a record - breaking figure of $55,710,000,000 according to a survey by the Flood Field Reporter and Food Topics.

Even Stork Bogs Down In Blizzard

GLEN COVE, N. Y. (AP) — It was such a blizzard that even the stork couldn't make any time.

Ruth Herbst of Syosset began getting warnings Saturday morning that her baby was on the way. Her husband, Joseph, a TV engineer, called police because he feared his own car wouldn't make it to the hospital in the piling snow.

Police responded, bogged down, called on a snowplow for help. Then the plow broke down. Mrs. Herbst was transferred to a second police car. It stuck in a drift. She finally reached Glen Cove hospital aboard a second plow, but still ahead of the stork.

Mother and son, father, police and snowplow operators all are doing well.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y. (AP) —The blizzard piled snow 20 inches deep outside and there was a power failure inside, but the wedding went off on schedule Saturday.

Candles provided the illumination at Our Lady of Victory Catholic church.

And to replace the church organ which operates only on electricity, a small portable organ was brought in from the adjoining church school.

The newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Alfredo, said they plan to honeymoon in California and Hawaii, and live in Florida until Easter. By then, they hope, the snow will melt.

NEW YORK (AP)—Some 177 vacationers who had set out by ship Friday night for the summery Caribbean shivered out the storm Saturday aboard the liner Nassau tied up a Hudson River pier.

The ship turned back after a light collision with a freighter as it left the harbor.

The tourists stayed aboard while the company arranged for transfer to another liner.

NEW YORK (AP)—The city's 700 public health nurses went on emergency duty Saturday. Dr. Leona Baumgartner, city health commissioner, ordered them to put themselves at the disposal of the nearest police precinct to assist in childbirth and other emergencies.

Heavy Snowfall Paralyzes Cities

over-exertion and auto accidents on snow-packed or icy roads.

Illinois counted 11 deaths. There were 10 in Ohio and Pennsylvania, 6 in Tennessee and 5 in Massachusetts. Wyoming and New York had 4, New Jersey and Michigan 3, Iowa, Indiana, Rhode Island and Missouri 2 each and one each in Virginia, Georgia, Kentucky and Wisconsin.

Meanwhile, a new storm developed into one of the season's worst snowfalls over the southern plains.

The storm, which covered an area including parts of Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Texas, slowly pushed eastward, and weathermen issued heavy snow warnings through western and northwest Missouri.

The storm dumped 5 to 6 inches of snow during its early hours over the plains, particularly in the Texas and Oklahoma panhandles. The U.S. Weather Bureau said up to 8 inches of snow was expected to blanket the Texas panhandle by Sunday morning. A narrow band of freezing rain and sleet iced the region just to the south of the snow.

Driving conditions were poor, the weather bureau said, and were expected to become more hazardous as the storm intensified.

Searches continued Saturday for two planes which disappeared in snowy sections of Colorado and Wyoming.

Near Lander, Wyo., search teams moved toward a mining town in the hunt for a light plane, which vanished Friday with a pilot and Life Magazine correspondent Terry Turner of Denver aboard.

Three persons were aboard a plane which disappeared in the Gardner) Colo., area during a snowstorm Friday night.

The Midwest, which felt the first force of the eastern storm, began its eleanup operations from the worst snows of winter to strike the nation's mid-section.

At Chicago, covered with an 8-inch blanket of snow and drifts up to 3 or 4 feet deep, temperatures eased somewhat to give residents a breather. Police appealed to car owners to dig out an estimated 75,000 autos marooned on city streets.

But the midwestern snows were no match for the near - blizzard that struck the East.

New York state, already reeling from its longest deep freeze in 92 years, was staggered anew under the storm's wallop.

The New York City 24 -hour snowfall raised the city's total snowfall since the blizzard of Dec. 11 to almost 60 inches. It made the storm the worst in the city since the all-time record snowfall of 25.8 inches in 1947.

A state of emergency was declared at Syracuse, N.Y., paralyzed by an accumulation of 30 inches of snow. Many upstate New York areas had 2 or more feet of snow on the ground when the storm began.

The storm heaped 24 inches of snow on Cortland County, N.Y., 15 inches on Binghamton and 13 on Tannersville. In northwest Connecticut, drifts mounded 15 feet deep, and 12-foot walls of snow clogged suburban New York areas.

Transportation in and out of New York City by car, train, bus and air was either paralyzed or hopelessly snarled. Downtown Manhattan streets were all but deserted. Trains ran late, ship movements were virtually halted, and residents of luxury apartments on Park Avenue were snowbound by five-foot drifts.

Highways through the Midwest generally were open, but snow-packed and treacherous.

Film Actress Anna May Wong Dies At Age 54

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Anna May Wong, silken-voiced symbol of Oriental mystery and beauty, is dead at 54. Hollywood's first Chinese star once told a movie columnist:

"Whn I die, my epitaph should be: I died a thousand deaths. That was the story of my film career.

"Most of the time I played in mystery and intrigue stories. They didn't know what to do with me at the end, so they killed me off."

Miss Wong died of a heart attack Friday night at her home in nearby Santa Monica. Funeral services are pending.

Her trademarks were large dark eyes, high rounded cheeks, dark bangs over her forehead and a soft, musical voice that was unmistakably Chinese—although she was born and reared in Los Angeles.

Her first big success was in the silent film "Thief of Bagdad" with Douglas Fairbanks. She made more than 80 films in Hollywood, Germany, France and England.

She often costarred with Warner Oland, the Fu Manchu and Charlie Chan of many Hollywood films.

Negro Is Booked In Battery Case

A 26-year-old Negro woman was booked by Monroe police yesterday for aggravated battery in connection with the knifing of Frank Robinson, Negro, 1410 Adams St.

According to the police report the woman, Thelma Jackson, 1410 Adams St., stabbed Robinson in the upper left arm during a quarrel.

In another battery incident, Charlie Roe Jr., Negro, 25, was booked for simple battery in a disturbance at 100 N. 11 St. Roe gave his address as 608 Adams St.

Dixieland Jazz Musician Dies

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Alphonse Picou, one of the great Dixieland clarinet players, died Saturday. He was 82.

The Negro musician had been in the forefront of New Orleans jazz for 65 years. During that time he had played with the best known Dixieland groups. His last appearances were with the late Papa Celestine.

He was perhaps best known for his solo on the jazz classic "High Society."

Picou had been in failing health since he broke an arm about six months ago.

Purchasing Power Rises For Farmers

WINNFIELD (Special) — The purchasing power of Louisiana farmers per unit of farm product advanced three tenths per cent from mid-November to mid - December, 1960, during a period of slight shifts on individual items in the total farm product.

Figures of the Louisiana Crop Reporting service as published in the January Louisiana Business Review made by the Louisiana State University College of Commerce present a narrow margin of slack between prices paid by the farmer and prices received.

Based on 100 points for crop years, 1935-1939, the money received per unit of product index stands at 268.3 against the basis.

This amounts to six tenths per cent.

Per cent changes in the index for prices received in each group are:

Livestock and livestock products, up 1.9; meat animals up 2.6; poultry and eggs, up 5.4; wool, up 2.5; and dairy products, down eight - tenths per cent.

The composite index for all prices received for all crops was down two tenths; cotton down 3.0; rice, down 4.0; feed grain and hay, down nine tenths; oil bearing crops, unchanged; sweet potatoes, up 48.3, irish potatoes, unchanged.

The index for prices paid by farmers for all commodities, interest taxes and wages included; up three tenths; (USDA figures); prices for family living items, down three tenths; and prices paid for production items, up eight tenths.

Weather Bureau Hasn't Time To Measure Snow

NEW YORK (AP)—For hours Saturday the Weather Bureau reported a fall of 13 inches-even as new snow swirled down in almost blinding volume.

A Weather Bureau employe plaintively explained that forecasters who had managed to reach the center for work were so busy answering telephones from inquiring reporters and citizens generally that nobody had found time to take a new measurement.

For the first time in memory, The Associated Press weather map—used in hundreds of newspapers around the country—was late in moving on the wirephoto network. The reason? The artist was snowbound.

So was the city's new chief weatherman.

Charles G. Knudsen, who took over only Friday from the retired Ernest J. Christie, had to keep in touch with his forecasters by telephone from his home in Scotch Plains, N. J.

Burglar Breaks Into Church; Fails 2nd Try

One West Monroe church was broken into and an attempt made to break into another sometime Friday night, police officials said yesterday.

McGuire Methodist Church on Arkansas Road was entered and an ice pick was used to force open an office door. Desk drawers were rifled and paper was scattered about on the floor, but nothing was taken, police said.

Utensils in the kitchen were also scattered about with nothing taken.

A screen was pulled off of Highland Presbyterian Church on Wellerman Road, but the person or persons responsible were unable to enter the building.

West Monroe detectives said that the incidents were believed to be the work of juveniles.

BEFRIENDS RHINOCEROS

DUNDEE, Scotland (AP) — Herbert V. Bonar, a wealthy jute processor, has a soft spot in his heart for the rhinoceros. He read that rhinos were dying of thirst because of a drought in Kenya's Tsavo National Park and sent a $28,000 check to government authorities. In return he was told that the money would be used to start work on a pipeline to bring water to the park.

Thefts Reported Here Saturday

Two thefts were reported by Monroe police yesterday.

A chain saw belonging to M. S. Joiner, 912 St. John, was stolen from the back of a pickup truck on 208 8th St.

The saw was valued at approximately $175.

Frank Walker, 820 Louisville, registered a complaint that a 55 gallon drum of grease had been stolen from his place of business. He said that the theft of grease has happened many times before.

Film Actress Anna May Wong Dies At Age 54

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Anna May Wong, silken-voiced symbol of Oriental mystery and beauty, is dead at 54. Hollywood's first Chinese star once told a movie columnist:

"Whn I die, my epitaph should be: I died a thousand deaths. That was the story of my film career.

"Most of the time I played in mystery and intrigue stories. They didn't know what to do with me at the end, so they killed me off."

Miss Wong died of a heart attack Friday night at her home in nearby Santa Monica. Funeral services are pending.

Her trademarks were large dark eyes, high rounded cheeks, dark bangs over her forehead and a soft, musical voice that was unmistakably Chinese—although she was born and reared in Los Angeles.

Her first big success was in the silent film "Thief of Bagdad" with Douglas Fairbanks. She made more than 80 films in Hollywood, Germany, France and England.

She often costarred with Warner Oland, the Fu Manchu and Charlie Chan of many Hollywood films.

Negro Is Booked In Battery Case

A 26-year-old Negro woman was booked by Monroe police yesterday for aggravated battery in connection with the knifing of Frank Robinson, Negro, 1410 Adams St.

According to the police report the woman, Thelma Jackson, 1410 Adams St., stabbed Robinson in the upper left arm during a quarrel.

In another battery incident, Charlie Roe Jr., Negro, 25, was booked for simple battery in a disturbance at 100 N. 11 St. Roe gave his address as 603 Adams St.

Dixieland Jazz Musician Dies

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Alphonse Picou, one of the great Dixieland clarinet players, died Saturday. He was 82.

The Negro musician had been in the forefront of New Orleans jazz for 65 years. During that time he had played with the best known Dixieland groups. His last appearances were with the late Papa Celestine.

He was perhaps best known for his solo on the jazz classic "High Society."

Picou had been in failing health since he broke an arm about six months ago.

CEMETERIES CROWDED

PARIS (AP) — Remains in 968 tombs, considered abandoned, are being transferred to a municipal ossuary because Paris cemeteries are overcrowded. The City Council approved expropriation of the tombs because they have not been maintained and heirs have not asserted their rights.

THROUGHOUT STATE

Purchasing Power Rises For Farmers

WINNFIELD (Special) — The purchasing power of Louisiana farmers per unit of farm product advanced three tenths per cent from mid-November to mid - December, 1960, during a period of slight shifts on individual items in the total farm product.

Figures of the Louisiana Crop Reporting service as published in the January Louisiana Business Review made by the Louisiana State University College of Commerce present a narrow margin of slack between prices paid by the farmer and prices received.

Based on 100 points for crop years, 1935-1939, the money received per unit of product index stands at 268.3 against the basis.

This amounts to six tenths per cent.

Per cent changes in the index for prices received in each group are:

Livestock and livestock products, up 1.9; meat animals up 2.6; poultry and eggs, up 5.4; wool, up 2.5; and dairy products, down eight - tenths per cent.

The composite index for all prices received for all crops was down two tenths; cotton down 3.0; rice, down 4.0; feed grain and hay, down nine tenths; oil bearing crops, unchanged; sweet potatoes, up 48.3, irish potatoes, unchanged.

The index for prices paid by farmers for all commodities, interest taxes and wages included; up three tenths; (USDA figures); prices for family living items, down three tenths; and prices paid for production items, up eight tenths.

Weather Bureau Hasn't Time To Measure Snow

NEW YORK (AP)—For hours Saturday the Weather Bureau reported a fall of 13 inches-even as new snow swirled down in almost blinding volume.

A Weather Bureau employe plaintively explained that forecasters who had managed to reach the center for work were so busy answering telephones from inquiring reporters and citizens generally that nobody had found time to take a new measurement.

For the first time in memory, The Associated Press weather map—used in hundreds of newspapers around the country—was late in moving on the wirephoto network. The reason? The artist was snowbound.

So was the city's new chief weatherman.

Charles G. Knudsen, who took over only Friday from the retired Ernest J. Christie, had to keep in touch with his forecasters by telephone from his home in Scotch Plains, N. J.

Burglar Breaks Into Church; Fails 2nd Try

One West Monroe church was broken into and an attempt made to break into another sometime Friday night, police officials said yesterday.

McGuire Methodist Church on Arkansas Road was entered and an ice pick was used to force open an office door. Desk drawers were rifled and paper was scattered about on the floor, but nothing was taken, police said.

Utensils in the kitchen were also scattered about with nothing taken.

A screen was pulled off of Highland Presbyterian Church on Wellerman Road, but the person or persons responsible were unable to enter the building.

West Monroe detectives said that the incidents were believed to be the work of juveniles.

BEFRIENDS RHINOCEROS

DUNDEE, Scotland (AP) — Herbert V. Bonar, a wealthy jute processor, has a soft spot in his heart for the rhinoceros. He read that rhinos were dying of thirst because of a drought in Kenya's Tsavo National Park and sent a $28,000 check to government authorities. In return he was told that the money would be used to start work on a pipeline to bring water to the park.

Mrs. Ella Brown Dies Saturday

Funeral services will be held today for Mrs. Ella Brown, 81 who died at her residence at 412 Jackson St., West Monroe Saturday morning after a long illness.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the First Assembly of God Church in West Wall and E. L. Tanner officiating. Burial will be in Hasley Cemetery under the direction of Kilpatrick's Funeral Home in West Monroe.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. C. L. Brown, West Monroe; one son, Ollie D. Brown, West Monroe; and three grandchildren.

Serving as pallbearers will be W. P. Dean, E. J. Williams, C. P. Holloway, Curtis Taylor, George McClendon and Tommy Odom.

Thefts Reported Here Saturday

Two thefts were reported by Monroe police yesterday.

A chain saw belonging to M. S. Joiner, 912 St. John, was stolen from the back of a pickup truck on 308 8th St.

The saw was valued at approximately $175.

Frank Walker, 820 Louisville, registered a complaint that a 55 gallon drum of grease had been stolen from his place of business. He said that the theft of grease has happened many times before.

Anti-Castro Forces Again In Strength

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Miami Herald says an estimated 2,000 to 4,000 Cuban rebels now are operating in mountain areas of Cuba against the regime of Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

The newspaper said the figures resulted from a poll of its sources in Cuba and Washington. And it said the anti-Castro forces now are stronger than Castro's guerrillas were at the same comparative stage of development.

Castro, however, the Herald said, has built up a powerful military machine and is in much better shape to cope with a revolt than was Fulgencio Batista, whose regime Castro toppled in 1959.

This is how the Herald sizes up rebel strength in Cuba:

The rebels are receiving adequate supplies of arms and food, some by air drops from planes based in the Caribbean. But their activity is poorly coordinated.

Guerrillas operate in bands, some numbering as few as 200. A few bands work together but there is no over-all coordination and no central leadership.

Rebel forces have been growing steadily for several months, in the cities and the hills, in proportion to Castro's loss of prestige and the increasing opposition of the Roman Catholic Church to his dictatorship.

However, Castro still is popular with the bulk of Cuba's peasants.

Despite the lack of unity, the rebels have been effective enough to tie up large segments of Castro's militia, which numbers 200,000 well-equipped men and women.

Fires Reported; Damages Slight

Two fires were reported in Monroe yesterday, neither causing much damage.

Fields Ladies Ready to Wear store, suffering in the aftermath of a flooding last week, had a small fire in the fluorescent lighting system. Fire department officials said that a faulty transformer was the cause of the fire.

The transformer was thought to have gone bad from the drenching it received last week when a water pipe in the store burst and seeped through two floors of the store.

A hamper of shop towels caught on fire about 1:45 a.m. yesterday in the Monroe Linen building. Fire officials declined to comment on how the fire started. No one was in the building at the time.

The fires was extinguished before any extensive damage was done.

Fires, Traffic Accidents Take Tennessee Toll

NASHVILLE (UPI) — Tennessee pushed well into its worst weekend of the year with at least 12 persons dead in fire and traffic accidents Friday and Saturday.

Six persons were killed in two traffic mishaps Friday and Saturday with a bus crash, fatal to three, blamed on the weather.

Three persons were killed Saturday in a two-car head-on collision near Dickson and two others injured. The accident followed a bus crash Friday which took the lives of three persons and injured nine others.

The bus crash near Woodbury came when a gust of wind lifted a bus off the road and it plunged down an embankment and overturned.

The dead in the crash near Dickson were Norman Herndon, 20, of Eva, Billy Ray Spann, 19, of Charlotte, and R.H. Wells, 57, of Charlotte.

Killed in the bus crash were Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Stewart of Rt. 3, Sparta, and Robert C. White, 44, of Burlington, N.C.

Another mishap came Saturday when Mrs. Robert Kane, 60, of Nashville was burned to death in her home. Her invalid husband and a male nurse escaped the blaze Two children died in a fire at Maryville Friday. The victims were Connie Ruth Hammon, 20-months and her sister, Sherrie, eight-months.

Eighteen-year-old Fitzhugh Lee Logan of Murfreesboro died Saturday of injuries suffered in a three-car crash near Smyrna Friday night.

Quiz Negroes After Shooting

WINNFIELD (Special) — Sheriff R. S. Jordan, city and state police were questioning a group of Negroes here Saturday night following a shooting spree over a squabble in a card game in the Brick Yard Quarters here about 3 p.m. Saturday.

Jordan said that Jimmy Jones was being questioned closely in connection with the shooting of another Negro identified as Oak Tree Jackson who was injured in the right leg.

Both Negroes were in their 30's.

Lawmen were attempting to round up the entire group involved in the game and said they had six detained in the sheriff's office for questioning and were expecting to bring in more.

Monroyan Booked In Forgery Case

A 32-year-old local man was booked by Monroe police yesterday for allegedly forging checks.

He was identified as James H. Mason, 505 Grammont St. Mason was transferred to the parish jail to await trial.

AFTER SNOWSTORM

New York City Strangely Quiet

NEW YORK (AP)—The big city was strangely quiet Saturday night, and almost motionless, beneath its mantle of white.

The avalanche of snow stopped before sunset, but the 24-hour downfall left New York in a sort of suspended animation.

Usually crowded avenues were a chill desert.

Times Square, the snow sparkling under the cascade of lights, was like an abandoned fairyland.

No horns blew. No traffic cop whistles shrilled. A stillness held the city.

Use of private cars was banned, not that they could make much progress anyhow in the snow-choked streets.

But it left the ordinarily congested thoroughfares in eerie tranquility and ghostly hue.

Bus service also was drastically reduced, and some lines shut down completely.

What few moved crawled along behind snowplows.

Up and down the lighted avenues, scarcely anything else moved.

Occasional pedestrians, lonely, black figures against the ubiquitous white, trudged through the drifts.

The 17-inch snowfall was the greatest accumulation for any 24-hour period of February since measuring of snow began here in 1869, and the biggest of the winter.

It came on top of a six-week series of snows, including 15.2 inches last Dec. 11 and 12.

However, the city's biggest, fastest snow on record still remained the 28 inches set in the storm of Dec. 26-27, 1947. In that one, 26.4 inches of it fell in 24 hours.

Saturday's fall blacked out the city's normal activities.

Most stores shut their doors.

Milk and other delivery trucks quit running.

Housewives quickly exhausted the supply of milk at scattered still-operating delicatessens, and resorted to use of canned milk for their young.

Sidewalks were boggy and deep.

Pedestrians slipped, sprawled and fell.

Isolated sounds and voices carried with clear-cut resonance through the sharp, still air.

Most subways still ran, but commuter and other trains were uncertain.

Many a suburban dweller sought a hotel room, telephoning his wife he couldn't make it home.

In sidestreet bars, little groups gathered at their drinks, wondering at the curious calm without.

Education Board Rules Apparel Up To Teachers

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Texas Board of Education held Saturday that the state education commissioner has no authority over the apparel worn by public school teachers.

The ruling was made in a case involving a school in the southern Texas town of Bremond where the school board leased a Catholic school building and hired four nuns and three Protestants as teachers.

Seventeen Protestants contested the board's action, claiming it violated constitutional guarantees of church-state separation.

The group carried its case to the state board after the education commissioner, J. W. Edgar, held he had no authority to insist that nuns wear nonecclesiastical clothing.

The state board also agreed with the commissioner that he had no power to prevent the Bremond School District from leasing a Catholic school building for public school use.

One of the contestants, Dr. E. S. James, editor of the Baptist Standard, said the board's ruling will be appealed.

R. E. Hammett Dies Saturday

Robert Eugene Hammett, 88, died in a local hospital Saturday night.

Funeral services, under the direction of Mulhearn Funeral Home, will be held in Natchitoches. The time will be announced later.

Mr. Hammett, in Monroe for a short time, was a lifelong resident of Natchitoches Parish He will be buried in the Fern Park Cemetery in Natchitoches.

Survivors include six daughters, Mrs. Orie Allums, Long View, Tex., Mrs. Frances Manning, Monroe, Mrs. Olive Broussard, Arcadia, Mrs. A. E. Brown, Natchitoches, Mrs. R. M. Ballard Sr., West Monroe, and Mrs. Ora Johnson, DeRidder; two sons, E. P. Hammett Sr., Pascagoula, Miss., and L. G. Hammett Sr., Groves, Tex.; and numerous grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Four Booked For Drunken Driving

Four persons were booked in the Twin Cities yesterday for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating beverages.

Monroe police booked Terry W. Owens, 22, route one, Box 208½, West Monroe; Earl Lee, 47, c-o Star Motel; and Samuel Henderson Jr., 24-year-old Negro, 602 Reed St.

Additional charges were lodged against Lee for reckless driving and Henderson for possession of an illegal weapon. The illegal weapon was said to be a brick.

West Monroe police cited Gerrey Tatum, 42, Negro for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and not possessing a driver's license.

Radio Isn't Dead

NEW YORK (UPI) — The total number of radio sets owned by Americans in 1960 jumped 98 per cent over 1949, a recent study by Radio Advertising Bureau, Inc. noted.

Christmas All Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — The belief that Americans saved 1.8 billion in Christmas clubs last year to defray yuletide expenses is largely humbug.

According to a leading Christmas club operator, 81 cents of every dollar saved went for Christmas purchases. Of the balance, 10 cents went for taxes, seven cents for year-end bills, two cents for miscellaneous items — and 81 cents for regular savings and investments.

Police Believe Sister Of JFK Avoiding Them

NEW YORK (UPI)—A police official charged Saturday night that Mrs. Patricia Kennedy Lawford, sister of the President, is avoiding city detectives who want her to sign a burglary complaint needed to prosecute an alleged gang of international hotel thieves.

"She certainly knows we are looking for her," said detective chief James Walsh of the Manhattan south district. "But she doesn't want to see us."

Mrs. Lawford, wife of actor Peter Lawford, was known to be in New York, waiting for the weather to clear so that she may make a planned flight to Zurich, Switzerland. However, Walsh said his detectives so far had been unable to trace her whereabouts.

"She is registered at the Park Lane Hotel, but she is not staying there," Walsh said. "We've been looking for her here for the past two days."

The police department's interest in the Lawfords stems from the fact that the couple was involved in a hotel robbery at the plush Savoy Hilton here the weekend before the presidential inauguration in Washington.

The crime—in which $31,000 in jewels and cash was stolen from their 16th floor suite—was never reported to city authorities, presumably out of a desire to avoid publicity.

Guerrillas operate in bands, some numbering as few as 200. A few bands work together but there is no over-all coordination and no central leadership.

Rebel forces have been growing steadily for several months, in the cities and the hills, in proportion to Castro's loss of prestige and the increasing opposition of the Roman Catholic Church to his dictatorship.

However, Castro still is popular with the bulk of Cuba's peasants.

Despite the lack of unity, the rebels have been effective enough to tie up large segments of Castro's militia, which numbers 200,000 well-equipped men and women.

Fires Reported; Damages Slight

Two fires were reported in Monroe yesterday, neither causing much damage.

Fields Ladies Ready to Wear store, suffering in the aftermath of a flooding last week, had a small fire in the fluorescent lighting system. Fire department officials said that a faulty transformer was the cause of the fire.

The transformer was thought to have gone bad from the drenching it received last week when a water pipe in the store burst and seeped through two floors of the store.

A hamper of shop towels caught on fire about 1:45 a.m. yesterday in the Monroe Linen building. Fire officials declined to comment on how the fire started. No one was in the building at the time.

The fires was extinguished before any extensive damage was done.

Fires, Traffic Accidents Take Tennessee Toll

NASHVILLE (UPI) — Tennessee pushed well into its worst weekend of the year with at least 12 persons dead in fire and traffic accidents Friday and Saturday.

Six persons were killed in two traffic mishaps Friday and Saturday with a bus crash, fatal to three, blamed on the weather.

Three persons were killed Saturday in a two-car head-on collision near Dickson and two others injured. The accident followed a bus crash Friday which took the lives of three persons and injured nine others.

The bus crash near Woodbury came when a gust of wind lifted a bus off the road and it plunged down an embankment and overturned.

The dead in the crash near Dickson were Norman Herndon, 29, of Eva, Billy Ray Soann, 19, of Charlotte, and R.H. Wells, 57, of Charlotte.

Killed in the bus crash were Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Stewart of Rt. 3, Sparta, and Robert C. White, 44, of Burlington, N.C.

Another mishap came Saturday when Mrs. Robert Kane, 60, of Nashville was burned to death in her home. Her invalid husband and a male nurse escaped the blaze Two children died in a fire at Maryville Friday. The victims were Connie Ruth Hammon, 20-months and her sister, Sherrie, eight-months.

Eighteen-year-old Fitzhugh Lee Logan of Murfreesboro died Saturday of injuries suffered in a three-car crash near Smyrna Friday night.

Quiz Negroes After Shooting

WINNFIELD (Special) — Sheriff R. S. Jordan, city and state police were questioning a group of Negroes here Saturday night following a shooting spree over a squabble in a card game in the Brick Yard Quarters here about 3 p.m. Saturday.

Jordan said that Jimmy Jones was being questioned closely in connection with the shooting of another Negro identified as Oak Tree Jackson who was injured in the right leg.

Both Negroes were in their 30's.

Lawmen were attempting to round up the entire group involved in the game and said they had six detained in the sheriff's office for questioning and were expecting to bring in more.

AFTER SNOWSTORM

New York City Strangely Quiet

NEW YORK (AP)—The big city was strangely quiet Saturday night, and almost motionless, beneath its mantle of white.

The avalanche of snow stopped before sunset, but the 24-hour downfall left New York in a sort of suspended animation.

Usually crowded avenues were a chill desert.

Times Square, the snow sparkling under the cascade of lights, was like an abandoned fairyland.

No horns blew. No traffic cop whistles shrilled. A stillness held the city.

Use of private cars was banned, not that they could make much progress anyhow in the snow-choked streets.

But it left the ordinarily congested thoroughfares in eerie tranquility and ghostly hue.

Bus service also was drastically reduced, and some lines shut down completely.

What few moved crawled along behind snowplows.

Up and down the lighted avenues, scarcely anything else moved.

Occasional pedestrians, lonely, black figures against the ubiquitous white, trudged through the drifts.

The 17-inch snowfall was the greatest accumulation for any 24-hour period of February since measuring of snow began here in 1869, and the biggest of the winter.

It came on top of a six-week series of snows, including 15.2 inches last Dec. 11 and 12.

However, the city's biggest, fastest snow on record still remained the 23 inches set in the storm of Dec. 26-27, 1947. In that one, 26.4 inches of it fell in 24 hours.

Saturday's fall blacked out the city's normal activities.

Most stores shut their doors.

Milk and other delivery trucks quit running.

Housewives quickly exhausted the supply of milk at scattered still-operating delicatessens, and resorted to use of canned milk for their young.

Sidewalks were boggy and deep. Pedestrians slipped, sprawled and fell.

Isolated sounds and voices carried with clear-cut resonance through the sharp, still air.

Most subways still ran, but commuter and other trains were uncertain.

Many a suburban dweller sought a hotel room, telephoning his wife he couldn't make it home.

In sidestreet bars, little groups gathered at their drinks, wondering at the curious calm without.

Education Board Rules Apparel Up To Teachers

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Texas Board of Education held Saturday that the state education commissioner has no authority over the apparel worn by public school-teachers.

The ruling was made in a case involving a school in the southern Texas town of Bremond where the school board leased a Catholic school building and hired four nuns and three Protestants as teachers.

Seventeen Protestants contested the board's action, claiming it violated constitutional guarantees of church-state separation.

The group carried its case to the state board after the education commissioner, J. W. Edgar, held he had no authority to insist that nuns wear nonecclesiastical clothing.

The state board also agreed with the commissioner that he had no power to prevent the Bremond School District from leasing a Catholic school building for public school use.

One of the contestants, Dr. E. S. James, editor of the Baptist Standard, said the board's ruling will be appealed.

R. E. Hammett Dies Saturday

Robert Eugene Hammett, 85, died in a local hospital Saturday night.

Funeral services, under the direction of Mulhearn Funeral Home, will be held in Natchitoches. The time will be announced later.

Mr. Hammett, in Monroe for a short time, was a lifelong resident of Natchitoches Parish He will be buried in the Fern Park Cemetery in Natchitoches.

Survivors include six daughters, Mrs. Orie Allums, Long View, Tex., Mrs. Frances Manning, Monroe, Mrs. Olive Breazeale, Arcadia, Mrs. A. E. Brown, Natchitoches, Mrs. R. M. Ballard Sr., West Monroe, and Mrs. Ora Johnson, DeRidder; two sons, E. P. Hammett Sr., Pascagoula, Miss., and L. G. Hammett Sr., Groves, Tex.; and numerous grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Four Booked For Drunken Driving

Four persons were booked in the Twin Cities yesterday for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating beverages.

Monroe police booked Terry W. Owens, 22, route one, Box 206½, West Monroe; Earl Lee, 47, c-o Star Motel; and Samuel Henderson Jr., 34-year-old Negro, 603 Reed St.

Additional charges were lodged against Lee for reckless driving and Henderson for possession of an illegal weapon. The illegal weapon was said to be a brick.

West Monroe police cited Gerrey Tatum, 42, Negro for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and not possessing a driver's license.

Radio Isn't Dead

NEW YORK (UPI) — The total number of radio sets owned by Americans in 1960 jumped 98 per cent over 1949, a recent study by Radio Advertising Bureau, Inc. noted.

Christmas All Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — The belief that Americans saved 1.5 billion in Christmas clubs last year to defray yuletide expenses is largely humbug.

According to a leading Christmas club operator, 31 cents of every dollar saved went for Christmas purchases. Of the balance, 10 cents went for taxes, seven cents for year-end bills, two cents for miscellaneous items — and 51 cents for regular savings and investments.

Police Believe Sister Of JFK Avoiding Them

NEW YORK (UPI)—A police official charged Saturday night that Mrs. Patricia Kennedy Lawford, sister of the President, is avoiding city detectives who want her to sign a burglarly complaint needed to prosecute an alleged gang of international hotel thieves.

"She certainly knows we are looking for her," said detective chief James Walsh of the Manhattan south district. "But she doesn't want to see us."

Mrs. Lawford, wife of actor Peter Lawford, was known to be in New York, waiting for the weather to clear so that she may make a planned flight to Zurich, Switzerland. However, Walsh said his detectives so far had been unable to trace her whereabouts.

"She is registered at the Park Lane Hotel, but she is not staying there," Walsh said. "We've been looking for her here for the past two days."

The police department's interest in the Lawfords stems from the fact that the couple was involved in a hotel robbery at the plush Savoy Hilton here the weekend before the presidential inauguration in Washington.

The crime—in which $31,000 in jewels and cash was stolen from their 16th floor suite—was never reported to city authorities, presumably out of a desire to avoid publicity.

N.O. INTEGRATION

Davis, Morrison Urged To Unite

By JAMES McLEAN

BATON ROUGE (AP)—A segregation leader said Saturday Gov. Jimmie H. Davis and Mayor deLesseps Morrison should put aside political rivalry and join forces to choke off school integration in New Orleans.

"I can't see the need for any additional special session legislative steps now," said former state Sen. William Rainach, longtime voice of Louisiana segregation.

"The next steps should be executive and not legislative," he suggested. "The legislature can only pass laws and no new laws are needed at this time."

Federal courts in New Orleans knocked down legislative efforts as fast as they were voted in the first three special sessions Gov. Davis called.

Now, while awaiting developments, a fourth special session is in recess, with no indication it will return until Feb. 13 for final adjournment next day. Some Davis leaders recently voiced what they said was an urgency for new legislation to meet the threatened spread of school integration to East Baton Rouge and St. Helena parishes.

Rainach broke politically with Davis after supporting him in Davis's defeat of the New Orleans mayor in last year's Democratic runoff for governor.

Rainach, former chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation, said in an interview:

"If Louisiana, through Gov. Davis and Mayor Morrison and the Orleans Parish School Board, could just combine forces—their political weight could force the federal government to go slow.

"They should put aside their political differences and use the power of their offices for the benefit of the people."

Rainach, in Homer, his hometown, said he wanted to emphasize, "as Gov. Davis and his legislative advisers have emphasized repeatedly, the federal courts have been acting illegally in forcing public school integration. The courts have been acting politically instead of legally.

"These federal courts are yielding to political pressure against the South, and will render decisions for the South only when the South itself applies a superior kind of pressure."

Federal judges were swift with restraining orders when lawmakers six times attempted to seize control of New Orleans schools to strengthen their legal fight.

In the earlier sessions, Davis floor leaders blamed Morrison for local resistance against legislative will.

But New Orleans lawmakers countered the state had no business trying to take away a school board elected by the people of New Orleans.

Rainach said, "The New Orleans mayor can pool the power of his office with that of the governor and restore segregation in New Orleans schools and help postpone integration indefinitely in East Baton Rouge and St. Helena parishes."

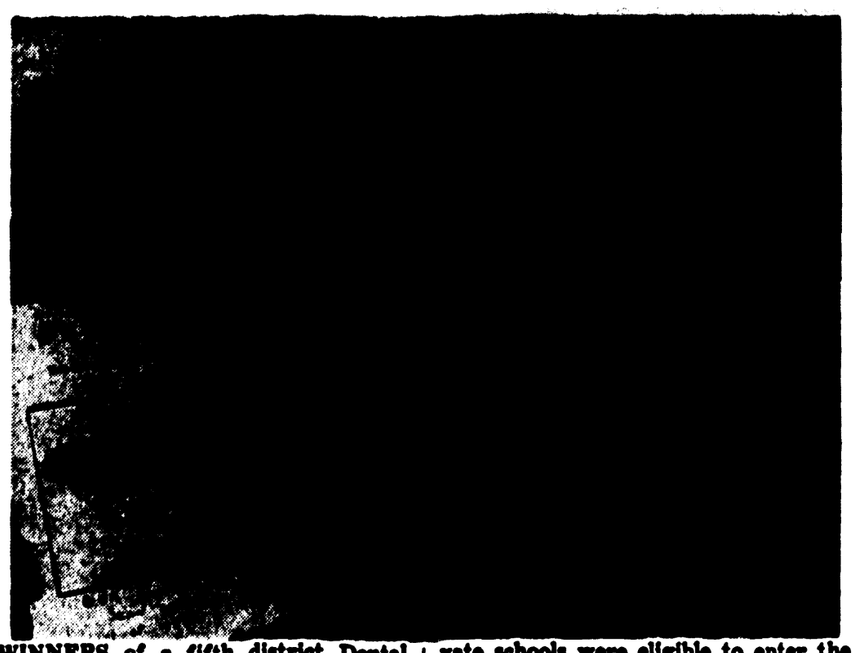
In Rainach's view, the political power of these two offices applied jointly, "not in opposition to each other, could make the federal position untenable. The Orleans school board should resign. All this would provide a triple play against federal government."

Rainach continued:

"First, it would bring joint state and local power into play.

"Second, it would release and reinforce citizen pressure against private integration groups.

"Third, it would make difficult any application of the federal court contempt powers."



WINNERS of a fifth district Dental Health Education Poster Contest were announced yesterday on the eve of "National Children's Dental Health Week," sponsored in this area by the fifth district auxiliary. All eighth grade students from public, parochial and private schools were eligible to enter the poster contest. Winners were, left to right: Renie Potier, St. Paschals, first place; Thomas A. Kemp, St. Paschals, second place, and Rayford Viola, Ouachita Junior High, third. (Staff photo by John Fogleman)

Humphrey Asks 'Peace Agency'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D - Minn., urged President Kennedy Saturday to send Congress either legislation or an executive reorganization plan to set up a "peace agency" in the State Department for cohesive disarmament planning.

Humphrey, the Senate's assistant Democratic leader and chairman of the disarmament subcommittee, said he was "pleased to note that the administration is going to beef up" the present small organization working on disarmament planning. And, he said in an interview, "I am hopeful the President will propose either a bill or a reorganization plan."

BORN IN JUNGLE

Space Chimp Given Extensive Training

By HAROLD R. WILLIAMS

HOLLOMAN AIR FORCE BASE, N.M. (AP) — When the 38-pound three-year-old chimpanzee was placed in the space capsule atop the sleek Redstone missile last Tuesday it was the culmination of training that had lasted almost his entire life.

Ham, named for the first three letters of Holloman Aero Medical Field Laboratory where he was trained, was born March, 1958, in the Cameroon in West Africa.

He was brought to Holloman when a few months old from the Miami, Fla., rare bird farm. All of the chimpanzees, 35 including Ham, were born in the jungles of Arica, captured by animal traders, sent to animal farms in the United States, and then sold to the government. One was donated by the San Diego Zoo.

Ham traveled to Cape Canaveral a few weeks ago along with five of his highly trained comrades who were scheduled for possible use in this first chimpanzee flight in space. Ham was selected only the night before the firing.

Like all the chimps being used in space biology research, Ham got his name from his handlers. His formal identification is a registered serial number, No. 65, which shows on all his records.

The night before the firing, Ham lived up to his title of "chimponaut". His physical condition was superb and he was given the nod to be the first chimpanzee in space.

For Ham it all started about 2½ years ago.

When he arrived at Holloman, like all the chimps in the space program, he was taken for an airplane ride. He passed, he didn't get airsick and he liked flying.

Later he was taken for more rides, he liked flying more with each flight. If he had gotten sick, or not liked flying, he would have been washed out.

Next it was isolation for 60 days. There he got adjusted to the pens and the food.

The training starts after isolation. His day starts at 7:30 a.m. He gets a light breakfast of prepared "chimp chow" and a grapefruit or orange.

After breakfast, the chimps are taken to an examination room for a thorough medical checkup.

Daily clinical charts are kept for each animal. If weight is off normal or if body temperature is ovre 101 degrees, the chimp is sent to a hospital for further examination and treatment.

At 8:30 a.m., the chimps are placed in their nylon space-suit vests and they go through response tests. The more advanced chimps are taken by a heated panel truck to another area on the base.

This is the most important part of the chimponaut's life. If he responds and pushes the right button, he is given a pellet of food, or a cool drink or some other type of reward. The training gets more and more complex.

Response tests are measured in series, some as high as 19 straight. The chimp must get all right or he receives a slight electric shock through the soles of his feet.

When he comes back to the base, usually at 3:30 p.m., he is given another medical check and then it is time for dinner. After dinner he can do what ever he wants.

Plane With 26 Aboard Feared To Have Crashed

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — A missing Indonesian DC3 airliner with 26 persons aboard was feared today to have crashed into the Java Sea in the nation's second air tragedy in 12 days.

The biggest air - sea search in Indonesia's history was begun after eyewitnesses aboard the steamship Batanghari reported seeing an aircraft crash near Masalimbe Island, 80 miles off the South Borneo coast.

The missing Garuda Indonesia Airways plane vanished shortly before noon Friday on a 300-mile flight over the cloud-covered Java Sea and the dense jungles of East Java.

Airlines officials said the DC3 carried 21 passengers and five crewmembers. Three of the passengers were believed to be foreigners. Their names were listed as Prof. and Mrs. Stromburg and S. De Poere but their nationality was not immediately known.

Navy Contracts For Five More Polaris Subs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy has signed contracts for the construction of five more Polaris submarines—in line with President Kennedy's order to step up this phase of the ballistic missile program.

This word was given Saturday to members of Congress.

The five new submarines will add to the 14 which have been built or are under construction.

Contracts for construction of two submarines went to the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp. in Groton, Conn.

Contracts for another two have been signed with the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., at Newport News, Va.

The fifth has been assigned for construction by the Mare Island Naval Shipyard in San Francisco Bay.

Two Polaris submarines, the George Washington and Patrick Henry, have joined the fleet.

Another, the Robert E. Lee, has completed missile-firing tests and is in the yard for final check before going into operational status.

By the end of the calendar year, the Navy expects about eight Polaris submarines to be ready.

NOT SERIOUS YET

Recession Cuts State Revenues

BATON ROUGE (AP)—The national recession struck Louisiana sooner and stronger than expected, but it's too early to tell whether Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' regime can roll with the punch.

State fiscal officers said Saturday bringing the overall budget planning into focus for the 30-day fiscal legislature in May has been stalled until the picture comes clearer.

While the current revenues are off, there is no indication that the state's financial affairs for the next fiscal year are in danger.

Louisiana is a vigorous industrial, timber, oil and tourist state.

And President Kennedy's efforts to kick the national economy into life will help Louisiana if they work.

The fiscal legislature by law can't raise taxes, and the administration, in a coalition with state Supt. Shelby M. Jackson and ardent segregationists, has just failed in efforts to raise sales taxes $26 million in the name of school segregation.

Earlier this week, Gov. Davis said in a Monroe speech preservation of state sovereignty and prevention of further federal encroachment is the biggest problem facing the state.

If that is so, then state finances aren't the biggest problem according to his view. In a news conference, Davis said he hopes Louisiana can get by next fiscal year without new taxes.

So far, there is no hint that a new tax measure will be attempted in the current fourth special session Davis summoned to resist federal school integration commands.

It is in recess, and Davis twice has emphasized he has no plans now to call a fifth standby session.

All state agencies are putting together their budgets, for submission to James S. Reily, the governor's top financial chief, and budget officer Homer Russell.

Overall budget planning in preparation for the May legislature is in a vacuum right now, because of the downward curve in state revenues—not enough to really hurt yet, though.

The top fiscal officers have to take figures from all state agencies, then estimate next year's revenues and hammer the two approaches into a balanced budget.

Because the smaller state agencies for three straight years—under former Gov. Earl K. Long and Gov. Davis—have been held to minimum operations to keep state expenses down, some initial budgets submitted this time are up 25 to 100 per cent.

Those seeking such great jumps "are just dreaming," one of the fiscal officers said.

The current state budget is $867 million. It was not raised too much, except for federal aid, above the previous year's spending.

Right now, state revenue department collections are running about $10 million behind, which isn't much to get upset about in a $867-million budget.

But if that $10 million shortage stands until the end of this fiscal year June 30, it will represent a $20-million problem in the new fiscal year budget because the current $10-million deficit would have to be made up.

Right now that $10 million is just a drop in the bucket. But it could grow if things don't improve soon.

Two big factors will be watched by the fiscal officers, which will help them start planning for the May legislature.

One is the public education budget, which the state board of education is scheduled to consider Feb. 13. It requires the largest slice of state tax money.

The other is the scheduled April 20 leasing of oil and gas tracts by the state mineral board. That's a long wait from the previous leasing in September, when $8 million was collected.

The April 20 session will have to provide at least $14 million to fill the $22 million budget estimate for this year from that source, or the state will be even deeper in a fiscal hole.

State government in Louisiana is the biggest business in the state. That's one reason politics is so important, so many businesses directly or indirectly are involved.

BATON ROUGE (AP)—A segregation leader said Saturday Gov. Jimmie H. Davis and Mayor deLesseps Morrison should put aside political rivalry and join forces to choke off school integration in New Orleans.

"I can't see the need for any additional special session legislative steps now," said former state Sen. William Rainach, longtime voice of Louisiana segregation.

"The next steps should be executive and not legislative," he suggested. "The legislature can only pass laws and no new laws are needed at this time."

Federal courts in New Orleans knocked down legislative efforts as fast as they were voted in the first three special sessions Gov. Davis called.

Now, while awaiting developments, a fourth special session is in recess, with no indication it will return until Feb. 13 for final adjournment next day. Some Davis leaders recently voiced what they said was an urgency for new legislation to meet the threatened spread of school integration to East Baton Rouge and St. Helena parishes.

Rainach broke politically with Davis after supporting him in Davis's defeat of the New Orleans mayor in last year's Democratic runoff for governor.

Rainach, former chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation, said in an interview:

"If Louisiana, through Gov. Davis and Mayor Morrison and the Orleans Parish School Board, could just combine forces—their political weight could force the federal government to go slow.

"They should put aside their political differences and use the power of their offices for the benefit of the people."

Rainach, in Homer, his hometown, said he wanted to emphasize, "as Gov. Davis and his legislative advisers have emphasized repeatedly, the federal courts have been acting illegally in forcing public school integration. The courts have been acting politically instead of legally.

"These federal courts are yielding to political pressure against the South, and will render decisions for the South only when the South itself applies a superior kind of pressure."

Federal judges were swift with restraining orders when lawmakers six times attempted to seize control of New Orleans schools to strengthen their legal fight.

In the earlier sessions, Davis floor leaders blamed Morrison for local resistance against legislative will.

But New Orleans lawmakers countered the state had no business trying to take away a school board elected by the people of New Orleans.

Rainach said, "The New Orleans mayor can pool the power of his office with that of the governor and restore segregation in New Orleans schools and help postpone integration indefinitely in East Baton Rouge and St. Helena parishes."

In Rainach's view, the political power of these two offices applied jointly, "not in opposition to each other, could make the federal position untenable. The Orleans school board should resign. All this would provide a triple play against federal government."

Rainach continued:

"First, it would bring joint state and local power into play.

"Second, it would release and reinforce citizen pressure against private integration groups.

"Third, it would make difficult any application of the federal court contempt powers."

WINNERS of a fifth district Dental Health Education Poster Contest were announced yesterday on the eve of "National Children's Dental Health Week," sponsored in this area by the fifth district auxiliary. All eighth grade students from public, parochial and private schools were eligible to enter the poster contest. Winners were, left to right: Renie Potier, St. Paschals, first place; Thomas A. Kemp, St. Paschals, second place, and Rayford Viola, Ouachita Junior High, third. (Staff photo by John Fogleman)

Humphrey Asks 'Peace Agency'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D - Minn., urged President Kennedy Saturday to send Congress either legislation or an executive reorganization plan to set up a "peace agency" in the State Department for cohesive disarmament planning.

Humphrey, the Senate's assistant Democratic leader and chairman of the disarmament subcommittee, said he was "pleased to note that the administration is going to beef up" the present small organization working on disarmament planning. And, he said in an interview, "I am hopeful the President will propose either a bill or a reorganization plan."

BORN IN JUNGLE

Space Chimp Given Extensive Training

By HAROLD R. WILLIAMS

HOLLOMAN AIR FORCE BASE, N.M. (AP) — When the 36-pound three-year-old chimpanzee was placed in the space capsule atop the sleek Redstone missile last Tuesday it was the culmination of training that had lasted almost his entire life.

Ham, named for the first three letters of Holloman Aero Medical Field Laboratory where he was trained, was born March, 1958, in the Cameroon in West Africa.

He was brought to Holloman when a few months old from the Miami, Fla., rare bird farm. All of the chimpanzees, 35 including Ham, were born in the jungles of Arica, captured by animal traders, sent to animal farms in the United States, and then sold to the government. One was donated by the San Diego Zoo.

Ham traveled to Cape Canaveral a few weeks ago along with five of his highly trained comrades who were scheduled for possible use in this first chimpanzee flight in space. Ham was selected only the night before the firing.

Like all the chimps being used in space biology research, Ham got his name from his handlers. His formal identification is a registered serial number, No. 65, which shows on all his records.

The night before the firing, Ham lived up to his title of "chimponaut". His physical condition was superb and he was given the nod to be the first chimpanzee in space.

For Ham it all started about 2½ years ago.

When he arrived at Holloman, like all the chimps in the space program, he was taken for an airplane ride. He passed, he didn't get airsick and he liked flying.

Later he was taken for more rides, he liked flying more with each flight. If he had gotten sick, or not liked flying, he would have been washed out.

Next it was isolation for 60 days. There he got adjusted to the pens and the food.

The training starts after isolation. His day starts at 7:30 a.m. He gets a light breakfast of prepared "chimp chow" and a grapefruit or orange.

After breakfast, the chimps are taken to an examination room for a thorough medical checkup.

Daily clinical charts are kept for each animal. If weight is off normal or if body temperature is ovre 101 degrees, the chimp is sent to a hospital for further examination and treatment.

At 8:30 a.m., the chimps are placed in their nylon space-suit vests and they go through response tests. The more advanced chimps are taken by a heated panel truck to another area on the base.

This is the most important part of the chimponaut's life. If he responds and pushes the right button, he is given a pellet of food, or a cool drink or some other type of reward. The training gets more and more complex.

Response tests are measured in series, some as high as 19 straight. The chimp must get all right or he receives a slight electric shock through the soles of his feet.

When he comes back to the base, usually at 3:30 p.m., he is given another medical check and then it is time for dinner. After dinner he can do what ever he wants.

Plane With 26 Aboard Feared To Have Crashed

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — A missing Indonesian DC3 airliner with 26 persons aboard was feared today to have crashed into the Java Sea in the nation's second air tragedy in 12 days.

The biggest air - sea search in Indonesia's history was begun after eyewitnesses aboard the steamship Batanghari reported seeing an aircraft crash near Masalimbo Island, 80 miles off the South Borneo coast.

The missing Garuda Indonesia Airways plane vanished shortly before noon Friday on a 500-mile flight over the cloud-covered Java Sea and the dense jungles of East Java.

Airlines officials said the DC3 carried 21 passengers and five crewmembers. Three of the passengers were believed to be foreigners. Their names were listed as Prof. and Mrs. Stromburg and S. De Poere but their nationality was not immediately known.

Navy Contracts For Five More Polaris Subs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy has signed contracts for the construction of five more Polaris submarines—in line with President Kennedy's order to step up this phase of the ballistic missile program.

This word was given Saturday to members of Congress.

The five new submarines will add to the 14 which have been built or are under construction.

Contracts for construction of two submarines went to the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp. in Groton, Conn.

Contracts for another two have been signed with the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co.,' at Newport News, Va.

The fifth has been assigned for construction by the Mare Island Naval Shipyard in San Francisco Bay.

Two Polaris submarines, the George Washington and Patrick Henry, have joined the fleet.

Another, the Robert E. Lee, has completed missile-firing tests and is in the yard for final check before going into operational status.

By the end of the calendar year, the Navy expects about eight Polaris submarines to be ready.

NOT SERIOUS YET

Recession Cuts State Revenues

BATON ROUGE (AP)—The national recession struck Louisiana sooner and stronger than expected, but it's too early to tell whether Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' regime can roll with the punch.

State fiscal officers said Saturday bringing the overall budget planning into focus for the 30-day fiscal legislature in May has been stalled until the picture comes clearer.

While the current revenues are off, there is no indication that the state's financial affairs for the next fiscal year are in danger.

Louisiana is a vigorous industrial, timber, oil and tourist state.

And President Kennedy's efforts to kick the national economy into life will help Louisiana if they work.

The fiscal legislature by law can't raise taxes, and the administration, in a coalition with state Supt. Shelby M. Jackson and ardent segregationists, has just failed in efforts to raise sales taxes $28 million in the name of school segregation.

Earlier this week, Gov. Davis said in a Monroe speech preservation of state sovereignty and prevention of further federal encroachment is the biggest problem facing the state.

If that is so, then state finances aren't the biggest problem according to his view. In a news conference, Davis said he hopes Louisiana can get by next fiscal year without new taxes.

So far, there is no hint that a new tax measure will be attempted in the current fourth special session Davis summoned to resist federal school integration commands.

It is in recess, and Davis twice has emphasized he has no plans now to call a fifth standby session.

All state agencies are putting together their budgets, for submission to James S. Reily, the governor's top financial chief, and budget officer Homer Russell.

Overall budget planning in preparation for the May legislature is in a vacuum right now, because of the downward curve in state revenues—not enough to really hurt yet, though.

The top fiscal officers have to take figures from all state agencies, then estimate next year's revenues and hammer the two approaches into a balanced budget.

Because the smaller state agencies for three straight years—under former Gov. Earl K. Long and Gov. Davis—have been held to minimum operations to keep state expenses down, some initial budgets submitted this time are up 25 to 100 per cent.

Those seeking such great jumps "are just dreaming," one of the fiscal officers said.

The current state budget is $867 million. It was not raised too much, except for federal aid, above the previous year's spending.

Right now, state revenue department collections are running about $10 million behind, which isn't much to get upset about in a $867-million budget.

But if that $10 million shortage stands until the end of this fiscal year June 30, it will represent a $20-million problem in the new fiscal year budget because the current $10-million deficit would have to be made up.

Right now that $10 million is just a drop in the bucket. But it could grow if things don't improve soon.

Two big factors will be watched by the fiscal officers, which will help them start planning for the May legislature.

One is the public education budget, which the state board of education is scheduled to consider Feb. 15. It requires the largest slice of state tax money.

The other is the scheduled April 20 leasing of oil and gas tracts by the state mineral board. That's a long wait from the previous leasing in September, when $8 million was collected.

The April 20 session will have to provide at least $14 million to fill the $22 million budget estimate for this year from that source, or the state will be even deeper in a fiscal hole.

State government in Louisiana is the biggest business in the state. That's one reason politics is so important, so many businesses directly or indirectly are involved.

Merchants Here See '61 As Excellent

was "much better" than 1960. February is "going better than expectations," Glaser said.

Herbert Fink, across DeSiard Street, said that 1960 showed "a nice increase" for him over 1959 and that "there is nothing wrong with business here."

Fields women's store had about 13 per cent increase during 1960 over 1959 — a combined increase for their two stores. January this year was up about 16 per cent over last and February is also ahead of last year, Morris Blumenthal said. "There is no reason to be afraid, because we are not in a recession. That's all just a state of mind," he said.

George Moses at Gay's Clothiers said that 1960 was ahead of 1959 at his store by about 10 per cent. January of this year was slightly higher than last year. He thinks business here will be good this year.

MONROE EXCELLENT

J. R. Jeffery Jr., speaking for Gordon's Jewelers, said that his company consider Monroe an excellent business city. The local store ranks among the top 12 in the 30-store chain, according to Jeffery, and is so consistently.

He said his store has no complaints from customers about shopping inconvenience, and he, like other merchants, is happy.

David Silverstein said that his sales improved in 1960 over the previous year. He considered 1959 a good year, too. He said if bad weather hadn't moved in toward the end of the year, 1960 would have been an "extra banner" year.

January of this year, he said, was about the same as last year — very good.

Grover Holloway at Holloway and Thompson said, "There is no gloomy picture here," when asked about recession talk. He said his business so far this year is about even with last year and termed 1960 as a good year.

Jack Masur at the Palace, one of Monroe's downtown department stores, said he is anticipating a big spring business. "We are preparing for an increase," he said. He commented that the economy in Monroe is very stable. Only the snow and ice last month kept it from being a very good month for the Palace, Masur said.

A business in a different vein also expects a good year. Howard Griffin at the Land of Toys said he has added new items and territory and expects a good year—25 to 30 per cent better.

In the furniture line, both Joe Durrett of D & E and Joe and Bill and G. L. (Shorter) Morgan at Trend House expect good years.

Durrett said 1960 was "considerably up" over 1959 and that the overall picture for 1961 is up. He predicts a good business year.

Morgan said he did very good in January at Trend House. His business was slightly above 1960 last month and said he had an "excellent" year in 1960. He said he sees no signs of recession here — that the economy is good.

FIRM DOUBLES

One of the brightest comments on the local business situation came from Joe Wilson at the United Dollar Store. He said that his chain considers Monroe the best city for business in its territory covering Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi, and that business was so good in 1960 that in mid-year the size of the firm was doubled. His store, Wilson said, shows an increase every week.

Chet Rousseau at Montgomery Ward, another of the city's department stores, said that although business during the first three quarters of 1960 was not as good as he would have liked it picked up in the final three months. January and February this year have been very good he said and he could only predict an increase in business.

Another of the very good reports came from Mrs. Pat Nahes at Rhealee Millinery. She said her store showed an increase of between 15 and 20 per cent in 1960 over the previus year. So far this year, she said, that upward trend is holding true. "Traffic is heavy now and if the weather will give us a break business will be just what we want."

Her crystal ball showed no signs of recession.

The Taggery's business in 1960 was about the same as 1959, described as a peak year, according to Bud Album. "There is no need to get frantic about economic conditions. Things will be good in 1961."

Fred Beckett at Penney's, another department store, felt business was not quite as good in 1960 as in 1959. But he attributed it to bad weather — not bad business — and said 1961 will be a good year.

BRIGHT SPOT

Another different kind of business — real estate — was praised highly by Gilbert Feuik. "Monroe is the bright spot on the real estate map in Louisiana," he said. Locally, real estate transactions showed a plus sign during every month while other areas such as New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Lake Charles showed minus gains.

"Many new stores are looking for locations here and many new businesses are being formed here where risk capital is involved," he said. He also pointed out that FHA has not withdrawn lending sources from this area as it has in others. He said the real estate market has remained firm with no slippage of values.

He also said the insurance business is holding steady in this area and ran about the same in 1960 as it did in 1959.

E. L. Carter, manager of Sears, at Sears Shopping Center on Louisville Ave., said that his business has been very good. He expects 1961 to be equally as good as 1960 which he said was good compared to 1959. He predicted that business during the latter part of the year would be better than in the spring. No recession, he said.

Peacocks Jewelers report was even better. They showed a heavy gain last year and January of this year was ahead of last year, according to Ralph Marx.

Pete Haddad said that 1960 was about 20 per cent ahead of 1959 in gross sales at Haddad's Hardware. January of this year showed a seven per cent gain over last year even with business slowed down by weather for the last two weeks. He said there were no signs of recession here and that he expects business to be better this year with improved crops and an expanded building program.

Perry Daniel at Daniel's Appliance and Maple Shop on Louisville said that he is looking forward to a good year and can't see any reason for a recession scare.

FULL WAREHOUSE

Ballard's did such a good year that they opened another store last year. January this year doubled last year's business, pointing to a really bumper year. Mack Ballard said that he doesn't believe there is a recession and that the store has a warehouse full of merchandise to back his convictions up.

And just as everything else is looking up in business, so is the automobile business, according to J. H. (Slim) Scogin at Brown-Rivers-Scogin. He is chairman of the New Car Dealers' Association. He said the 1960 volume was well ahead of 1959 and "we're off to a fast start in 1961." He said the dealers he had talked to expect 1961 to be one of the best for his industry in history.

From a banker's point of view, business has been good in the past and will be better in the future. Conway Cresslend, president of the Central Savings Bank and Trust Co., cited growth and the promise of much more growth for Monroe and West Monroe.

In his glowing account of local economy, Cresslend said:

"Bank growth is considered to be one of the best barometers of business conditions and, as was reported to the Monroe Morning World on January 25th, 1961 was certainly one of the best years in the 55 year history of Central Bank. Our total resources gained over 2½ million of which almost $2 million was reflected in increased deposits. Our average daily deposits for 1960 showed an increase over 1959 and for the first month of 1961 averaged daily deposits are substantially larger than January, 1960.

"We more than doubled the number of stockholders in Central Bank last year and have increased our lending power by 25 per cent in the past two years in order to keep pace with the growth of industry and business in this area.

"Published reports show that all the other banks in Ouachita Parish also had a good year in 1960.

"For our bank, or any other bank for that matter, to be able to cite such positive growth facts for a single year - the community which it serves must have a sound, healthy economy and be growing steadily.

GOOD OUTLOOK

"Looking at the prospects for 1961, let me point out that statistics on the growth of business and industry in the United States which have been recorded rather accurately since 1790, show that in the past 161 years only 13 years have not shown an increase in business. In 148 of those years each year was better than the preceding one.

"Our area has shown a growth rate the past 10 years which is higher than the national average. Therefore, I have confidence that the business and industrial leaders of our area have the know-how and will continue to develop the economic potential of our area.

"I believe 1961 will be exactly what we make it. If we use good judgement, constantly strive to provide more and better service for the public and work to make each day of 1961 better than the day before; then we will have a better year in 1961 than we did in 1960."

R. L. Vanderpool, president of Ouachita National Bank, said he thought the economy here was better than in most places. "We have our weak spots but I am convinced everything will be all right," he said.

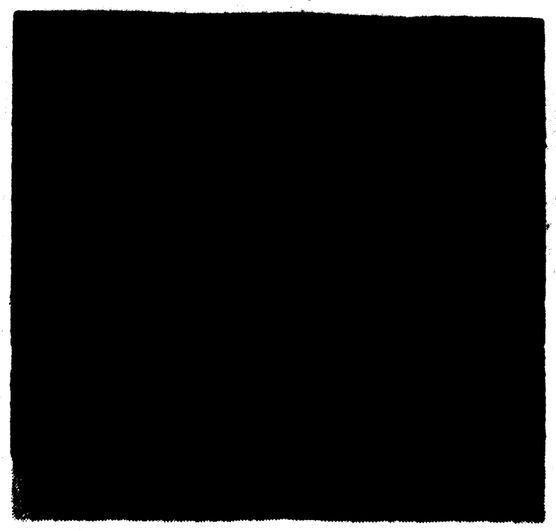
On the west side of the Ouachita River, in West Monroe the picture was the same — all gleam and no gloom.

P. E. Massey at Massey's Economy Auto Supply said he had about a 22 per cent increase for 1960 and that January of this year was about 18 per cent above last January.

He anticipates an "exceptionally" good year. He is hopeful of a 25 per cent increase.

Leon Sutton at West Monroe Firestone Home and Auto Supply Store said his volume was as big in 1960 as in 1959. He believes that 1961 will be a better year.

Wayne Deacon at Deacon and Lolly, a clothing store said that 1960 was ahead of 1959 by a small margin and he expects 1961 to be better. He expects his trade to increase sharply in the spring.



A GIANT TURNIP grown on River Stix farm by G. B. Studdard and son, F. G. Studdard, was delivered to the News-Star—World office Saturday morning. Said Red, the younger Studdard, "This is one we thinned out to make room for the larger ones to grow." This one weighs four pounds and nine ounces, according to a scale at the newspaper. Studdard didn't say how much the "larger" ones weigh. (Staff Photo by John Fogleman)

Raiders Balked By 'Paul Revere'

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — A 16-year-old boy re-enacted the midnight ride of Paul Revere, 1961 style, Friday night and stymied raids by state liquor agents on open saloons until he was jailed for vagrancy.

The lad dashed from bar to bar shouting "The liquor control board is coming."

His warnings were effective—and the liquor agents had not made a single arrest until they jailed the youth as a vagrant. They later arrested five bar operators after the boy was behind jail bars.

Snowdrifts Foil Weather Observer

LAYTON, N.J. (AP) — Alonzo M. De Pue, volunteer weather observer, peered out of his home here Saturday at the small shelter containing his recording instruments 70 feet away.

He knew if he didn't take a temperature reading it would be the first time he had missed. But the snowdrifts were shoulder high. He decided he couldn't make it.

De Pue is 89. He is the state's oldest volunteer observer.

Airliner Lands At Wrong Field

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — A Delta airliner, en route from Dallas to New Orleans, made an unscheduled stop Saturday at Pollock, about 10 miles from its intended stopover at Alexandria's Esler Field.

The Convair 440 carried 38 passengers and three crew.

In Atlanta, a Delta official, Tom Miller, said the pilot mistook the Pollock field, an old World War II landing strip, for Esler. Miller said the pilot was not on instruments.

Because the Federal Aviation Authority forbids planes from taking off from Pollock with passengers, they were bussed to Esler, while the plane flew there.

The flight was delayed about two hours in all.

Health Costs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The public pays $25 billion a year for the concern of its health. This breaks down to $137 a year for every man, woman and child in the nation.

Luncheon

The Fort Miro Chapter of the D.A.R. in Monroe, the Chief Tusquahoma Chapter in West Monroe, and the Abram Morehouse Chapter of Bastrop, are planning the annual luncheon at the Paragon club in Monroe next Saturday at 1 p.m.

Reservations can be made through the hostesses of the clubs named and a large and enthusiastic event is planned.

Among prominent out - of-town guests will be Mrs. James Shackelford, Louisiana State D.A.R. regent and Mrs. Edward D. Schneider, vice president of the D.A.R.

Pineville Man Arrested For Safe Robbery

a.m. Saturday by Bossier City police who spotted his auto.

The exact amount of the contents of the safe, which was stolen from the Monroe office of the State Department of Revenue, at 611 N. Third St., has not yet been determined. C. R. Tidwell Sr., department office manager, said that state auditors from Baton Rouge are enroute to make a complete check. The safe was said to have contained cash, money orders and checks.

The money it contained came primarily from the sale of auto license plates.

Police officials said the burglary occurred sometime after midnight Wednesday.

DOOR FORCED

Kelly said that entrance was gained to the building by forcing a rear door with some kind of tool. The safe was then rolled out into the alley where it apparently was loaded onto a truck and hauled off.

A tire tool that had some paint on it, identical to that on the safe, was found in a waste can about 20 feet from the back door of the revenue office. Officials said that the theft of the safe could have been done in ten minutes.

Miss Emma Rodgers, an employee of the office, discovered the burglary. She told officers that when she opened the office shortly after 7 a.m., she noticed the safe was missing and notified the manager.

The safe stealing is the second such burglary in which the entire safe and its contents have been taken in the past two months. The first occurred when the Bayliere Bowling Alley on Louisville Avenue was relieved of its safe on Christmas Eve night. The safe contained between $1,000 and $1,500.

The police department is still working on this burglary. Officials have turned up the burned safe which was taken in the incident.

Disaster Study In State Slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — A university research team plans to study the psychological effects of recent train wreck which spread deadly chlorine gas through a Louisiana community.

The study, by the University of Pennsylvania's Institute of Cooperative Research, will focus on the reactions of the people exposed to the danger.

In the Jan. 31 accident near New Roads, La., a tank car containing chlorine was ripped open, caused the death of an infant and hospitalized more than 100 persons.

Rep. Overton Brooks, D-La., chairman of the House Committee on Science and Astronautics, disclosed the study Saturday. He said the university had sought the committee's cooperation.

Brooks said the study is part of a continuing program the university is conducting into the psychological and sociological effects of sudden fears and dangers.

Merchants Here See '61 As Excellent

was "much better" than 1959. February is "going better than expectations," Glazer said.

Herbert Fink, across DeSiard Street, said that 1960 showed "a nice increase" for him over 1959 and that "there is nothing wrong with business here."

Fields women's store had about 13 per cent increase during 1960 over 1959 — a combined increase for their two stores. January this year was up about 18 per cent over last and February is also ahead of last year, Morris Blumenthal said. "There is no reason to be afraid, because we are not in a recession. That's all just a state of mind," he said.

George Moses at Gay's Clothiers said that 1960 was ahead of 1959 at his store by about 10 per cent. January of this year was slightly higher than last year. He thinks business here will be good this year.

MONROE EXCELLENT

J. R. Jeffery Jr., speaking for Gordon's Jewelers, said that his company consider Monroe an excellent business city. The local store ranks among the top 12 in the 80-store chain, according to Jeffery, and is so consistently.

He said his store has no complaints from customers about shopping inconvenience, and he, like other merchants, is happy.

David Silverstein said that his sales improved in 1960 over the previous year. He considered 1959 a good year, too. He said if bad weather hadn't moved in toward the end of the year, 1960 would have been an "extra banner" year.

January of this year, he said, was about the same as last year — very good.

Grover Holloway at Holloway and Thompson said, "There is no gloomy picture here," when asked about recession talk. He said his business so far this year is about even with last year and termed 1960 as a good year.

Jack Masur at the Palace, one of Monroe's downtown department stores, said he is anticipating a big spring business. "We are preparing for an increase," he said. He commented that the economy in Monroe is very stable. Only the snow and ice last month kept it from being a very good month for the Palace, Masur said.

A business in a different vein also expects a good year. Howard Griffin at the Land of Toys said he has added new items and territory and expects a good year—25 to 33 per cent better.

In the furniture line, both Joe Durrett of D & E and Joe and Bill and G. L. (Skeeter) Morgan at Trend House expect good years.

Durrett said 1960 was "considerably up" over 1959 and that the overall picture for 1961 is up. He predicts a good business year.

Morgan said he did very good in January at Trend House. His business was slightly above 1960 last month and said he had an "excellent" year in 1960. He said he sees no signs of recession here — that the economy is good.

FIRM DOUBLES

One of the brightest comments on the local business situation came from Joe Wilson at the United Dollar Store. He said that his chain considers Monroe the best city for business in its territory covering Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi, and that business was so good in 1960 that in mid-year the size of the firm was doubled. His store, Wilson said, shows an increase every week.

Chet Rousseau at Montgomery Ward, another of the city's department stores, said that although business during the first three quarters of 1960 was not as good as he would have liked it picked up in the final three months. January and February this year have been very good he said and he could only predict an increase in business.

Another of the very good reports came from Mrs. Pat Nahas at Rhealee Millinery. She said her store showed an increase of between 15 and 20 per cent in 1960 over the previius year. So far this year, she said, that upward trend is holding true. "Traffic is heavy now and if the weather will give us a break business will be just what we want."

Her crystal ball showed no signs of recession.

The Toggery's business in 1960 was about the same as 1959, described as a peak year, according to Bud Album. "There is no need to get frantic about economic conditions. Things will be good in 1961."

Fred Beckett at Penney's, another department store, felt business was not quite as good in 1960 as in 1959. But he attributed it to bad weather — not bad business — and said 1961 will be a good year.

BRIGHT SPOT

Another different kind of business — real estate — was praised highly by Gilbert Faulk. "Monroe is the bright spot on the real estate map in Louisiana," he said. Locally, real estate transactions showed a plus sign during every month while other areas such as New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Lake Charles showed minus gains.

"Many new stores are looking for locations here and many new businesses are being formed here where risk capital is involved," he said. He also pointed out that FHA has not withdrawn lending sources from this area as it has in others. He said the real estate market has remained firm with no slippage of values.

He also said the insurance business is holding steady in this area and ran about the same in 1960 as it did in 1959.

E. L. Carter, manager of Sears, at Sears Shopping Center on Louisville Ave., said that his business has been very good. He expects 1961 to be equally as good as 1960 which he said was good compared to 1959. He predicted that business during the latter part of the year would be better than in the spring. No recession, he said.

Peacocks Jewelers report was even better. They showed a heavy gain last year and January of this year was ahead of last year, according to Ralph Marx.

Pete Haddad said that 1960 was about 30 per cent ahead of 1959 in gross sales at Haddad's Hardware. January of this year showed a seven per cent gain over last year even with business slowed down by weather for the last two weeks. He said there were no signs of recession here and that he expects business to be better this year with improved crops and an expanded building program.

Perry Daniel at Daniel's Appliance and Maple Shop on Louisville said that he is looking forward to a good year and can't see any reason for a recession scare.

FULL WAREHOUSE

Ballard's did such a good year that they opened another store last year. January this year doubled last year's business, pointing to a really bumper year. Mack Ballard said that he doesn't believe there is a recession and that the store has a warehouse full of merchandise to back his convictions up.

And just as everything else is looking up in business, so is the automobile business, according to J. H. (Slim) Scogin at Brown-Rivers-Scogin. He is chairman of the New Car Dealers' Association. He said the 1960 volume was well ahead of 1959 and "we're off to a fast start in 1961." He said the dealers he had talked to expect 1961 to be one of the best for his industry in history.

From a banker's point of view, business has been good in the past and will be better in the future. Conway Crossland, president of the Central Savings Bank and Trust Co., cited growth and the promise of much more growth for Monroe and West Monroe.

In his glowing account of local economy, Crossland said:

"Bank growth is considered to be one of the best barometers of business conditions and, as was reported to the Monroe Morning World on January 25th, 1961 was certainly one of the best years in the 55 year history of Central Bank. Our total resources gained over 2½ million of which almost $2 million was reflected in increased deposits. Our average daily deposits for 1960 showed an increase over 1959 and for the first month of 1961 averaged daily deposits are substantially larger than January, 1960.

"We more than doubled the number of stockholders in Central Bank last year and have increased our lending power by 35 per cent in the past two years in order to keep pace with the growth of industry and business in this area.

"Published reports show that all the other banks in Ouachita Parish also had a good year in 1960.

"For our bank, or any other bank for that matter, to be able to cite such positive growth facts for a single year - the community which it serves must have a sound, healthy economy and be growing steadily.

GOOD OUTLOOK

"Looking at the prospects for 1961, let me point out that statistics on the growth of business and industry in the United States which have been recorded rather accurately since 1799, show that in the past 161 years only 13 years have not shown an increase in business. In 148 of those years each year was better than the preceding one.

"Our area has shown a growth rate the past 10 years which is higher than the national average. Therefore, I have confidence that the business and industrial leaders of our area have the know-how and will continue to develop the economic potential of our area.

"I believe 1961 will be exactly what we make it. If we use good judgement, constantly strive to provide more and better service for the public and work to make each day of 1961 better than the day before; then we will have a better year in 1961 than we did in 1960."

R. L. Vanderpool, president of Ouachita National Bank, said he thought the economy here was better than in most places. "We have our weak spots but I am convinced everything will be all right," he said.

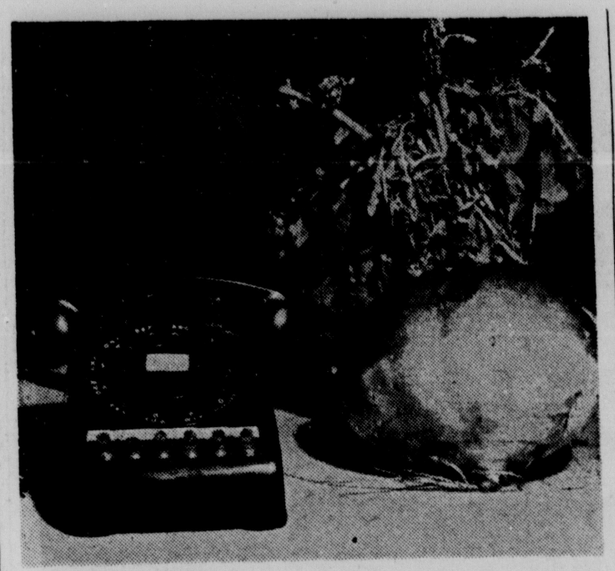
On the west side of the Ouachita River, in West Monroe the picture was the same — all gleam and no gloom.

P. E. Massey at Massey's Economy Auto Supply said he had about a 22 per cent increase for 1960 and that January of this year was about 18 per cent above last January.

He anticipates an "exceptionally" good year. He is hopeful of a 25 per cent increase.

Leon Sutton at West Monroe Firestone Home and Auto Supply Store said his volume was as big in 1960 as in 1959. He believes that 1961 will be a better year.

Wayne Deacon at Deacon and Lolly, a clothing store said that 1960 was ahead of 1959 by a small margin and he expects 1961 to be better. He expects his trade to increase sharply in the spring.



A GIANT TURNIP grown on River Stix farm by G. B. Studdard and son, F. G. Studdard, was delivered to the News-Star—World office Saturday morning. Said Red, the younger Studdard, "This is one we thinned out to make room for the larger ones to grow." This one weighs four pounds and nine ounces, according to a scale at the newspaper. Studdard didn't say how much the "larger" ones weigh. (Staff Photo by John Fogleman)

Raiders Balked By 'Paul Revere'

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — A 16-year-old boy re-enacted the midnight ride of Paul Revere, 1961 style, Friday night and stymied raids by state liquor agents on open saloons until he was jailed for vagrancy.

The lad dashed from bar to bar shouting "The liquor control board is coming."

His warnings were effective—and the liquor agents had not made a single arrest until they jailed the youth as a vagrant. They later arrested five bar operators after the boy was behind jail bars.

Snowdrifts Foil Weather Observer

LAYTON, N.J. (AP) — Alonzo M. De Pue, volunteer weather observer, peered out of his home here Saturday at the small shelter containing his recording instruments 70 feet away.

He knew if he didn't take a temperature reading it would be the first time he had missed. But the snowdrifts were shoulder high. He decided he couldn't make it.

De Pue is 89. He is the state's oldest volunteer observer.

Airliner Lands At Wrong Field

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — A Delta airliner, en route from Dallas to New Orleans, made an unscheduled stop Saturday at Pollock, about 10 miles from its intended stopover at Alexandria's Esler Field.

The Convair 440 carried 38 passengers and three crew.

In Atlanta, a Delta official, Tom Miller, said the pilot mistook the Pollock field, an old World War II landing strip, for Esler. Miller said the pilot was not on instruments.

Because the Federal Aviation Authority forbids planes from taking off from Pollock with passengers, they were bussed to Esler, while the plane flew there.

The flight was delayed about two hours in all.

Health Costs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The public pays $25 billion a year for the concern of its health. This breaks down to $137 a year for every man, woman and child in the nation.

Pineville Man Arrested For Safe Robbery

a.m. Saturday by Bossier City police who spotted his auto.

The exact amount of the contents of the safe, which was stolen from the Monroe office of the State Department of Revenue at 611 N. Third St., has not yet been determined. C. R. Tidwell Sr., department office manager, said that state auditors from Baton Rouge are enroute to make a complete check. The safe was said to have contained cash, money orders and checks.

The money it contained came primarily from the sale of auto license plates.

Police officials said the burglary occurred sometime after midnight Wednesday.

DOOR FORCED

Kelly said that entrance was gained to the building by forcing a rear door with some kind of tool. The safe was then rolled out into the alley where it apparently was loaded onto a truck and hauled off.

A tire tool that had some paint on it, identical to that on the safe, was found in a waste can about 20 feet from the back door of the revenue office. Officials said that the theft of the safe could have been done in ten minutes.

Miss Emma Rodgers, an employee of the office, discovered the burglary. She told officers that when she opened the office shortly after 7 a.m., she noticed the safe was missing and notified the manager.

The safe stealing is the second such burglary in which the entire safe and its contents have been taken in the past two months. The first occurred when the Bowlero Bowling Alley on Louisville Avenue was relieved of its safe on Christmas Eve night. The safe contained between $1,000 and $1,500.

The police department is still working on this burglary. Officials have turned up the burned safe which was taken in the incident.

Unusual Drama Slated At Tech

RUSTON (Special) — An unusual program by the Dance Drama under the auspices of the Louisiana Tech Concert Association will be presented in Howard Auditorium on Monday, February 6, at 8 p.m. for the public membership, and on Tuesday, February 7, at 8 p.m. for the student membership.

This group of dance - players, headed by Emily Frankel, has combined the different styles of dance, with drama and music, to product a new kind of artistic entertainment.

Miss Emily Frankel, the featured dancer and director of the company, has been internationally acclaimed. First for her unique qualities as a dancer, and second for her innovations as head of a rapidly expanding company. The New York Herald Tribune calls her "little, lithe, and utterly lovely;" the New York Times says she is "a farsighted bold venturer, whose ideas have greatly influenced the off - Broadway scene."

Emily Frankel, along with Mark Ryder, started the Dance Drama Company in 1960, and since then the company has performed in legitimate theaters, universities, civic and community concerts, with symphony orchestras, on television, on all major dance festivals, in 600 American cities, in Canada, and in Israel.

Five well - known choreographers have participated in creating the company's repertoire: Todd Bolender who is also currently choreographer for the New York City Ballet; Sophie Maslow who has been choreographic director for the New York Opera Company; Zachary Solov, choreographer for seven years at the Metropolitan Opera; Valerie Bettis of Broadway and T. V. renown, and Miss Frankel.

With the film of its performance on the "Folio" program of the C. B. C. network, the Company was singled out for the International Award for the Finest Dance Program on T. V. in 1957, in a competition involving all the major American networks.

F...ther distinction derives from the use of original Dance Drama Company productions by major ballet companies — notably both the New York City Ballet and Berlin Ballet include Dance Drama Company productions in their current season.

These programs include a wide selection of dance styles. You may see leaps and pirouettes from ballet, and jazz, modern and pantomime also. Featured is a dance drama based on Tennessee William's play, Summer and Smoke, entitled "Portrait of a Summer Sunday."

Besides telling a moving story with intensity, this dance employs a highly original mobile set — one which moves with the dancers as the story progresses, thereby adding another exciting visual dimension. The music is an original jazz score by John Belin.

Other works are the classic "Still Point" which, according to John Martin (New York Times critic), is a "masterpiece of lyric choreography," and this is performed to the Debussy String Quartet Opus 10. "Still Point" as danced by the Dance Drama Company has won many awards, and it is being repeated this season by request, along wtih Miss Frankel's solo — "Childs Play."

The latter is a tour - de - force both in performance and choreography, in which the dancer portrays a sometimes pixilated but always real child pursuing its imagination among the things she finds in an attic.

Also presented this season will be "Improvisation — Almost But Not Quite — Just For the Fun of It" with music by Elmer Bernstein.

The program, unusually varied in costuming, content, and production, is meaningful to audiences of all ages.

The two eight o'clock programs on Monday, February 6, for the public, and on Tuesday, February 7, for the students, are exclusively for members of the Louisiana Tech Concert Association. Members who have conflicts may come on the opposite night without service charge.

Castro Acts On Economic, Rebel Fronts

HAVANA (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro's revolutionary regime Saturday launched a two-pronged drive to overcome critical economic and military problems that it acknowledged could seriously jeopardize its future.

At the same time, military tribunals sitting in La Cabana prison began trials of 51 more Cubans on charges of conspiring to overthrow the Castro regime.

The government admitted troubles in harvesting sugar—Cuba's main source of income. Conrado Becquer, national sugar federation chief, announced that 67,000 "volunteers" had been mobilized to cut and gather cane this weekend to maintain a daily production of 75,000 tons.

The dispatch of the "volunteer brigades" was aimed at preventing a repetition of last weekend's costly standstill in Cuba's first nationalized sugar harvest.

Becquer said there was a shortage of seasonal caneworkers because Castro's land reforms, cooperatives and diversification of industry had provided many with regular jobs.

Opposition sources, however, claimed that the caneworkers refused to work on weekends as a protest against meager wages as well as against being forced to do double duty with the civilian militia.

On the military front, it was learned that top officials have started rotating on active duty in the Escambray Mountains of Central Cuba where an estimated 2,000 anti-Castro rebels have been holding their own against ten times as many Cuban army and militia troops.

Reliable sources said Police Chief Efigenio Ameijeiras left Havana Friday in command of a force of veteran Castro guerrilla troops to reinforce the less-experienced militia.

GALVAO CRIES 'FOUL'

Owners Reclaim Hijacked Liner

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

RECIFE, Brazil (AP)—The Portuguese owners of the Santa Maria reclaimed the virtually deserted liner in Recife Harbor Saturday. Capt. Henrique Galvao's rebels cried foul from ashore.

Galvao, held in the police barracks of this tropical port with 21 fellow conspirators, was hoping for political asylum in Brazil and trying his best to save face.

His seagoing revolution yanked out from under him, he vowed to continue the fight against the Portuguese government of Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar on land.

To avoid the humiliation of a direct surrender to his enemies, Galvao turned the $16.6 million vessel over to Brazil Friday. Brazilian President Janio Quadros then announced that the vessel, second largest in Portugal's merchant fleet, would be handed back to the Portuguese government.

Galvao could hardly have been unaware that this would happen, but Saturday a rebel spokesman at the police barracks told newsmen he was incensed the ship is going back to "the dictator Salazar."

"We are shocked and taken by surprise," he said, "at the attitude of the Brazilian government, since it signed a document with us guaranteeing that the Santa Maria would stay under the Brazilian flag."

This was the first mention of any such document, if it exists at all. In accepting the vessel from Galvao, the Brazilians had delicately asked Galvao only if he would turn the ship over to them. He agreed.

After the Brazilians turned the ship over to the Portuguese government, Portuguese officials returned it to its owners, the Colonial Navigation Co.

Thus ended at least the seagoing phase of a bizarre revolution that began in the Caribbean Jan. 22. The liner's stack was smudged with soot and her air-conditioning system, out of order even before the rebels took over, had not been repaired.

Now begins a legal phase that may be tangled in Brazilian courts for a long time. The ship's owners are believed planning action against Galvao for the seizing, in which a ship's officer was killed. The rebel chief's lawyer, Alvaro Lins, also is reported planning to appeal in court for return of the liner, claiming it as a prize of war.

Monroe Youth Orchestra To Attend Meet

The Monroe Youth Orchestra will represent Louisiana at the Southern Music Educators National Conference in Asheville, North Carolina, April 20 through 22.

The 40-member local orchestra was invited on recommendation of Walter C. Minniear, president of the Louisiana Music Educators Association.

Composed of students in Monroe schools, the orchestra will be one of 25 performing groups, including bands, choruses and orchestras, from 14 Southern states.

Monroe's orchestra will appear in a 90-minute session on Friday afternoon, April 21.

CONCERT

Eloy Fominaya of Northeast Louisiana State College will conduct them in a 30-minute concert.

The students then will participate in a demonstration of orchestra teaching techniques, on the junior high school level. Guest conductor J. Kimball Harriman of Greensboro, N. C. will direct them.

Numbers which will be included in the concert are the Vivaldi Violin Concerto in A minor, with the entire first violin section on solo part, and a Mozart composition, Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, according to Miss Jonnie Bankhead, coordinator and music instructor in the city schools.

Youngsters in the orchestra are working to raise the $3,000 needed to send them to the Conference.

They have raised approximately $300 by selling doughnuts, and are planning other projects.

Donations will be accepted. Checks or cash may be sent to the Monroe Youth Orchestra, care of Robert E. Lee Junior School, North 19th Street, Monroe.

THIRD YEAR

The Orchestra is in its third year.

During 1960, it won the sweepstakes trophy in both preformance and sight reading divisions at the State Music Festival at Hammond. Prior to that, it won first place at the Fifth District Music Festival in Ruston.

The orchestra launched the first in a cultural concert series for children in December.

It will play at the second concert at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, February 25, in Neville High auditorium.

The second concert in the series will be correlated with art. An art exhibition, representing work by students in elementary, junior high, high schools and Northeast College will follow the concert.

The Musical Coterie has sponsored the orchestra since its earliest stages. Financial support has been given by the Junior Charity League, which has provided music supplies and funds for the orchestra.

Canvassing For Heart Fund Set To Start Monday

Volunteer business and professional men will canvass the Twin Cities tomorrow through Friday to collect donations for the 1961 Heart Fund officials announced yesterday.

The canvass, called "Heart-Days for Business," will be headed up by chairmen Herschel A. Gentry in Monroe and James S. Rivers in West Monroe. Chairman of the Special Gifts committee in Monroe will be John Birdsong Jr. while Marvin Smith will serve as chairman in the sister city.

These appointments were made by Louis S. Daniel Jr., 1961 Heart Fund Chairman for Ouachita Parish who asserted his belief that "business men and women of the Twin Cities will join with our canvassers and enable our drive to add significantly to the Heart Fund total."

Assault Brings 99-Year Term

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—An all-male criminal court jury found a 23-year-old ex-convict guilty of raping a mother in a coin-operated laundry and set a sentence of 99 years Saturday.

The defendant, Jerry Kenneth Dunlap, showed no emotion as he heard the jury's verdict. He was not sentenced, pending the filing of a motion for a new trial.

Dunlap went on trial late Wednesday. The woman said she was alone in the laundry last Oct. 25 when a masked man, whom she could not identify, tried to rob her.

She said that when the man found she didn't have much money he raped her at gunpoint.

Dunlap readily admitted the robbery, and said he forced the woman to remove her clothes so she could not follow him outside. Then, he testified, he propositioned her and she consented. He said she told him she would not report him to police.

Kennedy Children Arrive In Capital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Caroline and John F. Kennedy Jr., returned to Washington Saturday to the arms of their happy parents and a first look at the White House, their new home.

The irrepressible three-year-old daughter and the two-month old infant son of the first family arrived at Washington National Airport at 3:55 p.m. EST aboard the Kennedy family's private plane, also named Caroline.

The children had been staying at their grandfather's winter home in Florida while the President and Mrs. Kennedy were busy launching a new national administration and preparing the White House for the toddlers.

The President and Mrs. Kennedy boarded the plane as soon as it stopped in front of the private aircraft terminal.

Caroline ran to the door to greet her mother, who was wearing a bright red coat.

Mrs. Kennedy clutched Caroline and took her back into the plane for a warm embrace.

The smiling President followed them into the plane. Kennedy changed his plans for meeting the children twice. He had been reported unable to go to the airport, but at the last minute decided to go.

Mrs. Kennedy alighted from the plane tightly holding the hand of her daughter, who wore a yellow, coconut hat and white leggings. The President followed them and nurse Elsie Phillips then followed carrying baby John bundled in a white blanket.

Caroline looked around in awe at the cameramen as she stepped out. She smiled at them and began chatting excitedly with her mother.

Caroline at first got into the car and sat in between her mother and father. But when the baby was brought into the car and placed into his mother's arms, Caroline jumped on her father's lap.

The President and Mrs. Kennedy arrived at the airport about 10 minutes before the Caroline touched down. Kennedy got out of the car, shook hands with reporters and waved at spectators. He told one woman who had a camera focused on him that she had better take the cover off first.

Mrs. Kennedy remained in the White House limousine until the plane had landed. Chatting with reporters through an open car window, she said that Caroline had seen a picture of the White House but had never been in the building.

LSU Postpones Tuition Fees By Cuban Students

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Louisiana State University board of supervisors Saturday agreed to let 80 Cuban students postpone payment of regular tuition until the end of the current semester.

The students had funds cut off from their homes by Premier Castro's regime. Of the 80 students, about 42 are in need of financial assistance.

Prior to the board's ruling, the students were required to pay their fees by next Friday.

In other action, the board adopted a $29,015,384 operating budget and a $969,452 extraordinary budget for the 1961-62 school years.

The extraordinary budget would be chiefly to pay for the addition of the senior year at LSUNO and a sophomore year at LSU at Alexandria.

The board's finance, building and grounds committee recommended that President Troy Middleton ask an additional $20 million from the 1961 Legislature for capital construction and equipment.

The committee said the $25 million appropriated to the university under a 1960 act has been determined inadequate.

The board met at the LSUNO administration building here.

Chamber Group Elects Officers

BOSSIER CITY, La. (AP)—Bob Croft, executive vice president of the Bossier City Chamber of Commerce, was elected president of the Louisiana Association of Chamber of Commerce Managers here Saturday.

He succeeds Adm. Whitaker Riggs, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce of Greater New Orleans.

Winding up their two-day convention, the association also elected Jimmy Dillon, Bastrop, vice president, and Victor Ehr, Baton Rouge, secretary-treasurer.

JFK TO TAKE PART

Prayer Breakfasts Will Be Thursday

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

President Kennedy is expected to take part this coming week in a session of hymn-singing, prayer, Scripture reading and evangelism, plus eggs and coffee.

The event is the annual "Presidential Prayer Breakfast" in Washington next Thursday morning, sponsored by the International Christian Leadership Conference, an interdenominational lay movement.

It is the first such religious affair on the program for Kennedy, a Roman Catholic, since he took office. His scheduled attendance appeared an indication that he intends, as president, to take an open approach to such interdenominational functions.

Generally, Catholics are forbidden to participate in religious affairs of non-Catholic groups, except with special permission or under special conditions.

The breakfast will have several earmarks of worship, with a hymn, Bible readings and prayer. The main address will be by evangelist Billy Graham, a Baptist.

About 700 people, including numerous government officials, are expected to attend.

The sponsoring group is a lay organization devoted to stimulating faith, freedom and Christian leadership, headed nationally by Judge Boyd Leedom, a Methodist, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board.

It is predominantly Protestant in this country, but stresses it is strictly nonsectarian, and includes Catholics. It has branches in 33 countries. In France, it is mostly Catholic.

A spokesman said both Kennedy and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, a Christian (Disciples of Christ), have accepted invitations to the breakfast to be held in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel.

Kennedy and Johnson are scheduled to speak briefly.

The breakfast is part of the conference's 17th annual meeting, which runs from Wednesday to Saturday.

Simultaneously with the presidential breakfast, there will be a separate "Congressional Wives Prayer Breakfast," with Mrs. Johnson the honored guest, and similar "Governor's Prayer Breakfasts" at about 40 state Capitols across the country.

Booster Singing Meet Scheduled

The regular first Sunday Booster Singing convention will be held this afternoon beginning at 1:30 at the Missouri Pacific Booster Hall in the 400 block of Ouachita Ave.

The program, which will consist of congregational gospel singing and special gospel songs by several well known local quartets, trios, and soloists, will continue until 4 p.m.

Those with special invitations to appear are the Jeffress Music Company Quartet of Crossett, Ark., the Williamson Singers from Ruston; the Robinson Quartet, the Robinettes and others from Bastrop along with the Chordsmen Quartet and the Rhymaries Quartet and other song directors from Northern Louisiana.

All singers and lovers of Gospel songs are invited to attend the convention.

Ross Barnett Defends Convict Leaves System

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Gov. Ross Barnett said Saturday it would be "impractical" to record convict leave extensions in the secretary of state's office as suggested by prosecuting attorneys.

Barnett met Saturday with a committee from the State Prosecutors Association in his office to discuss the leave program at the state penitentiary. The association held a special meeting here Friday and decided, according to its president, Mike Carr, that Barnett was granting leaves to convicts in an unlawful manner.

However, Barnett said in a statement released after the closed meeting that his granting of leaves and leave extensions was constitutional.

He said it was "strange indeed" that the attorneys did not go to his office and permit him to show them his records "before they gave out a statement to the press and had their meeting yesterday."

Dist. Atty. William Waller of Jackson, a member of the association's committee, said the group had agreed not to comment individually on the meeting with Barnett.

However, he said Barnett "is trying his best to see that the leave system is handled on a fair and reasonable basis." He said the association probably would prepare a statement later.

LSU Postpones Tuition Fees By Cuban Students

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Louisiana State University board of supervisors Saturday agreed to let 80 Cuban students postpone payment of regular tuition until the end of the current semester.

The students had funds cut off from their homes by Premier Castro's regime. Of the 80 students, about 42 are in need of financial assistance.

Prior to the board's ruling, the students were required to pay their fees by next Friday.

In other action, the board adopted a $29,015,384 operating budget and a $969,452 extraordinary budget for the 1961-62 school years.

The extraordinary budget would be chiefly to pay for the addition of the senior year at LSUNO and a sophomore year at LSU at Alexandria.

The board's finance, building and grounds committee recommended that President Troy Middleton ask an additional $20 million from the 1961 Legislature for capital construction and equipment.

The committee said the $25 million appropriated to the university under a 1960 act has been determined inadequate.

The board met at the LSUNO administration building here.

JFK TO TAKE PART

Prayer Breakfasts Will Be Thursday

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

President Kennedy is expected to take part this coming week in a session of hymn-singing, prayer, Scripture reading and evangelism, plus eggs and coffee.

The event is the annual "Presidential Prayer Breakfast" in Washington next Thursday morning, sponsored by the International Christian Leadership Conference, an interdenominational lay movement.

It is the first such religious affair on the program for Kennedy, a Roman Catholic, since he took office. His scheduled attendance appeared an indication that he intends, as president, to take an open approach to such interdenominational functions.

Generally, Catholics are forbidden to participate in religious affairs of non-Catholic groups, except with special permission or under special conditions.

The breakfast will have several earmarks of worship, with a hymn, Bible readings and prayer. The main address will be by evangelist Billy Graham, a Baptist.

About 700 people, including numerous government officials, are expected to attend.

The sponsoring group is a lay organization devoted to stimulating faith, freedom and Christian leadership, headed nationally by Judge Boyd Leedom, a Methodist, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board.

It is predominantly Protestant in this country, but stresses it is strictly nonsectarian, and includes Catholics. It has branches in 33 countries. In France, it is mostly Catholic.

A spokesman said both Kennedy and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, a Christian (Disciples of Christ), have accepted invitations to the breakfast to be held in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel.

Kennedy and Johnson are scheduled to speak briefly.

The breakfast is part of the conference's 17th annual meeting, which runs from Wednesday to Saturday.

Simultaneously with the presidential breakfast, there will be a separate "Congressional Wives Prayer Breakfast," with Mrs. Johnson the honored guest, and similar "Governor's Prayer Breakfasts" at about 40 state Capitols across the country.

Booster Singing Meet Scheduled

The regular first Sunday Booster Singing convention will be held this afternoon beginning at 1:30 at the Missouri Pacific Booster Hall in the 400 block of Ouachita Ave.

The program, which will consist of congregational gospel singing and special gospel songs by several well known local quartets, trios, and soloists, will continue until 4 p.m.

Those with special invitations to appear are the Jeffress Music Company Quartet of Crossett, Ark., the Williamson Singers from Ruston; the Robinson Quartet, the Robinettes and others from Bastrop along with the Chordsmen Quartet and the Rhymaries Quartet and other song directors from Northern Louisiana.

All singers and lovers of Gospel songs are invited to attend the convention.

Ross Barnett Defends Convict Leaves System

JACKSON, Mss. (UPI) — Gov. Ross Barnett said Saturday it would be "impractical" to record convict leave extensions in the secretary of state's office as suggested by prosecuting attorneys.

Barnett met Saturday with a committee from the State Prosecutors Association in his office to discuss the leave program at the state penitentiary. The association held a special meeting here Friday and decided, according to its president, Mike Carr, that Barnett was granting leaves to convicts in an unlawful manner.

However, Barnett said in a statement released after the closed meeting that his granting of leaves and leave extensions was constitutional.

He said it was "strange indeed" that the attorneys did not go to his office and permit him to show them his records "before they gave out a statement to the press and had their meeting yesterday."

Dist. Atty. William Waller of Jackson, a member of the association's committee, said the group had agreed not to comment individually on the meeting with Barnett.

However, he said Barnett "is trying his best to see that the leave system is handled on a fair and reasonable basis." He said the association probably would prepare a statement later.

Kennedy Children Arrive In Capital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Caroline and John F. Kennedy Jr., returned to Washington Saturday to the arms of their happy parents and a first look at the White House, their new home.

The irrepressible three-year-old daughter and the two-month old infant son of the first family arrived at Washington National Airport at 3:55 p.m. EST aboard the Kennedy family's private plane, also named Caroline.

The children had been staying at their grandfather's winter home in Florida while the President and Mrs. Kennedy were busy launching a new national administration and preparing the White House for the toddlers.

The President and Mrs. Kennedy boarded the plane as soon as it stopped in front of the private aircraft terminal.

Caroline ran to the door to greet her mother, who was wearing a bright red coat.

Mrs. Kennedy clutched Caroline and took her back into the plane for a warm embrace.

The smiling President followed them into the plane. Kennedy changed his plans for meeting the children twice. He had been reported unable to go to the airport, but at the last minute decided to go.

Mrs. Kennedy alighted from the plane tightly holding the hand of her daughter, who wore a yellow, coconut hat and white leggings. The President followed them and nurse Elsie Phillips then followed carrying baby John bundled in a white blanket.

Caroline looked around in awe at the cameramen as she stepped out. She smiled at them and began chatting excitedly with her mother.

Caroline at first got into the car and sat in between her mother and father. But when the baby was brought into the car and placed into his mother's arms, Caroline jumped on her father's lap.

The President and Mrs. Kennedy arrived at the airport about 10 minutes before the Caroline touched down. Kennedy got out of the car, shook hands with reporters and waved at spectators. He told one woman who had a camera focused on him that she had better take the cover off first.

Mrs. Kennedy remained in the White House limousine until the plane had landed. Chatting with reporters through an open car window, she said that Carolina had seen a picture of the White House but had never been in the building.

RAYBURN DISCLOSES

House Seat Hike Is Under Study

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressional leaders are considering the possibility of increasing membership of the House to prevent some states from losing seats through reapportionment.

No decision has been reached, but Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., said Saturday the matter is being studied.

The increase, if it should be decided on, would boost membership from 435 to 450. It could be done by act of Congress, requiring approval by both the Senate and the House as well as the President.

House membership now totals 437 under a temporary law which expires next year. This temporary increase gave one seat each to Alaska and Hawaii, the new states, pending reapportionment on the basis of the 1960 census.

Unless the size of the House is increased, 16 states will lose seats in the 1962 election and nine will gain.

The last permanent increase in House membership to 435 was based on the 1910 census, when the population was 92 million. Prior to that the membership totaled 391.

Since then, the U. S. population has almost doubled and four states, Arizona, New Mexico, Alaska and Hawaii, have entered the Union.

When membership first was fixed at 435, each member theoretically represented about 211,000 constituents. Now the average is about 414,089.

If Congress leaves House membership at 435, Pennsylvania will lose their seats, New York, Massachusetts and Arkansas two each, and Alabama, Illinois, Iowa Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina and West Virginia one each.

California would gain eight seats, Florida four, and Arizona, Hawaii, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio and Texas one each.

If membership of the House is boosted, it would also mean an increase in the electoral college used in choosing a president.

The electoral college equals the total membership of House and Senate—537 in the 1960 election.

Each state's electoral vote is equivalent to the total of its senators and representatives in Congress.

Soviets Okay Nuclear Test Talks Delay

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet government agreed Saturday to President Kennedy's proposals for a six-weeks delay in negotiations on a treaty to ban nuclear weapons tests.

Kennedy has started a restudy of U. S. test ban policy.

The Moscow action, though perhaps a bit slow, was accepted here as another gesture of cooperation with the new U. S. administration. But in another development officials found evidence that the Washington - Moscow diplomatic honeymoon, dating from Kennedy's inauguration, is likely to be short lived.

This development was the publication in a Soviet magazine, Life Abroad, of sharp criticism of Kennedy's State of the Union message last Monday.

Not only is publication of the criticism a significant event in itself; its focus on Kennedy's unyielding attitude toward Communist ambitions is also seen here as being of central importance.

For the indication is that Premier Khrushchev and his advisers regard the new era of better feeling between the leaders of the two great powers as an opportunity to try to wring concessions from the United States rather than as an opportunity to settle vital problems by mutual compromise.

Authorities said it must be assumed that Khrushchev's policies are based on a conviction that Soviet power and prestige in relation to those of the United States are now much greater than they once were and that he wants to translate this belief into agreements favorable to Communist world aims.

The Soviet magazine said Kennedy's State of the Union speech contained "irksome cold war echoes" and showed that "the ruling quarters of the United States have not renounced their old bankrupt positions of strength policy, though they prefer to conduct it now in a more cautious and restrained way."

The magazine also deplored Kennedy's statement that the United States has a continuing interest in freedom for the Communist-ruled nations of Eastern Europe. It declared that the message called for "increasing the arms race."

Governor May Offer Reward In Slaying Case

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. John Patterson says he would be "most willing" to offer a reward leading to the solution of the grisly double slaying of Jeffeson and Nella Jean Chambers near LaFayette.

Patterson, answering a question on a local television news show (WSFA-TV) said he had considered posting a reward "but no one has approached me about it. We always try to do what the local authorities want done and we assist them in every way possible."

The chief executive said "we're still working on the case. Public Safety Director Floyd Mann has several investigators checking out clues. As a matter of fact I believe there have been some recent developments in the case."

Solons Split On Effects Of Aid Program

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate's Democratic and Republican leaders disagreed Saturday on the effect President Kennedy's anti-recession program will have on the economy.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he thinks an expansion of unemployment benefits, early payment of veterans insurance dividends and action to aid distressed areas will have an immediate uplifting effect.

"The President is watching the situation closely and if there are not definite signs of an upturn in 75 days he will propose additional measures," Mansfield said.

There has been speculation Kennedy might propose a temporary tax cut in that event.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said in a separate interview he thinks the Kennedy program "is bound to be slow moving."

Moreover, Dirksen said Republicans remain to be convinced that the administration justify its estimates," Dirksen said.

"If Republicans can help it, we're not going to extremes because of the President's allegation that the situation is black. He'll have to prove it."

The Kennedy administration will start moving Monday on one element of its anti-recession program—a bill to provide funds for emergency extension of unemployment benefits for workers who have used up their rights.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee will introduce that bill and a companion measure to make payments available to the children of unemployed parents. Such benefits now go to orphans and children who have been deserted.

Added unemployment benefits would be provided for up to 13 weeks. If all states participate, the administration has estimated the maximum cost would be $950 million.

Dirksen questioned whether Kennedy's actions to ease credit and to pump additional cash into the economy will result in any immediate substantial increase in business activity.

He said an increase in savings from 18.9 billion in 1952 to $39.2 billion in 1960 indicates some of this money will find its way into bank accounts rather than being used to buy goods and services.

Dirksen said Kennedy's action in ordering a reduction of interest rates on government-insured housing mortgages could have an adverse effect if capital flows abroad to get higher rates.

Boats Searching For Missing Man

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Shrimp trawlers and boats from the sheriff's flotilla scoured the Mobile ship channel Saturday for a 36-year-old newspaper employe believed thrown overboard in a mishap off Dog River.

Eugene B. Martin, a composing room employe of the Press-Register, was reported missing late Friday afternoon after a tug sighted his capsized 16-foot shrimping skiff.

Authorities said Martin had been dragging a trawl for live shrimp when the mishap occurred. They theorized he either fell into the water or was dragged overboard by a snagged trawl.

Ted Kennedys Will See Krewe Royalty

By ED TUNSTALL

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The wonderful world of New Orleans' Mardi Gras—a never-never land for small children and the ever young—gives President Kennedy's brother a peek into the realm of fantasy Sunday.

Edward (Ted) Kennedy, youngest brother of the President, and his wife, will pay homage to the king and queen of the Krewe of Carrollton at a masked ball. This, in itself, is unique even for the unique domain of Mardi Gras. Within most memories only the presentation of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor a dozen years ago rivals such an appearance.

Young Kennedy will help open the 10-day parade period Sunday afternoon. From a reviewing stand in front of the new streamlined City Hall, Kennedy and his wife will join thousands cheering the parades of Carrollton and Okeanos.

Kennedy's presence prodded New Orleans Mayor deLesseps Morrison to hail the 1961 Carnival "as our greatest ever."

Such a pronouncement came amidst rumblings of discord and uneasiness brought about by the tense racial situation in the Orleans public schools.

Demonstrations and boycotts have marked the mixing of classes since desegregation began nearly two months ago.

A Negro organization, whose parade is one of Carnival's highlights said last week it would take to the streets as usual on Mardi Gras Day—a week from Tuesday — despite objections from other Negro groups.

There are fears of disturbances particularly during the night parades in the coming week. But both Morrison and Police Supt. Joseph I. Giarusso minimize such apprehensions.

However, as an innovation, mounted police equipped with walkie-talkies will accompany all parades and Giarusso said the new police canine corps would help patrol the city.

But back to young Kennedy and what he can expect Sunday night when Carrollton frolics at its masked ball.

From the nimble fingers of costume-makers and the imagination of designers working for a full year, will come figures from the world's great music. Canio steps out of "Pagliacci," Marguerita from "Faust," and other lyrical characters who live forever.

The Kennedys will bow low to the Carnival royalty before 9,000 guests in Municipal Auditorium. Such an honor—to be presented to the royal court—is reserved for dignitaries only of the highest ranking.

From Sunday on, the parades will be in full swing, ending with the parade of Comus—oldest of the Carnival groups — and his meeting with Rex, monarch of merriment, at midnight Mardi Gras to close Carnival and greet Lent's long penitential season.

Last Of Civil War Family Dies

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Mrs. Samuel Alexander Mudd Jr., 86, last surviving member of a family prominent since Civil War days, died Friday night in a Baltimore hospital after a long illness.

Mrs. Mudd was the daughter-in-law of Dr. Samuel Alexander Mudd. The doctor treated the broken leg of John Wilkes Booth after the actor shot President Abraham Lincoln

For this, Dr. Mudd was sentenced to life imprisonment, but later was pardoned.

Mrs. Mudd will be buried in the family cemetery near Waldorf, Md., not far from Dr. Mudd's home.

From Sunday on, the parades will be in full swing, ending with the parade of Comus—oldest of the Carnival groups — and his meeting with Rex, monarch of merriment, at midnight Mardi Gras to close Carnival and greet Lent's long penitential season.

Soviets Okay Nuclear Test Talks Delay

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet government agreed Saturday to President Kennedy's proposals for a six-weeks delay in negotiations on a treaty to ban nuclear weapons tests.

Kennedy has started a restudy of U. S. test ban policy.

The Moscow action, though perhaps a bit slow, was accepted here as another gesture of cooperation with the new U. S. administration. But in another development officials found evidence that the Washington - Moscow diplomatic honeymoon, dating from Kennedy's inauguration, is likely to be short lived.

This development was the publication in a Soviet magazine, Life Abroad, of sharp criticism of Kennedy's State of the Union message last Monday.

Not only is publication of the criticism a significant event in itself: its focus on Kennedy's unyielding attitude toward Communist ambitions is also seen here as being of central importance.

For the indication is that Premier Khrushchev and his advisers regard the new era of better feeling between the leaders of the two great powers as an opportunity to try to wring concessions from the United States rather than as an opportunity to settle vital problems by mutual compromise.

Authorities said it must be assumed that Khrushchev's policies are based on a conviction that Soviet power and prestige in relation to those of the United States are now much greater than they once were and that he wants to translate this belief into agreements favorable to Communist world aims.

The Soviet magazine said Kennedy's State of the Union speech contained "irksome cold war echoes" and showed that "the ruling quarters of the United States have not renounced their old bankrupt positions of strength policy, though they prefer to conduct it now in a more cautious and restrained way."

The magazine also deplored Kennedy's statement that the United States has a continuing interest in freedom for the Communist-ruled nations of Eastern Europe. It declared that the message called for "increasing the arms race."

Boats Searching For Missing Man

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Shrimp trawlers and boats from the sheriff's flotilla scoured the Mobile ship channel Saturday for a 36-year-old newspaper employe believed thrown overboard in a mishap off Dog River.

Eugene B. Martin, a composing room employe of the Press-Register, was reported missing late Friday afternoon after a tug sighted his capsized 16-foot shrimping skiff.

Authorities said Martin had been dragging a trawl for live shrimp when the mishap occurred. They theorized he either fell into the water or was dragged overboard by a snagged trawl.

Last Of Civil War Family Dies

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Mrs. Samuel Alexander Mudd Jr., 86, last surviving member of a family prominent since Civil War days, died Friday night in a Baltimore hospital after a long illness.

Mrs. Mudd was the daughter-in-law of Dr. Samuel Alexander Mudd. The doctor treated the broken leg of John Wilkes Booth after the actor shot President Abraham Lincoln

For this, Dr. Mudd was sentenced to life imprisonment, but later was pardoned.

Mrs. Mudd will be buried in the family cemetery near Waldorf, Md., not far from Dr. Mudd's home.

Governor May Offer Reward In Slaying Case

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. John Patterson says he would be "most willing" to offer a reward leading to the solution of the grisly double slaying of Jefferson and Nella Jean Chambers near LaFayette.

Patterson, answering a question on a local television news show (WSFA-TV) said he had considered posting a reward "but no one has approached me about it. We always try to do what the local authorities want done and we assist them in every way possible."

The chief executive said "we're still working on the case. Public Safety Director Floyd Mann has several investigators checking out clues. As a matter of fact I believe there have been some recent developments in the case."

Area Teacher Gives

Norway Report

By OREA BENNETT
Staff Correspondent

HOLLY RIDGE (Special) — Pictures and descriptions of the customs, foods, cultural contributions and scenic beauties of Norway are becoming familiar to many northeast Louisiana residents through the efforts of a Holly Ridge teacher.

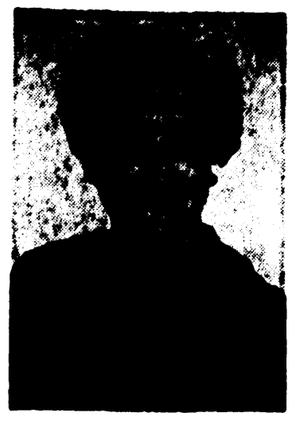
She is Mrs. Kathleen Chipley, high school musical instructor, who spent a month and a half in Norway, with excursions to other parts of historic Europe.

And since her visit from July 2 to August 12, the trip has been a treat to many in this area who have heard Mrs. Chipley tell of it and show color slide pictures she took wherever she went.

Mrs. Chipley was one of the few persons selected from the United States to attend the University of Oslo's International Summer School in 1960.

Although she lived in Norway, visited a number of European countries, took numerous side trips, and studied at the university, Mrs. Chipley said the entire summer experience cost her only about $400.

The school was organized in 1947, based on the idea that Norway and its cultural contributions have a genuine quality which makes studying them a valuable experience. Its founders also believed that the study of Norway would help bring about a better understanding of Europe generally, since this nation seems to represent the "typical" European country.



MRS. KATHLEEN CHIPLEY

FLIGHT

In her report of the trip abroad, Mrs. Chipley interestingly tells of flying from Oslo to Edinburgh where she spent the night, on to London and then Bergen, the largest city on Norway's west coast.

She says the west coast harbors, although so far north, never freeze over because of the warm Atlantic currents.

Farmers around here are fascinated by her account of Norwegian farms, the fact that some operators of the pint sized farms there scoop off the topsoil and store it in cellars to prevent wintry winds from blowing it away. In spring the soil is returned to the fields by hand spreading.

Milk and cheese are plentiful year - round, Mrs. Chipley says, adding that cows are pastured in the summer time but sheltered in barns around the clock during the long, cold winters.

Also, Mrs. Chipley says, is filled with geraniums, with almost every window of every home displaying them.

Train conductors in Norway attracted Mrs. Chipley with their use of a public address system to announce at numerous intervals that the train was stopping for tourists to make pictures.

GLACIAL AREAS

Some of her slide pictures show in color the beautiful countryside as she rode a bus over highways in mountainous, glacial areas.

There are hundreds of Norwegian workers who live high in the lofty mountains and commute daily by cable cars down the slopes to their jobs. Each car can handle 25 passengers.

Many places of the country can be reached only by steamer on fiords (pronounced few-r-d), the deep, narrow arms of the sea that reach far into the mountains, on which Mrs. Chipley took a trip.

On the Oslo Fiord, she and her group visited the palace of King Olaf V. She recounts that the king, dressed in blue coat, white slacks and blue - and - white shoes, greeted them on the palace terrace, accompanied by Crown Prince Harold, Princess Roghnild, and Princess Astrid, who married a commoner Jan. 12.

The visit was informal, with refreshments, dainty sandwiches and cigarettes offered the guests, which included the U. S. ambassador to Norway.

Mrs. Chipley found the people of Norway quite friendly, as when the class took a field trip to Frederickstad, where the group was greeted by the Lord Mayor and saluted by the Drum and Bugle Corps, after which they were escorted to a spacious banquet hall in an old fort dating back to the 1300's.

On the table, covered with a light blue cloth and set with pewter dishes, was more than enough food for the 75 guests to feast on from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

DESSERT EVENING

Speaking of food, another highlight of Mrs. Chipley's visit to Norway was the "Dessert Evening," an event sponsored by the City of Oslo in honor of the visitors.

The students were seated at small tables in the town hall and served colorful sweets and fruits, then were taken on a tour of the building by a 25 piece orchestra.

"Through the gaily muraled corridors of Town Hall we went, marveling at the representation of contemporary art," Mrs. Chipley says. "Norway is quite a leader in this artistic medium."

She recalls the "koldtables" which at breakfast include anything from tomatoes, ham, sausage and goat cheese to fruit, salads, and bread, to dishpans full of cornflakes or rice cereals, "which we American students gladly dished out with a soup ladle."

The Holly Ridge teacher continued, "Lunch, too, ran the gamut in variety, but night menus included hot dishes such as fish pudding, spiced with nutmeg. Rolls are not usually served with the main meals of Norwegians, but boiled potatoes always are.

"In fact, we often had potatoes cooked in two or three forms at the same meal and always the first dish that was served included some boiled potatoes."

Once a week, the students met in a group for "International Evening."

At these gatherings, members of the group discussed world problems, voicing opinions that were extremely revealing, Mrs. Chipley says.

"One of the questions asked of the American students most frequently was 'What are you doing about segregation?' " she recalls.

The Europeans made a show of resentment of Americans who speed through their countries taking pictures but never stopping long enough anywhere to really get to know much about the people there or their problems, Mrs. Chipley says.

"Even foreign aid from the United States was criticized," Mrs. Chipley said, "They seemed to resent the charitable attitude of this country in giving the foreign aid."

Hiking is a recreational pastime with Norwegians, the teacher explains, and she adds that even American physical education instructors become winded by the typical Norwegian "10 minute walks" that carry them up and down the "hills" and take 30 minutes or an hour instead of 10 minutes.

Even three - year - old children learn to ski, and the Richland parish teacher said she met one 70-year-old woman who was still an active skier.

Night skiing is popular where the hills have been lighted for that purpose.

The sports activities there also include mountain climbing, skating, football, whaling and fishing, cycling, yachting, canoeing, lawn tennis, fencing, wrestling, golf, horse racing, and gymnastics.

The Norwegians seem to have a complete freedom from the desire to "keep up with the Jones," Mrs. Chipley says.

"They seem so relaxed and exhibit a complete freedom from social ties," she said.

"Marriage usually waits until the couple is in their late 20's and the wedding band is worn on the right hand," the teacher explains.

She discovered that the "midnight sun" actually shines around the clock for 75 days a year in north Norway, and only timepieces or droopy eyelids indicate it's bedtime.

Because of the national water power for hydroelectric plants little other power is used for industrial production of materials such as nitrogen, carbides and aluminum.

Norwegian men are famous for their seagoing history and Mrs. Chipley saw in the Oslo Museum bodies of sea captains still on their ships where they were, in tradition, buried.

One of the museum ships bears the bodies of Queen Asa and her two slaves, buried in Indian style with "almost anything on board which could possibly be useful if there were life after death."

In Oberrammagau Mrs. Chipley saw the Passion Play presented, as it has been every 10 years since the 1300's when the people there vowed to do so if God spared them from the black plague.

In the play, 50 natives form the chorus for the outdoor performance which begins at 5 a.m. and ends at 5:30 p.m., regardless of weather conditions.

Local people also perform in the play, with no one in the cast except those born in Oberrammagau.

In the 1960 performance an innkeeper acted the part of Jesus, after growing, as did the other male actors, a beard for more than a year.

Played at intervals throughout the year, the play was seen last year by more than a million persons. Over 4,000 persons had parts in the performances.

The Norwegians are wonderful at designs, as Mrs. Chipley and the other visitors found when they visited the glass blowers, silversmiths, weavers and pottery makers.

Before returning to the United States, the Holly Ridge teacher visited other European countries, including Switzerland where she saw an experiment in international living.

The experiment is carried on in the Pestalozzi Children's Village at Trogen, Switzerland, where war orphans, about 16 of the same nationality, share each of the cottages. Each cottage is presided over by a housemother and father.

Here children of Austria, Greece, England, Switzerland, Germany and Tibet are reared in the manner of their native homes, but are brought together each afternoon for a study of cultural subjects.

Now Mrs. Chipley praises the "friendly Scandinavian people" and feels that the International Summer School is accomplishing much for world fellowship and understanding.

Norway Presents Many Photographic Opportunities

Nature's Pentup Fury Tapped For More Power

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)— A rainstorm in Minnesota, a spring in a Wisconsin meadow, a rivulet of melting snow in Michigan. Nature taps these and a thousand other sources for the crushing torrent she hurls over the brink of Niagara Falls.

For 200 years, in a pursuit of power for the wheels of his industry, man has pitted his body and brain against this pent-up fury of an eighth of a continent.

On Friday, he will unveil his latest effort—the biggest hydroelectric complex in the Western world. The first delivery of power from the New York State Power Authority's Robert Moses Niagara power plant will course through transmission lines to waiting home and factory.

COST

The almost unbelievable total capacity of 2,190,000 kilowatts will be completed next year. The Soviets claim to top it at their new Volga River plant above Stalingrad, but in the West, only Grand Coulee, Wash., and the St. Lawrence River come close to Niagara.

The cost will be $740 million and the lives, so far, of 18 men. For this the Niagara has grudgingly given up enough power to light a million 100-watt bulbs at once.

The statistics are staggering.

If all the excavated dirt and rock was piled on one acre of land, it would be five miles high.

If all the crushed stone used in the concrete work was loaded on one freight train, it would stretch from New York to Des Moines, Iowa.

If all the cement was used for a 24-foot wide highway, it would make smooth riding from New York to Jacksonville, Fla.

If all the reinforcing steel was used to build a railroad, it would make a double-track line from New York to Cleveland.

But the biggest problem has been man himself.

In the 10 years since a new water diversion treaty between the United States and Canada made redevelopment of Niagara power possible, the project has been plagued by:

An eight-year battle between advocates of public and private power. A two-year fight to decide when an Indian reservation isn't an Indian reservation. A two-year squabble about the loss of taxable real estate. Recently there has been a nasty brawl over power rates and allocations. This looks good for a few more rounds.

Across the border Canada went to work on her share of the new water diversion rights almost before the ink was dry on the treaty. The Sir Adam Beck Generating Station No. 2, with an installed capacity of about 1,800,000 kilowatts, has been operating almost three years.

The theory of Niagra power is simplicity itself. Water runs downhill, turning a turbine as it passes. The turbine turns a generator, which creates an electric current.

The Great Lakes basin supplies the water—an average of 202,500 cubic feet per second flowing over Niagara Falls. The Niagara escarpment provides the hill — 160 feet at the falls and 165 feet in rapids above and below them.

The water is diverted from the river above the upstream rapids. It runs more than four miles past the back door of the city of Niagara Falls through twin concrete conduits to two generating stations four miles downstream from the cataract.

Under the treaty, at least 100,000 cubic feet of water per second must be permitted to flow over Niagara Falls during daylight hours in the summer. This is to preserve the falls as a scenic attraction. During other periods, the flow can be cut to as little as 50,000 cubic feet per second.

But the period of greatest water availability does not coincide with the period of greatest power need. So a 1,880-acre reservoir has been built in back of the power stations, 550 acres of it on land previously owned by the Tuscarora Indians.

DURING NIGHT

During the night, water will be pumped up into the reservoir through a pump-generating station. Here it will fall 304 feet to the 13 turbines that will power the 13 150,000 kilowatt generators.

National attention was attracted to the project by the Indian fight. The Tuscaroras, a 600-member remnant descended from one of the powerful six nations of the Iroquois Confederacy, didn't want to give up their land.

At one point the power authority offered them $3 million—$2,170 an acre for 1,383 acres. After losing in the Supreme Court of the United States, they settled for $850,000 — $1,545 an acre for 550 acre. The power authority trimmed its need for land by raising the height of the dikes around the reservoir.

The issue shook down to a question of whether the land the authority sought could be condemned like any other land or whether it was protected by treaty and reserved for the Indians. Ultimately, the Supreme Court held that it wasn't reservation land at all because the Indians purchased it from private owners.

Friday's first production of commercial power from two generators in the main plant, climaxing a week of civic celebration, will be accomplished in less than three years from the day the first shovelful of dirt was turned.

This is enough of a tribute to the tenacity of Robert Moses, stormy and controversial chairman of the New York Power Authority, so that his name is a part of the main generating station.

Moses' critics, as he has whaled his way through years of highways, parkways, bridges and power plants, have termed him an autocrat, a dictator and a slavedriver. The 71-year-old planner laughs them off, returning barb for barb, insult for insult, most in high good humor.

"The professional howler for public power contends that all private utilities are born wicked," he said, and in the next breath: "The professional Madison Avenue utility booster shouts back that private utilities were ordained by God to govern us."

DEBATE PAINT

A running fight with local officials over loss of assessed valuation, because power authority property is public property and non-taxable, has given Moses a fine chance to produce nicely-turned phrases.

To compensate for the loss, the authority was empowered by the New York Legislature to contribute $3 million to local municipalities and another $1.5 million for local improvements in the city. But the city claims its ultimate loss in assessed valuation will top $41 million.

In his usual cutting reply, Moses remarked: "Historically, Niagara Falls has over-taxed utility companies and under-taxed everybody else. The city is still trying to get a free ride."

More than a million kilowatts of the new power will go to private utilities for their industrial, domestic and rural customers. Another 250,000 kw has been reserved for new industry, 345,000 is headed for municipal power companies and cooperatives and 180,000 is for Ohio and Pennsylvania consumers when they need it.

OUTLOOK

Most of the rest of the production will not be firm. That is, it can be interrupted due to low water, ice or other reasons.

There won't be any immediate savings for domestic consumers. This is because the new Niagara power will replace steam generators built in recent years by private utilities to meet the demand. The steam generators will be shut down. But they still have to be paid for.

When the demand tops the power that Niagara can produce, the steam generators will be back in production and paying for themselves. Then there will be savings. This is perhaps five years away.

That doesn't make the new Niagara project a waste, of course. It is vitally needed for the future. The power has to come from someplace, and falling water remains the cheapest source.

Buenos Aires City Of Beauty, Gaiety

By BRIAN BELL

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Buenos Aires is South America's largest city, one of its prettiest and some say the continent's gayest.

The porteno, "man of the port" as Buenos Aires residents are called, likes fun. And there is plenty to amuse him here.

The city's 3,700,000 people have at their disposal two racetracks, 15 soccer stadiums, an opera house, 30 theaters, a hundred movie houses, 50 athletic clubs, [illegible] restaurants and scores of [illegible] clubs, big and small.

Buenos Aires is a night city. Things don't start really moving until close to midnight. The House of Deputies, in fact, thinks nothing of continuing sessions on routine matters until 4 a.m. Labor unions often meet through the night.

Most good restaurants don't start serving until 8 p.m. Until 9 they will be practically deserted. The big crowds start coming between 9:30 and 10:30. Many restaurants serve until 2 a.m.

The movies run two shows nightly, the last letting out around 12:30 or 1. Many cinemas run late shows which don't end until 3 a.m. The night clubs are open until 4 a.m.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights are the big ones for portenos. Then the many good but cheap restaurants of the city are filled with beef-eating, wine-drinking Argentines. A four-course steak dinner with wine at a first-class restaurant can be had for less than a dollar.

Argentina is the land of beef and an big filet mignon costs 50 American cents a la carte. A huge sirloin with its edges overlapping the plate costs less. The porteno eats his with French-fried potatoes, a mixed green salad, lots of rolls or bread but mostly without butter and a bottle of Argentine wine which next to Chilean vintages is considered the best in South America. Portions at all eating places are enormous and one question you never hear from the waiter is, "How's your steak?" It's always good.

RATHER EAT

Argentines aren't much on the cocktail hour; they would rather eat. Scores of confiterias, many of them with music and entertainment, occupy the portenos during the early hours of the evening. There he eats sandwiches and pastries and drinks tea or a vermouth.

The crowds, out for an evening on the town, go on to the restaurants and start on their big dinners. Afterwards, it's off to the night clubs. The late spots come in all varieties, small, medium and big; with or without dancing; a floor show, native dancers, a singeror just a record player; in the city or in the suburbs where some of the more elaborate clubs are; with a full course dinner or only sandwiches. One thing they all have in common is that while restaurants are cheap the night clubs are expensive.

The Argentine works a 36-hour week, six hours a day, six days a week. Saturday afternoon and Sundays he devotes himself strenuously to sports—active or spectator. Portenos play soccer, rugby, basketball, tennis, polo, golf, cricket and even baseball; they row and sail on the River Plate which runs past Buenos Aires. The soccer stadiums are jammed for the regular Sunday afternoon first division matches with a crowd of 100,000 not unusual for a big event.

Any essay on Buenos Aires would be incomplete without a word about the city's many beautiful women. The mixture of nationalities that have made the Argentine of today—English, French, German, Spanish and Italian — have produced a Buenos Aires woman who may be blonde, Brunette or in between but more often than not is lovely, and she knows how to dress.

There are many other interesting and beautiful places in Argentina but to the porteno who thinks he is something special himself there is only one land and he lives there.

Many visitors who come for a few days and stay a lifetime agree with him.

In her report of the trip abroad, Mrs. Chipley interestingly tells of flying from Oslo to Edinburgh where she spent the night, on to London and then Bergen, the largest city on Norway's west coast.

She says the west coast harbors, although so far north, never freeze over because of the warm Atlantic currents.

Farmers around here are fascinated by her account of Norwegian farms, the fact that some operators of the pint sized farms there scoop off the topsoil and store it in cellars to prevent wintry winds from blowing it away. In spring the soil is returned to the fields by hand spreading.

Milk and cheese are plentiful year - round, Mrs. Chipley says, adding that cows are pastured in the summer time but sheltered in barns around the clock during the long, cold winters.

Also, Mrs. Chipley says, is filled with geraniums, with almost every window of every home displaying them.

Train conductors in Norway attracted Mrs. Chipley with their use of a public address system to announce at numerous intervals that the train was stopping for tourists to make pictures.

GLACIAL AREAS

Some of her slide pictures show in color the beautiful countryside as she rode a bus over highways in mountainous, glacial areas.

There are hundreds of Norwegian workers who live high in the lofty mountains and commute daily by cable cars down the slopes to their jobs. Each car can handle 25 passengers.

Many places of the country can be reached only by steamer on fiords (pronounced few-r-d), the deep, narrow arms of the sea that reach far into the mountains, on which Mrs. Chipley took a trip.

On the Oslo Fiord, she and her group visited the palace of King Olaf V. She recounts that the king, dressed in blue coat, white slacks and blue - and - white shoes, greeted them on the palace terrace, accompanied by Crown Prince Harold, Princess Roghnild, and Princess Astrid, who married a commoner Jan. 12.

The visit was informal, with refreshments, dainty sandwiches and cigarettes offered the guests, which included the U. S. ambassador to Norway.

Mrs. Chipley found the people of Norway quite friendly, as when the class took a field trip to Frederickstad, where the group was greeted by the Lord Mayor and saluted by the Drum and Bugle Corps, after which they were escorted to a spacious banquet hall in an old fort dating back to the 1500's.

On the table, covered with a light blue cloth and set with pewter dishes, was more than enough food for the 75 guests to feast on from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

DESSERT EVENING

Speaking of food, another highlight of Mrs. Chipley's visit to Norway was the "Dessert Evening," an event sponsored by the City of Oslo in honor of the visitors.

The students were seated at small tables in the town hall and served colorful sweets and fruits, then were taken on a tour of the building by a 25 piece orchestra.

"Through the gaily muraled corridors of Town Hall we went, marveling at the representation of contemporary art," Mrs. Chipley says. "Norway is quite a leader in this artistic medium."

She recalls the "koldtables" which at breakfast include anything from tomatoes, ham, sausage and goat cheese to fruit, salads, and bread, to dishpans full of cornflakes or rice cereals, "which we American students gladly dished out with a soup ladle."

The Holly Ridge teacher continued, "Lunch, too, ran the gamut in variety, but night menus included hot dishes such as fish pudding, spiced with nutmeg. Rolls are not usually served with the main meals of Norwegians, but boiled potatoes always are.

"In fact, we often had potatoes cooked in two or three forms at the same meal and always the first dish that was served included some boiled potatoes."

Once a week, the students met in a group for "International Evening."

At these gatherings, members of the group discussed world problems, voicing opinions that were extremely revealing, Mrs. Chipley says.

"One of the questions asked of the American students most frequently was 'What are you doing about segregation?' " she recalls.

The Europeans made a show of resentment of Americans who speed through their countries taking pictures but never stopping long enough anywhere to really get to know much about the people there or their problems, Mrs. Chipley says.

"Even foreign aid from the United States was criticized," Mrs. Chipley said, "They seemed to resent the charitable attitude of this country in giving the foreign aid."

Hiking is a recreational pastime with Norwegians, the teacher explains, and she adds that even American physical education instructors become winded by the typical Norwegian "10 minute walks" that carry them up and down the "hills" and take 30 minutes or an hour instead of 10 minutes.

Even three - year - old children learn to ski, and the Richland parish teacher said she met one 70-year-old woman who was still an active skier.

Night skiing is popular where the hills have been lighted for that purpose.

The sports activities there also include mountain climbing, skating, football, whaling and fishing, cycling, yachting, canoeing, lawn tennis, fencing, wrestling, golf, horse racing, and gymnastics.

The Norwegians seem to have a complete freedom from the desire to "keep up with the Jones," Mrs. Chipley says.

"They seem so relaxed and exhibit a complete freedom from social ties," she said.

"Marriage usually waits until the couple is in their late 20's and the wedding band is worn on the right hand," the teacher explains.

She discovered that the "midnight sun" actually shines around the clock for 75 days a year in north Norway, and only timepieces or droopy eyelids indicate it's bedtime.

Because of the national water power for hydroelectric plants little other power is used for industrial production of materials such as nitrogen, carbides and aluminum.

Norwegian men are famous for their seagoing history and Mrs. Chipley saw in the Oslo Museum bodies of sea captains still on their ships where they were, in tradition, buried.

One of the museum ships bears the bodies of Queen Asa and her two slaves, buried in Indian style with "almost anything on board which could possibly be useful if there were life after death."

In Oberrammagau Mrs. Chipley saw the Passion Play presented, as it has been every 10 years since the 1300's when the people there vowed to do so if God spared them from the black plague.

In the play, 50 natives form the chorus for the outdoor performance which begins at 5 a.m. and ends at 5:30 p.m., regardless of weather conditions.

Local people also perform in the play, with no one in the cast except those born in Oberrammagau.

In the 1960 performance an innkeeper acted the part of Jesus, after growing, as did the other male actors, a beard for more than a year.

Played at intervals throughout the year, the play was seen last year by more than a million persons. Over 4,000 persons had parts in the performances.

The Norwegians are wonderful at designs, as Mrs. Chipley and the other visitors found when they visited the glass blowers, silversmiths, weavers and pottery makers.

Before returning to the United States, the Holly Ridge teacher visited other European countries, including Switzerland where she saw an experiment in international living.

The experiment is carried on in the Pestalozzi Children's Village at Trogen, Switzerland, where war orphans, about 16 of the same nationality, share each of the cottages. Each cottage is presided over by a housemother and father.

Here children of Austria, Greece, England, Switzerland, Germany and Tibet are reared in the manner of their native homes, but are brought together each afternoon for a study of cultural subjects.

Now Mrs. Chipley praises the "friendly Scandinavian people" and feels that the International Summer School is accomplishing much for world fellowship and understanding.

Norway Presents Many Photographic Opportunities

Nature's Pentup Fury Tapped For More Power

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)— A rainstorm in Minnesota, a spring in a Wisconsin meadow, a rivulet of melting snow in Michigan. Nature taps these and a thousand other sources for the crushing torrent she hurls over the brink of Niagara Falls.

For 200 years, in a pursuit of power for the wheels of his industry, man has pitted his body and brain against this pent-up fury of an eighth of a continent.

On Friday, he will unveil his latest effort—the biggest hydroelectric complex in the Western world. The first delivery of power from the New York State Power Authority's Robert Moses Niagara power plant will course through transmission lines to waiting home and factory.

COST

The almost unbelievable total capacity of 2,190,000 kilowatts will be completed next year. The Soviets claim to top it at their new Volga River plant above Stalingrad, but in the West, only Grand Coulee, Wash., and the St. Lawrence River come close to Niagara.

The cost will be $740 million and the lives, so far, of 18 men. For this the Niagara has grudgingly given up enough power to light a million 100-watt bulbs at once.

The statistics are staggering.

If all the excavated dirt and rock was piled on one acre of land, it would be five miles high.

If all the crushed stone used in the concrete work was loaded on one freight train, it would stretch from New York to Des Moines, Iowa.

If all the cement was used for a 24-foot wide highway, it would make smooth riding from New York to Jacksonville, Fla.

If all the reinforcing steel was used to build a railroad, it would make a double-track line from New York to Cleveland.

But the biggest problem has been man himself.

In the 10 years since a new water diversion treaty between the United States and Canada made redevelopment of Niagara power possible, the project has been plagued by:

An eight-year battle between advocates of public and private power. A two-year fight to decide when an Indian reservation isn't an Indian reservation. A two-year squabble about the loss of taxable real estate. Recently there has been a nasty brawl over power rates and allocations. This looks good for a few more rounds.

Across the border Canada went to work on her share of the new water diversion rights almost before the ink was dry on the treaty. The Sir Adam Beck Generating Station No. 2, with an installed capacity of about 1,800,000 kilowatts, has been operating almost three years.

The theory of Niagra power is simplicity itself. Water runs downhill, turning a turbine as it passes. The turbine turns a generator, which creates an electric current.

The Great Lakes basin supplies the water—an average of 202,500 cubic feet per second flowing over Niagara Falls. The Niagara escarpment provides the hill — 160 feet at the falls and 165 feet in rapids above and below them.

The water is diverted from the river above the upstream rapids. It runs more than four miles past the back door of the city of Niagara Falls through twin concrete conduits to two generating stations four miles downstream from the cataract.

Under the treaty, at least 100,000 cubic feet of water per second must be permitted to flow over Niagara Falls during daylight hours in the summer. This is to preserve the falls as a scenic attraction. During other periods, the flow can be cut to as little as 50,000 cubic feet per second.

But the period of greatest water availability does not coincide with the period of greatest power need. So a 1,880-acre reservoir has been built in back of the power stations, 550 acres of it on land previously owned by the Tuscarora Indians.

DURING NIGHT

During the night, water will be pumped up into the reservoir through a pump-generating station. Here it will fall 304 feet to the 13 turbines that will power the 13 150,000 kilowatt generators.

National attention was attracted to the project by the Indian fight. The Tuscaroras, a 600-member remnant descended from one of the powerful six nations of the Iroquois Confederacy, didn't want to give up their land.

At one point the power authority offered them $3 million—$2,170 an acre for 1,383 acres. After losing in the Supreme Court of the United States, they settled for $850,000 — $1,545 an acre for 550 acre. The power authority trimmed its need for land by raising the height of the dikes around the reservoir.

The issue shook down to a question of whether the land the authority sought could be condemned like any other land or whether it was protected by treaty and reserved for the Indians. Ultimately, the Supreme Court held that it wasn't reservation land at all because the Indians purchased it from private owners.

Friday's first production of commercial power from two generators in the main plant, climaxing a week of civic celebration, will be accomplished in less than three years from the day the first shovelful of dirt was turned.

This is enough of a tribute to the tenacity of Robert Moses, stormy and controversial chairman of the New York Power Authority, so that his name is a part of the main generating station.

Moses' critics, as he has whaled his way through years of highways, parkways, bridges and power plants, have termed him an autocrat, a dictator and a slavedriver. The 71-year-old planner laughs them off, returning barb for barb, insult for insult, most in high good humor.

"The professional howler for public power contends that all private utilities are born wicked," he said, and in the next breath: "The professional Madison Avenue utility booster shouts back that private utilities were ordained by God to govern us."

DEBATE PAINT

A running fight with local officials over loss of assessed valuation, because power authority property is public property and non-taxable, has given Moses a fine chance to produce nicely-turned phrases.

To compensate for the loss, the authority was empowered by the New York Legislature to contribute $3 million to local municipalities and another $1.5 million for local improvements in the city. But the city claims its ultimate loss in assessed valuation will top $41 million.

In his usual cutting reply, Moses remarked: "Historically, Niagara Falls has over-taxed utility companies and under-taxed everybody else. The city is still trying to get a free ride."

More than a million kilowatts of the new power will go to private utilities for their industrial, domestic and rural customers. Another 250,000 kw has been reserved for new industry, 245,000 is headed for municipal power companies and cooperatives and 180,000 is for Ohio and Pennsylvania consumers when they need it.

OUTLOOK

Most of the rest of the production will not be firm. That is, it can be interrupted due to low water, ice or other reasons.

There won't be any immediate savings for domestic consumers. This is because the new Niagara power will replace steam generators built in recent years by private utilities to meet the demand. The steam generators will be shut down. But they still have to be paid for.

When the demand tops the power that Niagara can produce, the steam generators will be back in production and paying for themselves. Then there will be savings. This is perhaps five years away.

That doesn't make the new Niagara project a waste, of course. It is vitally needed for the future. The power has to come from someplace, and falling water remains the cheapest source.

Buenos Aires City Of Beauty, Gaiety

By BRIAN BELL

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Buenos Aires is South America's largest city, one of its prettiest and some say the continent's gayest.

The porteno, "man of the port" as Buenos Aires residents are called, likes fun. And there is plenty to amuse him here.

The city's 3,700,000 people have at their disposal two racetracks, 15 soccer stadiums, an opera house, 20 theaters, a hundred movie houses, 50 athletic clubs, 500 restaurants and scores of night clubs, big and small.

Buenos Aires is a night city. Things don't start really moving until close to midnight. The House of Deputies, in fact, thinks nothing of continuing sessions on routine matters until 4 a.m. Labor unions often meet through the night.

Most good restaurants don't start serving until 8 p.m. Until 9 they will be practically deserted. The big crowds start coming between 9:30 and 10:30. Many restaurants serve until 2 a.m.

The movies run two shows nightly, the last letting out around 12:30 or 1. Many cinemas run late shows which don't end until 3 a.m. The night clubs are open until 4 a.m.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights are the big ones for portenos. Then the many good but cheap restaurants of the city are filled with beef-eating, wine-drinking Argentines. A four-course steak dinner with wine at a first-class restaurant can be had for less than a dollar.

Argentina is the land of beef an da big filet mignon costs 50 American cents a la carte. A huge sirloin with its edges overlapping the plate costs less. The porteno eats his with French-fried potatoes, a mixed green salad, lots of rolls or bread but mostly without butter and a bottle of Argentine wine which next to Chilean vintages is considered the best in South America. Portions at all eating places are enormous and one question you never hear from the waiter is, "How's your steak?" It's always good.

RATHER EAT

Argentines aren't much on the cocktail hour; they would rather eat. Scores of confiterias, many of them with music and entertainment, occupy the portenos during the early hours of the evening. There he eats sandwiches and pastries and drinks tea or a vermouth.

The crowds, out for an evening on the town, go on to the restaurants and start on their big dinners. Afterwards, it's off to the night clubs. The late spots come in all varieties, small, medium and big; with or without dancing; a floor show, native dancers, a singeror just a record player; in the city or in the suburbs where some of the more elaborate clubs are; with a full course dinner or only sandwiches. One thing they all have in common is that while restaurants are cheap the night clubs are expensive.

The Argentine works a 36-hour week, six hours a day, six days a week. Saturday afternoon and Sundays he devotes himelf strenuously to sports—active or spectator. Portenos play soccer, rugby, basketball, tennis, polo, golf, cricket and even baseball; they row and sail on the River Plate which runs past Buenos Aires. The soccer stadiums are jammed for the regular Sunday afternoon first division matches with a crowd of 100,000 not unusual for a big event.

Any essay on Buenos Aires would be incomplete without a word about the city's many beautiful women. The mixture of nationalities that have made the Argentine of today—English, French, German, Spanish and Italian — have produced a Buenos Aires woman who may be blonde, Brunette or in between but more often than not is lovely, and she knows how to dress.

There are many other interesting and beautiful places in Argentina but to the porteno who thinks he is something special himself there is only one land and he lives there.

Many visitors who come for a few days and stay a lifetime agree with him.

Appeasing Labor Unions

Because President John F. Kennedy has already offended labor unions in several different ways and can't afford to let that ill feeling go much further, an increase in the minimum wage, from $1 to $1.25 an hour, is high on the administrations list of "must" legislation.

Any opposition to this hike is characterized as "heartless" and as coming from "greedy sweatshop owners."

Probably there are still a few greedy sweatshop owners around, and nobody else is heartless enough to contend that a breadwinner can support a large family on $40 a week these days. In fact, the average wage paid in industry today is more than twice the legal minimum.

To many it may seem strange that employers who pay all their employes far more than the present or proposed minimum wage should fight a measure which presumably benefit them by forcing their competitors to raise wages, but there are excellent reasons.

One answer is that increases in the minimum will force wage increases all along the line. This, in turn, will force inflationary pressures and make everything cost more. It will further hamper American sales of goods abroad and increase sales of lower-priced foreign products here. Many American workmen would lose their jobs in the process, while inflation would eat up the enforced wage increases.

The greater the inflation in this country the more difficult it becomes for us to sell to other countries and the easier it becomes for other countries to market their goods here. This cuts down American manufacturing at an alarming rate and forces more people out of work.

Right now we are in fear that unemployment in the United States may reach the staggering level of seven per cent. Undoubtedly a large proportion of the unemployment with which we are now faced has been brought about by the fact that such hard goods as automobiles can be manufactured at less cost in other countries.

Another reason business and industrial leaders in this country oppose any type of wage and price-fixing is that such action is in the direction of socialism and state ownership. There is no reason to think we can expect labor leaders and labor politicians to stop with a minimum wage. They surely will not be willing to forego increases in other categories. What they want is higher and higher wages and this means more and more inflation.

Back in the days of the NRA, when President Franklin D. Roosevelt was pulling for socialism and higher wages, an economist who had made a considerable study of international trade problems asserted that inflation would seriously hamper our international trade. At that time our favorable trade balance was high but since then it has dropped to the unfavorable side and in recent years the best we have been able to hope for is that it will be a little less unfavorable.

Already one Chicago union, which includes warehouse and mail order employes, is submitting a standard contract to employers which provides that if and when the minimum wage is increased by congress every employe's pay will be increased in proportion.

This would mean a 25 per cent raise across the board for every union member, which would be a tremendous percentage increase and would add a staggering load, especially in the cases of the employes who are already receiving good wages. The minimum-wage employe would go from $40 to $50 a week for a $10 raise but the $100-a-week man would go to $125, giving him a $25 a week raise and thereby increasing atill further the differential between him and the lower-paid man.

Economists say many of our economic troubles, including the high price workers must pay for food and clothing and unemployment that undermines our security, have come about because wages have risen too fast in the past.

A big, new increase now can only add to our troubles.

Veto Power In U.N.

One weapon that the United States seems to be overlooking in the matter of keeping Red China and other undesirable countries out of the United Nations is the use of its veto power.

Taking a pessimistic view from the standpoint of those opposed to communism, Adlai Stevenson, United States ambassador to the United Nations, made the grim forecast that the free world will continue to lose "more and more decisions" because it has lost its original voting majority through the indiscriminate admission of newly independent nations, particularly those from Asia and Africa, before they have attained full stature as nations. The Congo is a deplorable example. Many of these countries are both unstable and influenced by adherence to or fear of the Soviet Union. At best, they are the neutralists.

Stevenson also made the statement that it will be increasingly difficult to continue the ban on Red China as a member of the United Nations for the reason that more and more nations would go to the communist side. Apparently, our U.N. delegate is right in his evaluation of the newer members of the U.N. but there is no reason to think the United States should have difficulty in barring Red China.

If necessary, we should demonstrate our conviction on that score by invoking the veto power, even though some may regard this as a distasteful means. We have far more justification than the Russians did in the early days of the U.N. when they repeatedly vetoed admission of such nations as Eire and Spain for no valid reason other than to preserve the Soviet ratio in the assembly until it could be augmented.

A rereading of the preamble to the United Nations charter should certainly demonstrate that the bandit nation, Red China, holds no claim to membership in the family of nations which is dedicated to saving succeeding generations from the scourge of war.

It is difficult to understand why the United States apparently has forgotten it possesses the power of veto in the U.N. and can exercise that power whenever it wish-to do so.

Furthermore, the United States should never become so heavily involved with the United Nations that it loses its identity and independence. It should never turn its authority over to the world court and should leave itself in a position to get out of the United Nations entirely if that organization should become heavily loaded with communist nations that its objective would become one of conquest rather than end of peace.

We cannot afford to allow the United Nations to become an instrument for aiding the communists in their drive to take over the free world.

Assurance Of Peace Within

GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Conservatives, Reactionaries

Former Believe In Progress Of Mankind Within Margins Of Historic Memory; "Liberals" Run Rampant

Conservatives are persons who believe that the progress of mankind must be within the margins of historic memory. Conservatives regard liberals, in this century, as persons whose judgment permets them to run wild, to take unscreened actions upon impulses. A reactionary, on the other hand, is a person who resists change as adamantly as a liberal welcomes change. The conservative achieves more then the liberal because his thinking is within national traditional margins. The reactionary is destructive because he ignores all new factors in a situation; he lives in the past as though nothing has happened since some date which he fixed in his mind. In politics such a person may accept the period of Mark Hanna as the most suitable for the United States or in morals, the era of Cotton Mather as preferable. He very often rejects statistical data as not affecting his point of view. He insists that he possesses an unbreakable code of life. Nevertheless, he does not wear a Prince Albert coat of the 1890's or a stock of the early 1900's nor does his wife wear her hair a la Brunnhilde in a thick long braid wound around her skull.

The reactionary does recognize fashion but cannot adjust to change. He believes in genealogy as a guide to character despite all the investigations that have been done in the psychology of inherited characteristics. The conservative, like the liberal, looks at all that comes up, but he screens current data through the sieve of universal experience, whereas the liberal too often accepts the new as virtuous because it is new and different.

One says that a doctor is conservative who waits until something is proven about the side effects of a remedy. A doctor who is not conservative reads the attractive catalogue and experiments on his patients. The reactionary doctor says it is all bunk because it was not taught in his day in college. Some persons stop learning anything, except by experience, the day they get a cap and gown.

The conservative in economics has an enormous respect for the hardness of money, recognizing that those nations which permitted their currencies to go soft and stay soft too long collapse politically and disappear from history. People, of course, do not disappear; only nations are conquered and absorbed. Nevertheless, there are strong men among every people who survive every adventure in history and relive their national traditions.

The reactionary believes that some peoples are superior to others. The conservative accepts superiority only on the basis of achievement, of character, of personality. He respects a political radical such as Einstein for his accomplishments in physics. The reactionary is liable to say that Einstein's politics sounded nutty to him, ignoring all else. The liberal is liable to accept Einstein's political views because he was so great a physicist.

Similarly the reactionary says that Bertrand Russell is an immoral person because of his unorthodox views on marriage, ignoring the fact that Russell is one of the world's greatest mathematicians. The conservative looks at his mathematics and his philosophy. The liberals say that his views on marriage must have validity because he is an outstanding mathematician and philospher.

Perhaps all this is too diagrammatic but it is substantially descriptive of the three broad points of view which influence opinion in this century. Of course, in addition, there are persons who might be described as articulate screw-balls who have no philosophy of life but who pick up some special aberration or hate and make a life of that. Such persons are deceptive, particularly among conservatives, because whereas they may believe in the economics of the welfare state, they hate the Eisenhower administration because it has enforced the Brown decision of the Supreme Court. Or, there are those who call themselves capitalists but prefer fiat to hard money. Or, there are some who believe firmly in the Constitution but would withhold its benefits from Jews, Catholics, Armenians, Syrians, Negroes and anybody else that comes to mind. Such persons often regard themselves as conservatives which they are not because they reject history memory; they are political and social narcissists. They know by instinct what is right, although instinct is a primitive rather than a cultured response of the mind.

The conservative often finds himself married to the reactionary over details and the miscegenation is confusing, just as the liberal often finds himself tied to the Communist and is called a leftie.

ALLEN—SCOTT REPORT

Powers Release

Hinted To Stevenson By Zorin 'If Relations Continue Cordial'

WASHINGTON, — Premier Khrushchev is personally letting it be known he is willing to release U-2 plane pilot Francis Powers.

The Kremlin ruler has communicated this dramatic word to President Kennedy through their representatives at the United Nations — Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, who had a long talk with Khrushchev during a Russian visit in 1959, and Ambassador Valerian Zorin.

The White House is attaching the utmost significance to Khrushchev's message because it was transmitted through Zorin.

The Soviet diplomat, who is much closer to Khrushchev than Washington Ambassador Mikhail Menshikev, initiated the discussions that led to last week's spectacular release of the two RB-47 pilots.

The day after Kennedy took office, Zorin got in touch with Stevenson and indicated that a direct request from the new Administration would open the way for the return of the two US. pilots. Kennedy immediately directed Moscow Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson to seek a personal meeting with Khrushchev.

That was promptly granted, and the outcome was the liberation of the airmen.

Regarding Powers, Zorin told Stevenson, "Premier Khrushchev is considering releasing him in a few weeks if cordial relations continue between our two governments.

Immediately upon receiving this information, the President cabled Ambassador Thompson to make another effort to see Powers before flying to Washington for consultations next week.

Despite repeated requests, Thompson has never been permitted to talk to the imprisoned pilot.

LOTS MORE TO COME—After Zorin's pointed intimation about Powers, the Kremlin envoy then sounded out Stevenson on the following:

A meeting between the President and Khrushchev in March, when the latter comes to New York for a UN session. Zorin was definite that Khrushchev plans to make this trip.

An invitation from the President to Khrushchev to come to Washington during his UN stay.

The possibility of Khrushchev being allowed to visit other parts of the U.S.; in effect, no limitations being put on his traveling about the country.

The President's reaction to a Khrushchev invitation to visit Russia later this year. President Eisenhower had agreed to do that last spring, but Khrushchev irately withdrew the invitation after the U-2 plane episode.

President Kennedy has made no reply as yet to these overtures.

However, Ambassador Stevenson expressed his personal belief to Zorin that there would be no difficulty in arranging a meeting between the President and Khrushchev if the latter comes to the UN.

Stevenson pointed out the President has repeatedly voiced willingness to confer with anyone to promote peace.

If the President does go to Russia, it would most likely be in the fall after Congress adjourns, probably in August owing to the large legislative schedule confronting it. The President plans to submit a number of far -reaching programs that will take a lot of time.

The President may go to Paris in May for the annual NATO meeting. That is still undecided, but the Secret Service, entrusted with his safety, has been alerted to start planning for that.

But prior to this possible trip, the President will be host to Prime Minister Macmillan, President de Gaulle and Chancellor Adenauer, in that order.

Preparations already are underway for early visits by them.

The President had his first trans - Atlantic telephone talk with Macmillan last weekend, following the British leader's visit with de Gaulle.

Views Of Our Readers

Voices Appreciation

Rayville, La.

To the Editor:

As president of the Richland Parish Teachers' Association, I wish to express my appreciation to the north Louisiana representatives who supported the one per cent sales tax as a weapon for maintaining segregation. At a special meeting of our organization resolutions were made wholeheartedly endorsing all efforts on behalf of our state to preserve segregated schools. The members of the organization voted unanimously to send telegrams to Representatives Gibbs, Johns, Wilson, Downes, and Senator Gilbert showing our wishes.

Although this measure failed to pass the senate, a way will be found if all of us work together not counting the cost of personal gain or effort.

MILTON POSEY
By Mrs. Helen Gaines,
Secretary

'Southern Heritage'

To the Editor:

Recently an AP account, detailing the January 28, 1961 observance by Governor Davis of the date 'January 28, 1861' was carried on Page 8A of your publication. I had hoped that such Louisiana 'celebrations' would be given 'Page 1' coverage!

Having a 'Southern heritage', I find it difficult to anticipate that I am to be required to 'accept integration', although I very much fear (despite your many past reassurances) that ". . .'integration' is here to stay — at least for awhile!. . ."

Now until very recently you have been permitting us 'Southerners' to feast upon a delicious 'Anti-Union' diet! Our salad course has been the disclosure that the 14th Amendment to the Constitution was never properly ratified, or tested in the courts; our 'piece - de - resistance' has been the tasty stew that the '1954 Supreme Court Decision was not necessarily the law of the land, but rather was merely a 'sociological' study, and our desert has been your delicious 'States Rights Pudding', and you have served and catered us with the correct impression that you were prepared to 'fight to the last Southern-Gentleman' for the 'sacred principles' which were just recently 're-dedicated' by Governor Davis — principles for which our 'grandfathers fought' and principles which — if you 'swap horses' — you will, in effect, be 'deserting' as a 'lost cause', in favor of 'more practical approaches to solution.

I hope you will not regard me as 'impertinent'! I did recently protest the failure of the 'Neville' band to play Dixie in the Inaugural Parade. However, 'Dixie' was rendered — by other Dixie and Dixieland Bands, including one from the State of Tennessee — and the Inaugural Parade was no less colorful and enjoyable!

Incidentally, the 'South' defeated the 'North' quite soundly, at the Battle of Mansfield, when the Yankees marched North out of Alexandria and up the Red River . . . so let's urge Governor Davis to 're-enact' this Battle in celebration of Louisiana's Civil War Centennial

Recreation Program

West Monroe, La.

To The Editor:

The news some weeks ago carried the story of the wonderful new recreation program of Monroe that will cost $1.7 million dollars. The program to be financed by a bond issue recently voted by the property owners of the city of Monroe.

Monroe had a park playground and a public swimming pool before plans were made for this great new program. Now four more centers will be added with additional swimming pools.

Authorities on recreation say of the new Monroe project "The planned recreation centers, which have been called among the best in the South, will be located in strategic areas of the city and will meet the needs for many years."

Several years ago along with other people who were concerned and even alarmed at the juvenile and teen age crime wave striking the country, I asked a judge, how, and in what way could we combat the rising wave of teen age crime. He said in substance, "It would help a lot to have proper and adequate recreation facilities. He stated or implied, playground ball parks, basketball courts, swimming pools and recreational buildings would do a world of good toward saving young people from crime."

Our young people in the West Monroe area have to cross the river into Monroe for these facilities and with these added new ones giving the city some of the best in the South, more and more this will be true. The fine people of Monroe will not likely object, but I am asking, is it right for this to continue over a period of time. As both cities grew the many fine young people west of the river will need recreation facilities the same as the Monroe youth.

I want to ask this serious question, will it take the well meaning, intelligent people on the west side of the river as long to get concerned about an adequate recreational program as it did a high school, junior high school and hospital? The west side was years late with schools and hospitals. Now the same late pattern is being followed about this need.

Water Is Vital

It Is Plain We Must Rapidly Increase Supplies And Systems

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Big studies of big subjects like atomic energy, Disarmament and Social Welfare all have their place in the new frontier, but human life in our times may turn on obscure and less dramatic matters.

Water — Years ago I woke up in an airliner somewhere over Utah and fell into conversation with a seat mate. He told me he was with the Department of the Interior. I told him that I was traveling in the western states to write about vital minerals, chiefly uranium. He said:

"Let me make a prediction. In the next decade or so the most important mineral in the United States and the world will be water."

The time which my unknown companion so casually predicted is upon us. The U. S. Senate for some time has had a committee staff at work on national water resources. A report issued last summer found that of the 117 million Americans who receive public water supply, 70 million are actually reusing water that has already been at least once through the sewage and waste disposal system. As the population grows, and industry expands, it is plain that we must rapidly increase both water supplies and water systems.

Most of the so - called emergent nations have a water problem which is probably as urgent as anything in the political or economic category. I have on my desk a heap of documents and a list of further studies on water supply. One of the best known, especially in the most advanced countries like Israel, is the conversion of saline water to fresh water. Less well known is a project that has direct application to 16 of our 17 western states. It is a plan to eradicate, in whole or part, the 70 plant species known as phreatophytes. They depend for their life upon underground water, but render very little benefit to human life.

This species — Pickleweed, saltgrass, saltcedar are fairly well-known varieties — dominate jungle and desert vegetation all over the globe, so that elimination would enormously add to the arable land and food supplies.

The young — This capital city has recently been host to a White House Conference on Aging. One of the major goals and problems of the New Frontier is the care and employment of persons of advanced years.

This emphasis on age could be called something of a Democratic party fixation, but in the House the other day Congressman Tom Curtis (R., Mo.) a GOP-intellectual called attention to the opposite trend — younging. Curtis has uncovered some evidence to show that a younging process is competing with the aging process, and in some parts of the Free World is successfully competing.

In Australia, the percentage of voters over 50 will start a decline this year. In New Zealand, it will start a decline in 1962. The trend toward younging voters will reach the United States in 1970, and the United Kingdom in 1980.

A speculative conclusion might be that the socialistic trends in the English speaking world are not here to stay. In years to come the important legislation will concern electorates who are more concerned with the productive years of their lives than with pensions, retirement and hospitalization.

Making Democracy Work — The emphasis in the new frontier and Modern Republicanism is upon giving more suffrage to the ignorant, the illiterate, the poor and the oppressed. But a study by the American Heritage Foundation raises some other points. There were an estimated 19.5 million citizens of voting age who, in 1960, were unable to vote. But by far the largest group of these were the eight million unable to meet local requirements as to "residence."

The next largest group were the five million kept at home by illness or invalidism.

Appeasing Labor Unions

Because President John F. Kennedy has already offended labor unions in several different ways and can't afford to let that ill feeling go much further, an increase in the minimum wage, from $1 to $1.25 an hour, is high on the administrations list of "must" legislation.

Any opposition to this hike is characterized as "heartless" and as coming from "greedy sweatshop owners."

Probably there are still a few greedy sweatshop owners around, and nobody else is heartless enough to contend that a breadwinner can support a large family on $40 a week these days. In fact, the average wage paid in industry today is more than twice the legal minimum.

To many it may seem strange that employers who pay all their employes far more than the present or proposed minimum wage should fight a measure which presumably benefit them by forcing their competitors to raise wages, but there are excellent reasons.

One answer is that increases in the minimum will force wage increases all along the line. This, in turn, will force inflationary pressures and make everything cost more. It will further hamper American sales of goods abroad and increase sales of lower-priced foreign products here. Many American workmen would lose their jobs in the process, while inflation would eat up the enforced wage increases.

The greater the inflation in this country the more difficult it becomes for us to sell to other countries and the easier it becomes for other countries to market their goods here. This cuts down American manufacturing at an alarming rate and forces more people out of work.

Right now we are in fear that unemployment in the United States may reach the staggering level of seven per cent. Undoubtedly a large proportion of the unemployment with which we are now faced has been brought about by the fact that such hard goods as automobiles can be manufactured at less cost in other countries.

Another reason business and industrial leaders in this country oppose any type of wage and price-fixing is that such action is in the direction of socialism and state ownership. There is no reason to think we can expect labor leaders and labor politicians to stop with a minimum wage. They surely will not be willing to forego increases in other categories. What they want is higher and higher wages and this means more and more inflation.

Back in the days of the NRA, when President Franklin D. Roosevelt was pulling for socialism and higher wages, an economist who had made a considerable study of international trade problems asserted that inflation would seriously hamper our international trade. At that time our favorable trade balance was high but since then it has dropped to the unfavorable side and in recent years the best we have been able to hope for is that it will be a little less unfavorable.

Already one Chicago union, which includes warehouse and mail order employes, is submitting a standard contract to employers which provides that if and when the minimum wage is increased by congress every employe's pay will be increased in proportion.

This would mean a 25 per cent raise across the board for every union member, which would be a tremendous percentage increase and would add a staggering load, especially in the cases of the employes who are already receiving good wages. The minimum-wage employe would go from $40 to $50 a week for a $10 raise but the $100-a-week man would go to $125, giving him a $25 a week raise and thereby increasing still further the differential between him and the lower-paid man.

Economists say many of our economic troubles, including the high price workers must pay for food and clothing and unemployment that undermines our security, have come about because wages have risen too fast in the past.

A big, new increase now can only add to our troubles.

Veto Power In U.N.

One weapon that the United States seems to be overlooking in the matter of keeping Red China and other undesirable countries out of the United Nations is the use of its veto power.

Taking a pessimistic view from the standpoint of those opposed to communism, Adlai Stevenson, United States ambassador to the United Nations, made the grim forecast that the free world will continue to lose "more and more decisions" because it has lost its original voting majority through the indiscriminate admission of newly independent nations, particularly those from Asia and Africa, before they have attained full stature as nations. The Congo is a deplorable example. Many of these countries are both unstable and influenced by adherence to or fear of the Soviet Union. At best, they are the neutralists.

Stevenson also made the statement that it will be increasingly difficult to continue the ban on Red China as a member of the United Nations for the reason that more and more nations would go to the communist side. Apparently, our U.N. delegate is right in his evaluation of the newer members of the U.N. but there is no reason to think the United States should have difficulty in barring Red China.

If necessary, we should demonstrate our conviction on that score by invoking the veto power, even though some may regard this as a distasteful means. We have far more justification than the Russians did in the early days of the U.N. when they repeatedly vetoed admission of such nations as Eire and Spain for no valid reason other than to preserve the Soviet ratio in the assembly until it could be augmented.

A rereading of the preamble to the United Nations charter should certainly demonstrate that the bandit nation, Red China, holds no claim to membership in the family of nations which is dedicated to saving succeeding generations from the scourge of war.

It is difficult to understand why the United States apparently has forgotten it possesses the power of veto in the U.N. and can exercise that power whenever it wish to do so.

Furthermore, the United States should never become so heavily involved with the United Nations that it loses its identity and independence. It should never turn its authority over to the world court and should leave itself in a position to get out of the United Nations entirely if that organization should become heavily loaded with communist nations that its objective would become one of conquest rather than one of peace.

We cannot afford to allow the United Nations to become an instrument for aiding the communists in their drive to take over the free world.

Conservatives, Reactionaries

Former Believe In Progress Of Mankind Within Margins Of Historic Memory; "Liberals" Run Rampant

Conservatives are persons who believe that the progress of mankind must be within the margins of historic memory. Conservatives regard liberals, in this century, as persons whose judgment permets them to run wild, to take unscreened actions upon impulses. A reactionary, on the other hand, is a person who resists change as adamantly as a liberal welcomes change. The conservative achieves more then the liberal because his thinking is within national traditional margins. The reactionary is destructive because he ignores all new factors in a situation; he lives in the past as though nothing has happened since some date which he fixed in his mind. In politics such a person may accept the period of Mark Hanna as the most suitable for the United States or in morals, the era of Cotton Mather as preferable. He very often rejects statistical data as not affecting his point of view. He insists that he possesses an unbreakable code of life. Nevertheless, he does not wear a Prince Albert coat of the 1890's or a stock of the early 1900's nor does his wife wear her hair a la Brunnhilde in a thick long braid wound around her skull.

The reactionary does recognize fashion but cannot adjust to change. He believes in genealogy as a guide to character despite all the investigations that have been done in the psychology of inherited characteristics. The conservative, like the liberal, looks at all that comes up, but he screens current data through the sieve of universal experience, whereas the liberal too often accepts the new as virtuous because it is new and different.

One says that a doctor is conservative who waits until something is proven about the side effects of a remedy. A doctor who is not conservative reads the attractive catalogue and experiments on his patients. The reactionary doctor says it is all bunk because it was not taught in his day in college. Some persons stop learning anything, except by experience, the day they get a cap and gown.

The conservative in economics has an enormous respect for the hardness of money, recognizing that those nations which permitted their currencies to go soft and stay soft too long collapse politically and disappear from history. People, of course, do not disappear; only nations are conquered and absorbed. Nevertheless, there are strong men among every people who survive every adventure in history and relive their national traditions.

The reactionary believes that some peoples are superior to others. The conservative accepts superiority only on the basis of achievement, of character, of personality. He respects a political radical such as Einstein for his accomplishments in physics. The reactionary is liable to say that Einstein's politics sounded nutty to him, ignoring all else. The liberal is liable to accept Einstein's political views because he was so great a physicist.

Similarly the reactionary says that Bertrand Russell is an immoral person because of his unorthodox views on marriage, ignoring the fact that Russell is one of the world's greatest mathematicians. The conservative looks at his mathematics and his philosophy. The liberals say that his views on marriage must have validity because he is an outstanding mathematician and philospher.

Perhaps all this is too diagrammatic but it is substantially descriptive of the three broad points of view which influence opinion in this century. Of course, in addition, there are persons who might be described as articulate screw-balls who have no philosophy of life but who pick up some special aberration or hate and make a life of that. Such persons are deceptive, particularly among conservatives, because whereas they may believe in the economics of the welfare state, they hate the Eisenhower administration because it has enforced the Brown decision of the Supreme Court. Or, there are those who call themselves capitalists but prefer fiat to hard money. Or, there are some who believe firmly in the Constitution but would withhold its benefits from Jews, Catholics, Armenians, Syrians, Negroes and anybody else that comes to mind. Such persons often regard themselves as conservatives which they are not because they reject history memory; they are political and social narcissists. They know by instinct what is right, although instinct is a primitive rather than a cultured response of the mind.

The conservative often finds himself married to the reactionary over details and the miscegenation is confusing, just as the liberal often finds himself tied to the Communist and is called a leftie.

Powers Release

Hinted To Stevenson By Zorin 'If Relations Continue Cordial'

WASHINGTON, — Premier Khrushchev is personally letting it be known he is willing to release U-2 plane pilot Francis Powers.

The Kremlin ruler has communicated this dramatic word to President Kennedy through their representatives at the United Nations — Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, who had a long talk with Khrushchev during a Russian visit in 1959, and Ambassador Valerian Zorin.

The White House is attaching the utmost significance to Khrushchev's message because it was transmitted through Zorin.

The Soviet diplomat, who is much closer to Khrushchev than Washington Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov, initiated the discussions that led to last week's spectacular release of the two RB-47 pilots.

The day after Kennedy took office, Zorin got in touch with Stevenson and indicated that a direct request from the new Administration would open the way for the return of the two US. pilots. Kennedy immediately directed Moscow Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson to seek a personal meeting with Khrushchev.

That was promptly granted, and the outcome was the liberation of the airmen.

Regarding Powers, Zorin told Stevenson, "Premier Khrushchev is considering releasing him in a few weeks if cordial relations continue between our two governments.

Immediately upon receiving this information, the President cabled Ambassador Thompson to make another effort to see Powers before flying to Washington for consultations next week.

Despite repeated requests, Thompson has never been permitted to talk to the imprisoned pilot.

LOTS MORE TO COME'—After Zorin's pointed intimation about Powers, the Kremlin envoy then sounded out Stevenson on the following:

A meeting between the President and Khrushchev in March, when the latter comes to New York for a UN session. Zorin was definite that Khrushchev plans to make this trip.

An invitation from the President to Khrushchev to come to Washington during his UN stay.

The possibility of Khrushchev being allowed to visit other parts of the U.S.; in effect, no limitations being put on his traveling about the country.

The President's reaction to a Khrushchev invitation to visit Russia later this year. President Eisenhower had agreed to do that last spring, but Khrushchev irately withdrew the invitation after the U-2 plane episode.

President Kennedy has made no reply as yet to these overtures.

However, Ambassador Stevenson expressed his personal belief to Zorin that there would be no difficulty in arranging a meeting between the President and Khrushchev if the latter comes to the UN.

Stevenson pointed out the President has repeatedly voiced willingness to confer with anyone to promote peace.

If the President does go to Russia, it would most likely be in the fall after Congress adjourns, probably in August owning to the large legislative schedule confronting it. The President plans to submit a number of far -reaching programs that will take a lot of time.

The President may go to Paris in May for the annual NATO meeting. That is still undecided, but the Secret Service, entrusted with his safety, has been alerted to start planning for that.

But prior to this possible trip, the President will be host to Prime Minister Macmillan, President de Gaulle and Chancellor Adenauer, in that order.

Preparations already are underway for early visits by them.

The President had his first trans - Atlantic telephone talk with Macmillan last weekend, following the British leader's visit with de Gaulle.

Voices Appreciation

Rayville, La.

To the Editor:

As president of the Richland Parish Teachers' Association, I wish to express my appreciation to the north Louisiana representatives who supported the one per cent sales tax as a weapon for maintaining segregation. At a special meeting of our organization resolutions were made wholeheartedly endorsing all efforts on behalf of our state to preserve segregated schools. The members of the organization voted unanimously to send telegrams to Representatives Gibbs, Johns, Wilson, Downes, and Senator Gilbert showing our wishes.

Although this measure failed to pass the senate, a way will be found if all of us work together not counting the cost of personal gain or effort.

Adenauer Oldest Head Of Any Government

EDITOR'S NOTE — This month West Germany's ageless Konrad Adenauer, in the dual role of mediator and copartner, calls on French President Charles de Gaulle and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan for important talks on the future of the European community. In advance of the visits, the chancellor granted an exclusive interview to an Associated Press reporter.

By JACK KOEHLER

BONN, Germany (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, with a lot of history behind him as the world's oldest government chief, faces a crucial year.

Next fall, West Germans elect a new Bundestag—lower house of Parliament — and the Socialists hope to win control and replace Adenauer with young West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt.

But "Der Alte," as Germans fondly call their unbending old man, isn't worried about Brandt. "As far as the elections are concerned," he said with a rare smile during an interview, "I am in good spirits. I am sure that there won't be any essential changes."

NOTHING

In the past year the German chancellor has become a sort of mediator between the two rival trade blocs, the European Economic Community—led by France and West Germany—and the Eupean Free Trade Association — headed by Britain. In his first important foreign policy action of the new year Adenauer is scheduled to visit French President Charles de Gaulle next Thursday. Two weeks later he goes to Britain for talks with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

"If nothing extraordinary happens, we will discuss the entire world political situation," Adenauer says. "Naturally, this means that we will also discuss the relationship between the EEC and the EFTA. I am of the opinion that we have to put an end to the differences between them in the New Year."

He doesn't say so, but Adenauer is likely to have a tough session with De Gaulle. Relations between the two statesmen cooled noticeably last year because of De Gaulle's nationalistic views.

The chancellor was especially irked when De Gaulle came out for creation of national armed forces inside NATO. Adenauer says the only way Europe can be effectively defended is with strong integrated forces.

Contrary to predictions by some diplomatic circles, Adenauer does not feel the Russians will produce a new Berlin crisis this spring. "I believe that Khrushchev will first give the new administration in Washington a certain period of time. He is smart enough to know that a new administration must have some time to break in."

A member of the chancellor's staff broke in to say: "People are going to talk about crises until we get one — until Mr. Khrushchev feels challenged to produce one."

"You're absolutely right," Adenauer said. "Nothing but talk of crises..." He shook his head gravely and his voice trailed off.

The chancellor has good reason to be tired of crises. At 85, he is in his 12th year as leader of West Germany, a bustling, energetic, nation—split from the eastern half of Germany by the Iron Curtain and victim of some of the sharpest tensions of the cold war. Not the least of these is West Berlin, 120 miles inside the Iron Curtain border.

The Soviet Union wants to turn West Berlin into a "free city." The West opposes this, contending it would be the first step toward a Communist takeover.

This problem and any of the other numerous East-West differences can only be settled by controlled disarmament, Adenauer maintains.

"Without controlled disarmament there will be no peace and without a real peace all the nations will continue to arm themselves. This armament race is going to be a grave danger to the welfare of the entire world. Peace must finally come, the fear must be lifted from humanity; fear of the future and the fear of a terrible war."

The chancellor's face looks grave when he talks about this subject.

"When one has started with effective controlled disarmament, the entire world political situation will experience such an easing of tensions that one can then solve the other problems."

When he celebrated his 85th birthday last Jan. 5, Adenauer looked back at his 12 years as chancellor and beyond. What have been his greatest triumphs?

"Let's not use the word 'triumph'", he says. "Triumph always suggests a defeated enemy and I don't want to talk about this.

POLITICAL

"The highlight of my political life was the Petersberg treaty and the ratification of the treaty by the Bundestag, because it meant that start of the federal republic's turn toward the Western powers."

By the "Petersberg treaty" the chancellor meant the contractual agreement signed with the United States, Britain and France in 1952 ending the state of war and including West Germany in the community of free nations as an equal partner.

Signed at the swank Hotel Petersberg overlooking the picturesque Rhine Valley, the agreements also regulated the stationing of Allied troops in West Germany.

"The other highlight is the federal republic's acceptance into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization."

In his own way the German chancellor has always encouraged a union or community of European states.

Once he remarked, "The unity of Europe was the dream of a few. It became the hope of many. Today it is a necessity for us all."

Asked how he sizes up the chances for a United States of Europe now, he replied: "It will come. But one must have patience.

"It has never been thought that the European states should give up their independence entirely. But such a union must grow and must develop itself. I am full of confidence and full of hope."

Adenauer's staunch Europeanism is matched by perhaps even firmer opposition to communism. He once coupled the two, saying, "The dream of Soviet domination of Europe can only be destroyed if the unity of Europe is realized."

As for meeting Khrushchev before a new summit conference, he says: "Nonsense, it wouldn't accomplish anything."

Another trip much talked about but now apparently indefinitely postponed would have taken Adenauer to the United States in February for a meeting with the new president.

When Kennedy was elected, the chancellor was pictured as being uneasy about the new administration's future foreign policy. But he now seems to have become reassured and gives this view of future world developments:

"World politics will be determined largely by the United States. Naturally, the new president and the new administration in the United States are going to think differently on certain matters than the old administration and the former president. But nevertheless, I am convinced that the basic policies will continue."

With this assumption in mind, Adenauer feels there is a chance —even if only a slim one—that a way can be found to move closer toward world peace.

In the 12 years he has been in office, Adenauer has not changed his habits a bit. He still rises around 6 every morning and breakfasts an hour later while he scans the morning newspapers and the overnight cables.

After breakfast, he steps into his black Mercedes which takes him from his home at the small village of Rhoendorf to his white chancellory in downtown Bonn. He usually arrives there about 9:30 a.m. and rarely leaves before 9 p.m.

AT HOME

He works at home on Saturdays and Sundays. During the little free time he has, Adenauer likes to putter in his garden and tend his roses, to read or listen to classical music.

How does he keep up a pace that would soon tire many younger men?

"Well, I'll tell you despite the fact that I'll make enemies again" Adenauer said and added with a smile: "I don't smoke."

"Now the world's tobacco industry, including that of the United States, is going to be against me."

Adenauer, a staunch Catholic, is a light eater and doesn't drink hard liquor. He likes an occasional glass of white wine.

A reporter recently asked if there is something that is more precious to him than anything else.

"Now you want to humanize me, don't you?", answered the old man dryly. "Well, I'm going to be a human being. There is such a thing but I'm not going to say what it is."

But ask him about his grandchildren — he has 21 — and the chancellor is liable to talk for an hour. Twice a widower, he has four sons and three daughters.

"My youngest grandchildren still are infants. The other 19 and their parents visited me last Christmas. I have to tell you," he said spiritedly, "we were 35 persons in one room and I was truly afraid that the floor wouldn't hold us. I was happy that the holidays passed without an accident."

Two years ago, Adenauer announced he would retire and would seek the ceremonial office of president of West Germany. But a hassle over his successor ensued and he changed his mind.

Since then he has refused to answer any questions about retirement.

Adenauer, as one current story goes, was rocking his 5-year-old grandson on his knee and asked the boy what he planned to be when he grew up. "Chancellor," the boy replied.

Adenauer looked at the youngster and said, "You better think of something else, our constitution provides for only one chancellor."

THANK YOU, MR. PRESIDENT

History Of Presidential Conference Is Traced

EDITOR'S NOTE—It hasn't a legal leg to stand on, and a president can dispense with it any time he chooses. Yet the presidential news conference has grown into an essential element of American democracy. AP reporter Arthur Edson, who has attended his share, looks at the history of this unique institution.

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) —Possibly no one there that day realized history was being made.

Woodrow Wilson was nervous, embarrassed, and full of righteousness.

Reporters gathered around him were willing to listen, but probably were unwilling to be impressed, especially since Wilson's little lecture dealt with how they should run their business.

"I feel that a large part of the success of public affairs," Wilson said, "depends on the newspaper men—not so much on the editorial writers, because we live down what they say, as upon the news writers, because the news is the atmosphere of public affairs.

"Unless you get the right setting to affairs—disperse the right impression—things go wrong. If you play up the differences of opinion and predict difficulties you are impeding public business."

Thus, on March 15, 1913, a political institution was born.

Woodrow Wilson had invented presidential news conferences.

Until Dwight D. Eisenhower, with rare exceptions, the president was never directly quoted. Sometimes he wasn't even identified. "A high White House source disclosed today," a news story might begin, leaving the reader to guess how high the source might be.

But Eisenhower, advised by his press secretary, James C. Hagerty, made major changes.

Photographers were allowed to shoot away throughout the conference. Once the transcript of what Eisenhower had said was checked for any real bloopers, it was released to reporters for direct quotation, with the words tumbling and stumbling every which way, just as Eisenhower had said them.

Now President Kennedy, ignoring some strong suggestions that the conferences should be restricted rather than expanded, has taken another step—and even his friends admit it could be a risky one.

Kennedy plans to continue his policy of live broadcasts, both television and radio, for all news conferences.

Now it's on the record, instantly, for all the world to see.

"Do you feel there is any risk?" Kennedy was asked at his first news conference.

Kennedy didn't answer directly. He merely said that Eisenhower spoke on the record, too, and that he thinks the country's interests are as well protected under this system.

Yet despite the presidential disclaimer, it's still a daring move.

All presidents have dealt with the press, of course, but only in the last half century have there been regular question-and-answer sessions with newsmen.

Many observers are now convinced that democracy couldn't function nearly as effectively without the news conference. They say that it gives the president a chance to get his views to the public, and that it gives the newsmen, who here represent the public, a chance to ask questions that should be asked about the mammoth, complex federal organization.

Many a political scandal, so the argument runs, could be swept under the White House rug if it weren't for the opportunity the conferences offer for questioning.

Only at a news conference can a president be asked in person why he allowed, or did not allow, certain things to happen. If the reporters do their work conscientiously, the public's rights can be protected.

Yet if this is true, democracy's effectiveness hangs by a slender thread. For news conferences have no legal support.

They are strictly the whim of the president. He can meet with reporters as often, or as seldom, as he cares to under whatever ground rules he wants.

Yet news conferences are so well established, and they can be used so much to his advantage, that each president on entering office usually announces he plans to meet frequently with his good friends, the newsmen.

But a president's honeymoon is soon over. Certainly Wilson, who began by saying he wanted to make friends of the press, never succeeded. He was suspicious of most newspapers, especially when they tried to guess what course he might take.

ANYTHING

"Do not believe anything you read in the newspapers," he wrote a friend. "If you read the papers I see, they are utterly untrustworthy. Their lying is shameless and colossal!"

It's hardly surprising that when the war came on, giving him an excuse, Wilson permitted the conferences to lapse.

Whatever else history may say about Warren G. Harding, as a newspaper man himself — he was publisher of the Marion (Ohio) Star—he understood and liked newsmen.

He not only restored news conferences; he also put them on a twice-a-week schedule.

But as Harding blundered in his appointments, so did he blunder with reporters.

His classic error came after a Four-Power Treaty session when he blurted out an off-the-cuff answer that was completely wrong, with international complications.

Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover wanted their questions written. But writing a question didn't mean you'd get an answer.

Coolidge ducked so many that reporters finally ganged up on him. Each wrote out precisely the same query. Coolidge picked up each question, glanced at it, and discarded it in turn.

When he reached the last one, he said: "I have here a question about the condition of children in Puerto Rico," which of course he didn't. But he methodically plowed through a long, dry reply.

On this alone, you'd have to number Coolidge among the presidential humorists.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, of course, was the old master of the press conference.

He enjoyed the give and take, used the conference to further his plans, and wound up having an incredible 998 of them.

The press conference, Roosevelt said, is "a special art all by itself." In an impressive demonstration of his talent at the art, he once spoke calmly and lucidly for a solid hour and 25 minutes on the effect of a Supreme Court decision without a single hesitation for words.

Harry Truman was no Franklin D. Roosevelt, but if he lacked the fine strokes of a fancy artist, he could still slap on a lot of paint—usually all black or all white—in an astonishingly short time.

Cocky, grinning, passing snap, and snappy, judgment on friend and foe, Truman acted as if each of his 324 conferences were a peck of fun. When he wanted to be, Truman was surprisingly concise. One Truman conference lasted exactly seven minutes.

It's too early to evaluate properly Dwight D. Eisenhower's news conferences, but most reporters agree that something was lacking.

Ironically, this may have been partly due to innovations made by Eisenhower. Each reporter was told to give his name and affiliation before he asked a question.

Since texts of the conferences were printed, and since portions appeared in news reels and on television, here was an excellent opportunity for those addicted to self-advertisement.

Often it appeared that those waving hardest to attract the presidential eye had the least productive questions once they got recognition. President Kennedy has ended the practice of reporters' identification.

It is not yet known whether Eisenhower liked news conferences. He said he did. But he had only 192 of them, or less than one every two weeks.

It's against this background that Kennedy reached his decision on news conferences. Certainly he's aware of the pitfalls.

During the fall various committees working with the Brookings Institution, an independent organization that often studies government, looked into the problems of a presidential transition.

A confidential report on presidential news conferences was prepared for Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon.

Brookings never made this report public, but in it some former officials who had served with other presidents reported their constant worry that their boss might make a monumental error in his comments on foreign affairs or on national security.

Kennedy disregarded their suggestion that precautions be taken, as he has so often disregarded advice in many other fields.

Maybe he sees an opportunity to have the televised news conference work for him as the fireside chats worked for Franklin Roosevelt.

As for the dangers, well, he's a veteran of hundreds of news conferences, plus four tough, hour-long television debates with Nixon. Anyone who watched his first presidential conferences knows that Kennedy is articulate, well informed and confident.

And so in a hypersensitive world, Kennedy has chosen to walk the presidential high wire without any safety nets under him.

It should make fascinating watching.

Taylor Novel Makes 1961 A Lucky Year

IN A SUMMER SEASON. By Elizabeth Taylor. Viking. $3.95.

Kate's husband has died, she has two grown children, and she falls in love with Dermot who is 10 years younger, or not at the top of the heap, nor the bottom, but sort of "on the mezzanine floor," according to this novelist who, more than most, always has a word for it.

They all live in the Thames valley ,Windsor is not too far off to see on a clear day, and there is a fantastic ferment in the Kate-Dermot household:

Old Aunt Ethel is forever writing letters about many things but especially those she is least competent to judge; the boy Tom courts almost any courtable girl, but in particular Ignazia and, before the story comes to its grim climax, Araminta:; Lou makes silly eyes at the sallow young preacher; Mrs. Meacock the cook has picked up deplorable American culinary tricks, like pineapple; Dermot finds it easier to be idle, on Kate's money, than to work whether in town or, parttime, growing mushrooms in an old stable; his mother Edwina must have her nose in the mismatched household's affairs, widower Charles, from next door, comes home at the crucial instant when he is most desperately needed.

An arbitrary ending is imposed on this, and to a degree, however carefully it is prepared for, it is an evasion. But we never did read Miss Taylor so much for her endings as for her inimitable goings - on and on. This is full of the familiar irresistible Taylorisms — the wry observation, the cut and thrust of the play of words, the wit. The trouble with the past few literary seasons has been, no new Elizabeth Taylor novel: 1961 is our lucky year.

He Is Not Quite Anew 'Walden'

THE DOUBLE AXE. By Lauren R. Stevens. Scribners. $3.95.

Determined to put behind him forever "the sin and corruption of the cities," and to seek out a Sawyer's "Walden" down in Maine in the pattern of Thoreau's, Henry Sawyer buys 25 acres way back in the woods on the St. John River and starts to farm.

His wife, Pasiphy, approved of his plan — she was all for Thoreau, too — though to be sure they had come together tentatively. Their fathers had been fairly successful businessmen till the crash of 1929, and they knew what urban comforts were. But they had basic differences, too. Henry was leery not only of city life but of life, and she will eventually have to urge him, "come out of your tomb, join the fun." She's the more dependable authority on fun, in witness of which the first young Sawyer isn't in fact a Sawyer at all but the child, as Henry laments, of a roustabout canuck infinitely more aggressive than the legal husband.

There are later children all their own — George, Valery, Hazel and Philip. They have not had the benefit of reading Thoreau, and the sin and corruption their parents had shunned have some lure for them, all the more because of the hardships of their backwoods existence with crops to plant and harvest, snows to isolate them, an unvarying winter diet of venision and bear, the axe to keep the woodshed full, and no running water till almost everyone has grown up and the really tough ground-breaking labor is all over.

Sawyer is no Thoreau, however. He suffers from fundamental weaknesses, and his children play in tough luck, too. This is not merely how you going to keep 'em down on the farm, but how you going to do it under specially adverse circumstances? This first novel is no 20th Century test of "Walden," but a father's will power and authority can he fit his family into the mold he wilfully chooses? And that's not the entire problem, either, because in this backwoods in which you'd expect to find all the virtues in their strongest and most exacting state, a villain or two interferes in a way the father could have expected to avoid. And for climax, there is an incident which is not clear to me and won't be to you, I suspect, even if you're a better man on snowshoes than I am.

This novel is not so good as this novelist. Chosen by the publisher in honor of the longtime distinguished editor Maxwell E. Perkins as the Perkins Commemorative Novel, this is serious writing, and the aspirations are worthy. But it lacks finish, it has amateurish passages, and the drama inherent in the situation isn't developed to the maximum advantage of the story.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

This is the reading season and the new books which are constantly arriving at the Ouachita Parish Public Library, hardly get on the shelves before they are checked out. Among the new titles added during the past week, there are some for every type of reader. Lawrence Schoonover is a historical novelist whose books are extremely popular. His latest one is "The Chancellor." This book has for it's setting the court of Francis the First of France. It presents a glittering and colorful picture of court life of the period. There are many characters and much fast - paced action. It is a book well - worth reading. Ernest K. Gann is a modern author of deep thoughtfulness and discernment. His latest book is called "Fate is the Hunter." This is a narration from his own experience of a series of events which illustrate this theme. All of them happen to take place in the air, or just before or after a flight. They might, however, have happened anywhere. This is a book to read and long remember.

Peter Ustinov, actor, playright, and short story writer, has now written his first novel, which is called "The Loser." It is a powerful story about a young German officer, who was trained not for life, but for death. It has much able characterization and the contrast between the Italian and German temperaments is excellently done. "Teresa" is a novel by Frank Baker, which presents a picture of a woman's soul and her striving for immortality. It is a strange sort of book, but will appeal to many readers.

Mystery stories are always in demand and there are two new ones this week. "Mark of Treachery" is the title of one by Clarence Budington Kelland and "Impact" is the title of a new mystery by Harry Clesker. Another new book of fiction of the light type is "Half Angel" by Barbara Jeffreis.

Non - fiction added this week continues to show a variety of interest. "Why We Believe" by Leon Cristini is an interesting explanation of the Catholic beliefs. "McCall's Book of Everyday Etiquette" is a very fine volume of current usages and manners. It is well written and will be very helpful in many circumstances. "Goldfish Varieties and Water Gardens" is the title of a new book by William T. Innes. It should be most useful to everyone who has a garden pool. Several attractive books of flowers were added this week. "The Iris" by Leslie N. Cave is a revision of an older work. "The Hydrangeas" by Michael Haworth Booth is a very beautiful and useful title. "Peonies, Outdoors and In" is the title of a book by Herbert and Irene Nehrling. "All About African Violets" by Montague Free is the complete guide to this subject. Violet Stevenson is the author of "The Care and Cultivation of Indoor Plants," which should be most interesting to anyone who has this lovely hobby. Eleanor Van Rensselaer is the author of "Decorating with Seed Mosaics, Chipped Glass and Plant Materials," a book which by it's very title, should appeal to many people.

A very unusual and interesting book is "The Bible Herb Book" which contains information about growing and using the herbs mentioned in the Bible. The author of this book is Marian Maeve O'Brien. A special sort of cookbook is "Favorite breads from Rose Lane Farm" by Ada Lou Roberts. Do you want to build a patio? If so, be sure to ask for "The Sunset Magazine Garden and Patio Building Book." This is the latest thing on this subject and is certain to be useful.

Biographies of famous people in the field of fine arts are very evident this week. Alma Reed is the author of "Orozco" which deals with the life and work of the famous Mexican painter, Jose Clemente Orozco. Arthur Berger has written a very fine account of the life of "Aaron Copeland." "Schuman and the Romantic Age" is the title of a work by Marcel Brion. "Orpheus in America" is an account of the experiences of the famous musician Jacques Offenbach. Howard E. Hugo has edited the "Letters of Franz Lizst to Marie Zu Saywittgenstein" and has presented a very interesting book. "The Way of the Conductor" by Karl Krueger gives a great deal of information about this interesting profession.

A lovely book of poetry is "The Complete Works of Francois Villon" translated and with a biographical sketch of the poet. Books about World War II are very popular. The latest one is called "Return of the Tiger" and was written by Brian Connell. It is the story of Ivan Lyon a young Scotchman and his valiant fight against the Japanese. One of the most beautiful books which we have had in a long time is "Reign by Reign" by Stephen Usherwood. This is account of the rulers of England. It is such a beautiful book that everyone who sees it, wants to own one. Lucius M. Beebe and Charles M. Clegg are the authors of "San Francisco's Golden Era" a fascinating account of one of the most exciting cities in this country.

"Nathaniel Greene, strategist of the American Revolution" was written by Theodora Thayer and presents an interesting picture of this General upon whom George Washington put such trust. Gertrude Von Schwarzenfeld is the author of "Charles V, Father of Europe" a book which presents an interesting picture of a colorful personality.

Revolution Is Rare In Fiction

PASSING TIME. By Michel Butor. Translated from French by Jean Stewart. Simon & Schuster. $3.95.

A young Frenchman, Jacques Revel, takes a job for a year as clerk in a mercantile establishment in a large English city called Bleston.

This city is described in extraordinary detail; it's so important a part of the story, and more, of the way Butor writes his story, that there is, to supplement the text, an actual map:

The railroad station where he first arrives, in Alexandra Place; Horace Buck's house by the river Slee; Matthews & Sons, where he is employed; the restaurants he frequents, Oriental Rose, Oriental Pearl and Oriental Bamboo; the Anchor, where he first lives; the home of the pretty Bailey sisters Ann and Rose; the News Theater where he sees travelogues, particularly of classical Crete; the museum with its pictorial tapestry record of antique Theseus and his adventures — so significant to Revel himself; the Old Cathedral with its Murderer's Window, about Cain; the two Cathedrals which are, between them, the scenes of the crimes in this novel's interior novel, "The Bleston Murder;" the home of the murder story's author, George Burton alias J. C. Hamilton; and the home of Revel's fellow clerk, James Jenkins, who owns a black Morris like the one which, driven perhaps by another would - be murderer, tries to run down Burton.

Butor's title is the key not so much to this story as to his method of writing. This is a closely knit series of overlapping experiences; the novel keeps taking one step forward and two back—yet definitely getting somewhere. It runs along at different paces, or as Butor remarks, "one's mental analysis of past events takes place while other events are accumulating." So this is a sort of diary in which you inch along, and at the same time race; or see things superimposed on one another as close as the tip of your nose, at arm's length, and at the end of the street. As an example of this exciting reiteration, you find at the finish that you have put the first copy of "The Bleston Murder" and the second, and the maps, and the pages of the diary, down on the left-hand corner of Revel's work table just as many times — is it 35, or 50? — as Revel has himself.

This is of course a story of real dramatic power; it is Revel's obsession that Bleston hates and foils him, and he imagines a real murder developing out of a fictional one. But the literary-minded will hail this as one of the few revolutionary innovations in fictional techniques since the fabulously fertile 1920s.

RUNNING THE SCALES

Speaker, Mystery On Month's Bill

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

A special meeting of ambassadors called by President John F. Kennedy on Tuesday of this week will cause a postponement of an address here by Philippine Ambassador to the United Nations, General Carlos P. Romulo.

General Romulo was to have appeared here tomorrow night on the Northeast Concerts series. According to Dr. Harry Lemert, series chairman, the speaker has been rescheduled for Friday, February 24.

DANCE DRAMA

February promises to be a big month on the Louisiana Tech calender of events. The Emily Frankel Dance Drama Co. will stage two performances in Howard Auditorium tomorrow and Tuesday. Both are slated for 8 p.m.

While the company does some classic ballet in the recital vein, its specialty is the execution of plays and stories in dance form.

A matinee and evening concert by the Houston Symphony orchestra is also an attraction on the La. Tech Concerts series set for Friday, February 24.

Other events of the month on the Tech campus include a performance of Bizet's opera, "Carmen," by the school's opera workshop on February 21 and 23.

William L. Shirer, longtime broadcast correspondent in Berlin and author of the recent book, "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," will speak at a convocation at 9:40 a.m. Monday, Feb. 27, at Howard Auditorium on the Tech campus.

Meanwhile, back east of the Ouachita, the Monroe Little Theatre has slated a seven - day run of Agatha Christie's mystery, "The Mousetrap," to open Thursday in Selman Field Playhouse.

It will be recalled by those who attended "Sabrina Fair" last February 12 that a Louisiana snow almost froze out the warm weather Long Island sets and costumes. We hope this year's weatherman got his fill of winter during last weekend's freeze here.

Following "The Mousetrap," the Northeast production of "South Pacific" will open a three - day run in Brown Hall Auditorium on February 16.

The Isaac Delgado Museum of Art in New Orleans, continuing its 50th anniversary celebration, will open a month - long exhibition this week of masks and masquerades along with displays of paintings and drawings. Masks of early Roman and Greek periods will be displayed along with more primitive examples from Africa and American Indians.

Paintings will be by artists Callot, Tieplo, Longhi, Ferretti, Kane, Gerome, Derain and Severini.

But all is not high culture at the mouth of the Mississippi. One resident there checking a rumor that Leopold Stokowski was in town called one of the hotels. "Is who registered here?" the hotel questioned. "Leopold Stokowski, the conductor," replied the inquirer. "Oh, you don't want this number," spoke the hotel, "try the canal street car barn."

Adenauer Oldest Head Of Any Government

EDITOR'S NOTE — This month West Germany's ageless Konrad Adenauer, in the dual role of mediator and copartner, calls on French Presdent Charles de Gaulle and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan for important talks on the future of the European community. In advance of the visits, the chancellor granted an exclusive interview to an Associated Press reporter.

By JACK KOEHLER

BONN, Germany (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, with a lot of history behind him as the world's oldest government chief, faces a crucial year.

Next fall, West Germans elect a new Bundestag—lower house of Parliament — and the Socialists hope to win control and replace Adenauer with young West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt.

But "Der Alte," as Germans fondly call their unbending old man, isn't worried about Brandt. "As far as the elections are concerned," he said with a rare smile during an interview, "I am in good spirits. I am sure that there won't be any essential changes."

NOTHING

In the past year the German chancellor has become a sort of mediator between the two rival trade blocs, the European Economic Community—led by France and West Germany—and the Eupean Free Trade Association — headed by Britain. In his first important foreign policy action of the new year Adenauer is scheduled to visit French President Charles de Gaulle next Thursday. Two weeks later he goes to Britain for talks with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

"If nothing extraordinary happens, we will discuss the entire world political situation," Adenauer says. "Naturally, this means that we will also discuss the relationship between the EEC and the EFTA. I am of the opinion that we have to put an end to the differences between them in the New Year."

He doesn't say so, but Adenauer is likely to have a tough session with De Gaulle. Relations between the two statesmen cooled noticeably last year because of De Gaulle's nationalistic views.

The chancellor was especially irked when De Gaulle came out for creation of national armed forces inside NATO. Adenauer says the only way Europe can be effectively defended is with strong integrated forces.

Contrary to predictions by some diplomatic circles, Adenauer does not feel the Russians will produce a new Berlin crisis this spring. "I believe that Khrushchev will first give the new administration in Washington a certain period of time. He is smart enough to know that a new administration must have some time to break in."

A member of the chancellor's staff broke in to say: "People are going to talk about crises until we get one — until Mr. Khrushchev feels challenged to produce one."

"You're absolutely right," Adenauer said. "Nothing but talk of crises..." He shook his head gravely and his voice trailed off.

The chancellor has good reason to be tired of crises. At 85, he is in his 12th year as leader of West Germany, a bustling, energetic, nation—split from the eastern half of Germany by the Iron Curtain and victim of some of the sharpest tensions of the cold war. Not the least of these is West Berlin, 120 miles inside the Iron Curtain border.

The Soviet Union wants to turn West Berlin into a "free city." The West opposes this, contending it would be the first step toward a Communist takeover.

This problem and any of the other numerous East-West differences can only be settled by controlled disarmament, Adenauer maintains.

"Without controlled disarmament there will be no peace and without a real peace all the nations will continue to arm themselves. This armament race is going to be a grave danger to the welfare of the entire world. Peace must finally come, the fear must be lifted from humanity; fear of the future and the fear of a terrible war."

The chancellor's face looks grave when he talks about this subject.

"When one has started with effective controlled disarmament, the entire world political situation will experience such an easing of tensions that one can then solve the other problems."

When he celebrated his 85th birthday last Jan. 5, Adenauer looked back at his 12 years as chancellor and beyond. What have been his greatest triumphs?

"Let's not use the word 'triumph'", he says. "Triumph always suggests a defeated enemy and I don't want to talk about this.

POLITICAL

"The highlight of my political life was the Petersberg treaty and the ratification of the treaty by the Bundestag, because it meant that start of the federal republic's turn toward the Western powers."

By the "Petersberg treaty" the chancellor meant the contractual agreement signed with the United States, Britain and France in 1952 ending the state of war and including West Germany in the community of free nations as an equal partner.

Signed at the swank Hotel Petersberg overlooking the picturesque Rhine Valley, the agreements also regulated the stationing of Allied troops in West Germany.

"The other highlight is the federal republic's acceptance into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization."

In his own way the German chancellor has always encouraged a union or community of European states.

Once he remarked, "The unity of Europe was the dream of a few. It became the hope of many. Today it is a necessity for us all."

Asked how he sizes up the chances for a United States of Europe now, he replied: "It will come. But one must have patience.

"It has never been thought that the European states should give up their independence entirely. But such a union must grow and must develop itself. I am full of confidence and full of hope."

Adenauer's staunch Europeanism is matched by perhaps even firmer opposition to communism. He once coupled the two, saying, "The dream of Soviet domination of Europe can only be destroyed if the unity of Europe is realized."

As for meeting Khrushchev before a new summit conference, he says: "Nonsense, it wouldn't accomplish anything."

Another trip much talked about but now apparently indefinitely postponed would have taken Adenauer to the United States in February for a meeting with the new president.

When Kennedy was elected, the chancellor was pictured as being uneasy about the new administration's future foreign policy. But he now seems to have become reassured and gives this view of future world developments:

"World politics will be determined largely by the United States. Naturally, the new president and the new administration in the United States are going to think differently on certain matters than the old administration and the former president. But nevertheless, I am convinced that the basic policies will continue."

With this assumption in mind, Adenauer feels there is a chance —even if only a slim one—that a way can be found to move closer toward world peace.

In the 12 years he has been in office, Adenauer has not changed his habits a bit. He still rises around 6 every morning and breakfasts an hour later while he scans the morning newspapers and the overnight cables.

After breakfast, he steps into his black Mercedes which takes him from his home at the small village of Rhoendorf to his white chancellory in downtown Bonn. He usually arrives there about 9:30 a.m. and rarely leaves before 9 p.m.

AT HOME

He works at home on Saturdays and Sundays. During the little free time he has, Adenauer likes to putter in his garden and tend his roses, to read or listen to classical music.

How does he keep up a pace that would soon tire many younger men?

"Well, I'll tell you despite the fact that I'll make enemies again" Adenauer said and added with a smile: "I don't smoke."

"Now the world's tobacco industry, including that of the United States, is going to be against me."

Adenauer, a staunch Catholic, is a light eater and doesn't drink hard liquor. He likes an occasional glass of white wine.

A reporter recently asked if there is something that is more precious to him than anything else.

"Now you want to humanize me, don't you?", answered the old man dryly. "Well, I'm going to be a human being. There is such a thing but I'm not going to say what it is."

But ask him about his grandchildren — he has 21 — and the chancellor is liable to talk for an hour. Twice a widower, he has four sons and three daughters.

"My youngest grandchildren still are infants. The other 19 and their parents visited me last Christmas. I have to tell you," he said spiritedly, "we were 35 persons in one room and I was truly afraid that the floor wouldn't hold us. I was happy that the holidays passed without an accident."

Two years ago, Adenauer announced he would retire and would seek the ceremonial office of president of West Germany. But a hassle over his successor ensued and he changed his mind.

Since then he has refused to answer any questions about retirement.

Adenauer, as one current story goes, was rocking his 5-year-old grandson on his knee and asked the boy what he planned to be when he grew up. "Chancellor," the boy replied.

Adenauer looked at the youngster and said, "You better think of something else, our constitution provides for only one chancellor."

THANK YOU, MR. PRESIDENT

History Of Presidential Conference Is Traced

EDITOR'S NOTE—It hasn't a legal leg to stand on, and a president can dispense with it any time he chooses. Yet the presidential news conference has grown into an essential element of American democracy. AP reporter Arthur Edson, who has attended his share, looks at the history of this unique institution.

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) —Possibly no one there that day realized history was being made.

Woodrow Wilson was nervous, embarrassed, and full of righteousness.

Reporters gathered around him were willing to listen, but probably were unwilling to be impressed, especially since Wilson's little lecture dealt with how they should run their business.

"I feel that a large part of the success of public affairs," Wilson said, "depends on the newspaper men—not so much on the editorial writers, because we live down what they say, as upon the news writers, because the news is the atmosphere of public affairs.

"Unless you get the right setting to affairs—disperse the right impression—things go wrong. If you play up the differences of opinion and predict difficulties you are impeding public business."

Thus, on March 15, 1913, a political institution was born.

Woodrow Wilson had invented presidential news conferences.

Until Dwight D. Eisenhower, with rare exceptions, the president was never directly quoted. Sometimes he wasn't even identified. "A high White House source disclosed today," a news story might begin, leaving the reader to guess how high the source might be.

But Eisenhower, advised by his press secretary, James C. Hagerty, made major changes.

Photographers were allowed to shoot away throughout the conference. Once the transcript of what Eisenhower had said was checked for any real bloopers, it was released to reporters for direct quotation, with the words tumbling and stumbling every which way, just as Eisenhower had said them.

Now President Kennedy, ignoring some strong suggestions that the conferences should be restricted rather than expanded, has taken another step—and even his friends admit it could be a risky one.

Kennedy plans to continue his policy of live broadcasts, both television and radio, for all news conferences.

Now it's on the record, instantly, for all the world to see.

"Do you feel there is any risk?" Kennedy was asked at his first news conference.

Kennedy didn't answer directly. He merely said that Eisenhower spoke on the record, too, and that he thinks the country's interests are as well protected under this system.

Yet despite the presidential disclaimer, it's still a daring move.

All presidents have dealt with the press, of course, but only in the last half century have there been regular question-and-answer sessions with newsmen.

Many observers are now convinced that democracy couldn't function nearly as effectively without the news conference. They say that it gives the president a chance to get his views to the public, and that it gives the newsmen, who here represent the public, a chance to ask questions that should be asked about the mammoth, complex federal organization.

Many a political scandal, so the argument runs, could be swept under the White House rug if it weren't for the opportunity the conferences offer for questioning.

Only at a news conference can a president be asked in person why he allowed, or did not allow, certain things to happen. If the reporters do their work conscientiously, the public's rights can be protected.

Yet if this is true, democracy's effectiveness hangs by a slender thread. For news conferences have no legal support.

They are strictly the whim of the president. He can meet with reporters as often, or as seldom, as he cares to under whatever ground rules he wants.

Yet news conferences are so well established, and they can be used so much to his advantage, that each president on entering office usually announces he plans to meet frequently with his good friends, the newsmen.

But a president's honeymoon is soon over. Certainly Wilson, who began by saying he wanted to make friends of the press, never succeeded. He was suspicious of most newspapers, especially when they tried to guess what course he might take.

ANYTHING

"Do not believe anything you read in the newspapers," he wrote a friend. "If you read the papers I see, they are utterly untrustworthy. Their lying is shameless and colossal!"

It's hardly surprising that when the war came on, giving him an excuse, Wilson permitted the conferences to lapse.

Whatever else history may say about Warren G. Harding, as a newspaper man himself — he was publisher of the Marion (Ohio) Star—he understood and liked newsmen.

He not only restored news conferences; he also put them on a twice-a-week schedule.

But as Harding blundered in his appointments, so did he blunder with reporters.

His classic error came after a Four-Power Treaty session when he blurted out an off-the-cuff answer that was completely wrong, with international complications.

Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover wanted their questions written. But writing a question didn't mean you'd get an answer.

Coolidge ducked so many that reporters finally ganged up on him. Each wrote out precisely the same query. Coolidge picked up each question, glanced at it, and discarded it in turn.

When he reached the last one, he said: "I have here a question about the condition of children in Puerto Rico," which of course he didn't. But he methodically plowed through a long, dry reply.

On this alone, you'd have to number Coolidge among the presidential humorists.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, of course, was the old master of the press conference.

He enjoyed the give and take, used the conference to further his plans, and wound up having an incredible 998 of them.

The press conference, Roosevelt said, is "a special art all by itself." In an impressive demonstration of his talent at the art, he once spoke calmly and lucidly for a solid hour and 25 minutes on the effect of a Supreme Court decision without a single hesitation for words.

Harry Truman was no Franklin D. Roosevelt, but if he lacked the fine strokes of a fancy artist, he could still slap on a lot of paint—usually all black or all white—in an astonishingly short time.

Cocky, grinning, passing snap, and snappy, judgment on friend and foe, Truman acted as if each of his 324 conferences were a peck of fun. When he wanted to be, Truman was surprisingly concise. One Truman conference lasted exactly seven minutes.

It's too early to evaluate properly Dwight D. Eisenhower's news conferences, but most reporters agree that something was lacking.

Ironically, this may have been partly due to innovations made by Eisenhower. Each reporter was told to give his name and affiliation before he asked a question.

Since texts of the conferences were printed, and since portions appeared in news reels and on television, here was an excellent opportunity for those addicted to self-advertisement.

Often it appeared that those waving hardest to attract the presidential eye had the least productive questions once they got recognition. President Kennedy has ended the practice of reporters' identification.

It is not yet known whether Eisenhower liked news conferences. He said he did. But he had only 192 of them, or less than one every two weeks.

It's against this background that Kennedy reached his decision on news conferences. Certainly he's aware of the pitfalls.

During the fall various committees working with the Brookings Institution, an independent organization that often studies government, looked into the problems of a presidential transition.

A confidential report on presidential news conferences was prepared for Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon.

Brookings never made this report public, but in it some former officials who had served with other presidents reported their constant worry that their boss might make a monumental error in his comments on foreign affairs or on national security.

Kennedy disregarded their suggestion that precautions be taken, as he has so often disregarded advice in many other fields.

Maybe he sees an opportunity to have the televised news conference work for him as the fireside chats worked for Franklin Roosevelt.

As for the dangers, well, he's a veteran of hundreds of news conferences, plus four tough, hour-long television debates with Nixon. Anyone who watched his first presidential conferences knows that Kennedy is articulate, well informed and confident.

And so in a hypersensitive world, Kennedy has chosen to walk the presidential high wire without any safety nets under him.

It should make fascinating watching.

Taylor Novel Makes 1961 A Lucky Year

IN A SUMMER SEASON. By Elizabeth Taylor. Viking. $3.95.

Kate's husband has died, she has two grown children, and she falls in love with Dermot who is 10 years younger, or not at the top of the heap, nor the bottom, but sort of "on the mezzanine floor," according to this novelist who, more than most, always has a word for it.

They all live in the Thames valley ,Windsor is not too far off to see on a clear day, and there is a fantastic ferment in the Kate-Dermot household:

Old Aunt Ethel is forever writing letters about many things but especially those she is least competent to judge; the boy Tom courts almost any courtable girl, but in particular Ignazia and, before the story comes to its grim climax, Araminta;; Lou makes silly eyes at the sallow young preacher; Mrs. Meacock the cook has picked up deplorable American culinary tricks, like pineapple; Dermot finds it easier to be idle, on Kate's money, than to work whether in town or, part-time, growing mushrooms in an old stable; his mother Edwina must have her nose in the mismatched household's affairs, widower Charles, from next door, comes home at the crucial instant when he is most desperately needed.

An arbitrary ending is imposed on this, and to a degree, however carefully it is prepared for, it is an evasion. But we never did read Miss Taylor so much for her endings as for her inimitable goings - on and on. This is full of the familiar irresistible Taylorisms -- the wry observation, the cut and thrust of the play of words, the wit. The trouble with the past few literary seasons has been, no new Elizabeth Taylor novel; 1961 is our lucky year.

He Is Not Quite Anew 'Walden'

THE DOUBLE AXE. By Lauren R. Stevens. Scribners. $3.95.

Determined to put behind him forever "the sin and corruption of the cities," and to seek out a Sawyer's "Walden" down in Maine in the pattern of Thoreau's, Henry Sawyer buys 25 acres way back in the woods on the St. John River and starts to farm.

His wife, Pasiphy, approved of his plan — she was all for Thoreau, too — though to be sure they had come together tentatively. Their fathers had been fairly successful businesmen till the crash of 1929, and they knew what urban comforts were. But they had basic differences, too. Henry was leery not only of city life but of life, and she will eventually have to urge him, "come out of your tomb, join the fun." She's the more dependable authority on fun, in witness of which the first young Sawyer isn't in fact a Sawyer at all but the child, as Henry laments, of a roustabout canuck infinitely more aggressive than the legal husband.

There are later children all their own — George, Valery, Hazel and Philip. They have not had the benefit of reading Thoreau, and the sin and corruption their parents had shunned have some lure for them, all the more because of the hardships of their backwoods existence with crops to plant and harvest, snows to isolate them, an unvarying winter diet of venision and bear, the axe to keep the woodshed full, and no running water till almost everyone has grown up and the really tough ground-breaking labor is all over.

Sawyer is no Thoreau, however. He suffers from fundamental weaknesses, and his children play in tough luck, too. This is not merely how you going to keep 'em down on the farm, but how you going to do it under specially adverse circumstances? This first novel is no 20th Century test of "Walden," but a father's will power and authority, can he fit his family into the mold he willfully chooses? And that's not the entire problem, either, because in this backwoods in which you'd expect to find all the virtues in their strongest and most exacting state, a villain or two interferes in a way the father could have expected to avoid. And for climax, there is an incident which is not clear to me and won't be to you, I suspect, even if you're a better man on snowshoes than I am.

This novel is not so good as this novelist. Chosen by the publisher in honor of the longtime distinguished editor Maxwell E. Perkins as the Perkins Commemorative Novel, this is serious writing, and the aspirations are worthy. But it lacks finish, it has amateurish passages, and the drama inherent in the situation isn't developed to the maximum advantage of the story.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

This is the reading season and the new books which are constantly arriving at the Ouachita Parish Public Library, hardly get on the shelves before they are checked out. Among the new titles added during the past week, there are some for every type of reader. Lawrence Schoonover is a historical novelist whose books are extremely popular. His latest one is "The Chancellor." This book has for it's setting the court of Francis the First of France. It presents a glittering and colorful picture of court life of the period. There are many characters and much fast - paced action. It is a book well - worth reading. Ernest K. Gann is a modern author of deep thoughtfulness and discernment. His latest book is called "Fate is the Hunter." This is a narration from his own experience of a series of events which illustrate this theme. All of them happen to take place in the air, or just before or after a flight. They might, however, have happened anywhere. This is a book to read and long remember.

Peter Ustinov, actor, playright, and short story writer, has now written his first novel, which is called "The Loser." It is a powerful story about a young German officer, who was trained not for life, but for death. It has much able characterization and the contrast between the Italian and German temperaments is excellently done. "Teresa" is a novel by Frank Baker, which presents a picture of a woman's soul and her striving for immortality. It is a strange sort of book, but will appeal to many readers.

Mystery stories are always in demand and there are two new ones this week. "Mark of Treachery" is the title of one by Clarence Budington Kelland and "Impact" is the title of a new mystery by Harry Clesker. Another new book of fiction of the light type is "Half Angel" by Barbara Jeffreis.

Non - fiction added this week continues to show a variety of interest. "Why We Believe" by Leon Cristini is an interesting explanation of the Catholic beliefs. "McCall's Book of Everyday Etiquette" is a very fine volume of current usages and manners. It is well written and will be very helpful in many circumstances. "Goldfish Varieties and Water Gardens" is the title of a new book by William T. Innes. It should be most useful to everyone who has a garden pool. Several attractive books of flowers were added this week. "The Iris" by Leslie N. Cave is a revision of an older work. "The Hydrangeas" by Michael Haworth Booth is a very beautiful and useful title. "Peonies, Outdoors and In" is the title of a book by Herbert and Irene Nehrling. "All About African Violets" by Montague Free is the complete guide to this subject. Violet Stevenson is the author of "The Care and Cultivation of Indoor Plants," which should be most interesting to anyone who has this lovely hobby. Eleanor Van Rensselaer is the author of "Decorating with Seed Mosaics, Cnipped Glass and Plant Materials," a book which by it's very title, should appeal to many people.

A very unusual and interesting book is "The Bible Herb Book" which contains information about growing and using the herbs mentioned in the Bible. The author of this book is Marian Maeve O'Brien. A special sort of cookbook is "Favorite breads from Rose Lane Farm" by Ada Lou Roberts. Do you want to build a patio? If so, be sure to ask for "The Sunset Magazine Garden and Patio Building Book." This is the latest thing on this subject and is certain to be useful.

Biographies of famous people in the field of fine arts are very evident this week. Alma Reed is the author of "Orozco" which deals with the life and work of the famous Mexican painter, Jose Clemente Orozco. Arthur Berger has written a very fine account of the life of "Aaron Copeland." "Schuman and the Romantic Age" is the title of a work by Marcel Brion. "Orpheus in America" is an account of the experiences of the famous musician Jacques Offenbach. Howard E. Hugo has edited the "Letters of Franz Liszt to Marie Zu Saywittgenstein" and has presented a very interesting book. "The Way of the Conductor" by Karl Krueger gives a great deal of information about this interesting profession.

A lovely book of poetry is "The Complete Works of Francois Villon" translated and with a biographical sketch of the poet. Books about World War II are very popular. The latest one is called "Return of the Tiger" and was written by Brian Connell. It is the story of Ivan Lyon a young Scotchman and his valiant fight against the Japanese. One of the most beautiful books which we have had in a long time is "Reign by Reign" by Stephen Usherwood. This is account of the rulers of England. It is such a beautiful book that everyone who sees it, wants to own one. Lucius M. Beebe and Charles M. Clegg are the authors of "San Francisco's Golden Era" a fascinating account of one of the most exciting cities in this country.

"Nathaniel Greene, strategist of the American Revolution" was written by Theodora Thayer and presents an interesting picture of this General upon whom George Washington put such trust. Gertrude Von Schwarzenfeld is the author of "Charles V, Father of Europe" a book which presents an interesting picture of a colorful personality.

Revolution Is Rare In Fiction

PASSING TIME. By Michel Butor. Translated from French by Jean Stewart. Simon & Schuster. $3.95.

A young Frenchman, Jacques Revel, takes a job for a year as clerk in a mercantile establishment in a large English city called Bleston.

This city is described in extraordinary detail; it's so important a part of the story, and more, of the way Butor writes his story, that there is, to supplement the text, an actual map:

The railroad station where he first arrives, in Alexandra Place; Horace Buck's house by the river Slee; Matthews & Sons, where he is employed; the restaurants he frequents, Oriental Rose, Oriental Pearl and Oriental Bamboo; the Anchor, where he first lives; the home of the pretty Bailey sisters Ann and Rose; the News Theater where he sees travelogues, particularly of classical Crete; the museum with its pictorial tapestry record of antique Theseus and his adventures — so significant to Revel himself; the Old Cathedral with its Murderer's Window, about Cain; the two Cathedrals which are, between them, the scenes of the crimes in this novel's interior novel, "The Belston Murder;" the home of the murder story's author, George Burton alias J. C. Hamilton; and the home of Revel's fellow clerk, James Jenkins, who owns a black Morris like the one which, driven perhaps by another would - be murderer, tries to run down Burton.

Butor's title is the key not so much to this story as to his method of writing. This is a closely knit series of overlapping experiences; the novel keeps taking one step forward and two back—yet definitely getting somewhere. It runs along at different paces, or as Butor remarks, "one's mental analysis of past events takes place while other events are accumulating." So this is a sort of diary in which you inch along, and at the same time race; or see things superimposed on one another as close as the tip of your nose, at arm's length, and at the end of the street. As an example of this exciting reiteration, you find at the finish that you have put the first copy of "The Belston Murder" and the second, and the maps, and the pages of the diary, down on the left-hand corner of Revel's work table just as many times — is it 35, or 50? — as Revel has himself.

This is of course a story of real dramatic power: it is Revel's obsession that Bleston hates and foils him, and he imagines a real murder developing out of a fictional one. But the literary-minded will hail this as one of the few revolutionary innovations in fictional techniques since the fabulously fertile 1920s.

RUNNING THE SCALES

Speaker, Mystery On Month's Bill

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

A special meeting of ambassadors called by President John F. Kennedy on Tuesday of this week will cause a postponement of an address here by Philippine Ambassador to the United Nations, General Carlos P. Romulo.

General Romulo was to have appeared here tomorrow night on the Northeast Concerts series. According to Dr. Harry Lemert, series chairman, the speaker has been rescheduled for Friday, February 24.

DANCE DRAMA

February promises to be a big month on the Louisiana Tech calender of events. The Emily Frankel Dance Drama Co. will stage two performances in Howard Auditorium tomorrow and Tuesday. Both are slated for 8 p.m.

While the company does some classic ballet in the recital vein, its specialty is the execution of plays and stories in dance form.

A matinee and evening concert by the Houston Symphony orchestra is also an attraction on the La. Tech Concerts series set for Friday, February 24.

Other events of the month on the Tech campus include a performance of Bizet's opera, "Carmen," by the school's opera workshop on February 21 and 23.

William L. Shirer, longtime broadcast correspondent in Berlin and author of the recent book, "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," will speak at a convocation at 9:40 a.m. Monday, Feb. 27, at Howard Auditorium on the Tech campus.

Meanwhile, back east of the Ouachita, the Monroe Little Theatre has slated a seven - day run of Agatha Christie's mystery, "The Mousetrap," to open Thursday in Selman Field Playhouse.

It will be recalled by those who attended "Sabrina Fair" last February 12 that a Louisiana snow almost froze out the warm weather Long Island sets and costumes. We hope this year's weatherman got his fill of winter during last weekend's freeze here.

Following "The Mousetrap," the Northeast production of "South Pacific" will open a three - day run in Brown Hall Auditorium on February 16.

The Isaac Delgado Museum of Art in New Orleans, continuing its 50th anniversary celebration, will open a month - long exhibition this week of masks and masquerades along with displays of paintings and drawings. Masks of early Roman and Greek periods will be displayed along with more primitive examples from Africa and American Indians.

Paintings will be by artists Callot, Tieplo, Longhi, Ferretti, Kane, Gerome, Derain and Severini.

But all is not high culture at the mouth of the Mississippi. One resident there checking a rumor that Leopold Stokowski was in town called one of the hotels. "Is who registered here?" the hotel questioned. "Leopold Stokowski, the conductor," replied the inquirer. "Oh, you don't want this number," spoke the hotel, "try the canal street car barn."

Reducing Role

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Bosley is celebrating his first anniversary in "Fiorello!" looking for 30 pounds.

The poundage, he reports, disappeared during his strongman stint of playing the title role without missing a single performance during the entire year.

Mississippi Wildcat Well Being Tested

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—American Oil Corp. of Delaware has scheduled production tests on a Lincoln County wildcat about 2 miles north of the Brookhaven oil field to test commercial worth of reported oil shows.

The Board of Supervisors No. 1, sec. 16-8n-7e, was reported to have some oil shows below 10,464 feet in the lower Tuscaloosa formation. Operators set production casing to 10,694 feet.

Ada Oil Co.-Gammill and Smith ran into completion problems in a wildcat, the Massey No. 1, sec. 3-1n-7e, about four miles south Magnolia in Amite County.

Operators attempted to test three sands in the lower Tuscaloosa that carried oil shows on electrical log. Testing operations were underway at a perforated interval from 10,730-38 feet.

The potential pool opener is about 8 miles south of the large McComb field.

PUCKETT

In the recently found Puckett oil field of Rankin County, Larco Drilling Co. continued testing the McIntyre No. 1, sec. 13-3n-3e, with the well reported flowing about 65 barrels of oil per day from perforations rom 9,404-09 feet and 9,397-9,402 feet.

In Copiah County, Victor Smith was deepening a wildcat, the USA No. 1-7, sec. 25-6n-6e. It was originally scheduled to 10,000 feet, but drilling operations were reported continuing to 13,500 feet.

Continental Oil Co. was below 7,000 feet in a wildcat, the Freudenberg No. 1, sec. 24-12n-2w, located near Yazoo City.

The Yazoo County wildcat is scheduled to 14,100 feet to test the Smackover lime formation.

The Mississippi Geological Society has named the new Smith County oil field the Traxler field. The discovery well was Triad Oil and Gas Co. and Jett Drilling Co. No. 1 Dukes-Central, sec. 36-3n-6e, completed in a Rodessa sand at 11,072, 78 feet.

Two other wildcat tests are underway in Smith County.

Placid Oil Co. was below 11,700 feet in the Eaton Brothers No. 1, sec. 9-1n-6e, and Pan American Petroleum Corp was attempting to free drill pipe at 10,974 feet in the Filtrol Corp. No. 1 in Hinds County wildcat, the Allen No. 1, sec. 9-5n-2w, after getting slight gas shows in the gas rock formation.

It is 4 miles southeast of Bolton field.

Field drilling the past week brought four new oilers.

In the new Knoxo field of Marion County, Texaco Seaboard, Inc., completed its Hilton No. 1, sec. 14-2n-12e, which pumped 166 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 9,734-42 feet.

Sun Oil Co. finaled the Kenna unit No. A-1, sec. 11-4n-8e, Pike County, which flowed 151 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 10,722-42 feet. It is in the Little Creek field.

In the McComb field of Pike County, D. A. Biglane completed the Alford-Rogers-Kalusche No. 1, sec. 21-3n-7e, which flowed 189 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 10,946-66 feet.

Otis Ainsworth completed the Bonner No. 3, sec. 30-10n-16w, which pumped 100 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 5,658-62 feet at Sandersville in Jones County.

New Savings Association Is Formed In Area

VIDALIA (Special) — A Savings and Loan Association which will do business as the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Concordia has been formed in Vidalia.

Permission has been granted by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board of Washington, D. C., for the organization to function, it has been announced by William L. "Bill" Koerber, Vidalia attorney.

At an organizational meeting, W. F. Johnson was elected as chairman; Martin Nathanson, co-chairman and W. L. Koerber, secretary - treasurer.

MONTHLY REPORT

Building Permits Record Rise Here

Construction in Monroe during January rose by $200,000 over the same month in 1960, but West Monroe saw a minor decrease in building activities.

Dale Martha of the Monroe building permit division issued 117 permits for $783,607 worth of construction last month. In January, 1960, 57 permits were obtained for $579,634 in construction.

West Monroe construction fell off by $1,700 when balanced against last year's figures. Activity for the past month stands at $88,310. Permits for construction valued at $89,100 were issued in January, 1960.

In Monroe, 26 one-family units led the construction total. They are valued at $366,943. This also is an increase over the one-family construction of one year ago, when permits were issued for $156,675.

A breakdown on other construction items in Monroe shows the following permits were issued:

One two-family unit, $10,000; one six-family unit, $30,000; one 10-family unit, $35,000; two warehouses, $12,400; two offices for dentists, $21,800; one office, $9,600; three service stations, $60,600; one ink manufacturing plant, $160,000; one drive-in, $7,500; six stores, $82,000.

Forty alterations and Additions to residences are valued at $66,654, while seven alterations and additions to non-residences are valued at $12,200.

Eleven buildings were moved, 12 were demolished.

Construction activity in West Monroe for January of this year shows a slight drop from January, 1960. Building Inspector C. E. Frost commented Friday.

Permits issued last month show a total valuation of $88,310, compared with $60,100 for January a year ago.

A total of 16 permits were issued last month, six for new residences, seven for additions to residences, two commercial permits and one for an addition to a commercial structure, Frost noted.

January of 1960 shows 15 permits, one to demolish a building, three for new commercial structures, seven for new homes and four additions to homes.

The $60,100 total valuation last January was the lowest total for any month of the year, the inspector continued, adding that it is usual for January to rank low.

However, he pointed out, January of 1959 showed a total of $104,240 in valuations, a high figure for the first month of the year.

Sixteen permits were issued in Monroe during the past week:

Monday January 30:

G. W. Welch, move frame residence from West Monroe to Richwood Road, outside the city limits, size 24 by 32 by 16 feet high, $300.

Tuesday, January 31:

Mrs. G. R. Haynes, demolish frame residence, 220 Congo St., valued at $400.

Wednesday, February 1:

Donald B. Johnston, construct brick veneer residence, five rooms, one bath, 1402 Parkview, 1383 square feet, $11,000.

Charles Edwards, construct child's frame playhouse, 2720 Point Dr., 80 square feet, $300.

Greater Monroe Homes received two permits to build two five room, two bath brick veneer residences: 1. At 2317 Belsville, 1008 square feet, $11,500; 2. At 2607 Ft. Miro, 1235 square feet, $11,000.

George Cernigliaro, alter frame residence, 110 Smith St., $3750.

J. S. James Construction Co., build brick veneer residence, five rooms, one and one-half baths, 1460 Oakhawn Dr., 1353 square feet, $10,500.

Thursday, February 2:

P. G. Zaber received two permits to construct two brick veneer residences, each five rooms, one bath, 1000 square feet, $9,000, at 1906 Dilling and 1908 Dilling St.

Doug Turner, add carport to frame residence, 415 Howard St., $250.

Mrs. Lillie Dunn, construct one room frame garage, 2200 Dollard Rd., 400 square feet, $1000.

Jesse Wilson, move frame residence from West Monroe to 401 Cedar St., 24 by 32 by 15 feet high, value $1500.

H. A. Turner, construct brick veneer residence, five rooms, one and one half baths, 1201 College Ave., 1400 square feet, $14,000.

Friday, February 3:

Tommy Clark, construct brick veneer residence, six rooms, two baths, 2304 Cadillac, 1000 square feet, $15,000.

L. C. Trichell, add 577 square feet to frame residence, 1108 S. Eighth St., $1300.

Business Briefs

New District Manager

Jack E. McLean, well known in investment circles in the Shreveport area, is now associated with Ladd Dinkins & Co., investment securities firm of New Orleans. He will serve as district manager, North Louisiana area, according to an announcement made recently by the company.

At the same time, the firm announced the opening of its new Shreveport office, under McLean's management, in the Petroleum Tower building in downtown Shreveport.

Special Recognition

John V. Craft, 410 Lakeshore Drive, has earned special recognition from the Burroughs Corp. for his outstanding 1960 sales record with the business machines and electronic data processing equipment firm.

Craft receives charter membership in the company's legion of honor and a trip to Florida for a convention sales meeting this week. To earn the trip, he achieved 164 per cent of his annual sales quota, placing him in the top 10 per cent of the equipment and systems marketing division's more than 2,000-man field sales force.

Meeting Scheduled

"Federal Regulation of Natural Gas and its Effect on the Gas Processing Industry" will be the subject of the principal address by William J. Merrill before the first South Louisiana Regional Meeting of the Natural Gasoline Association of America, scheduled February 24 at the Lafayette Petroleum Club in Lafayette. Merrill is a veteran of 11 years service with the law department of Humble Oil and Refining Company, Houston, and has spent the last five years in gas matters, principally before the Federal Power Commission.

Gets Promotion

George Francis Fox of 600 Pine St., West Monroe, has recently been promoted to district measurement superintendent by United Gas Pipe Line Co., according to J. G. Hicks, Monroe District Manager.

Fox, who had been serving as United's chief chart clerk in the Monroe district since April 1, 1956, joined United Gas Pipe Line Co. as a checker in August of 1953.

Many Plans Not Yet Put Into Effect

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The business world last week studied President Kennedy's "new frontier" proposals to spur the lagging economy, and wondered what is over the horizon.

Some of the President's program came in direct orders which will have quick effect. Other parts will depend upon congressional action.

Kennedy told Congress that the economy is in a short-term recession and long-term slack.

He urged increased Social Security payments, emergency unemployment benefits, an increase in the minimum wage, easier housing credit, lower long-term interest rates and swifter federal and local government spending.

Some business leaders felt that the economy already was priming to lift itself by its bootstraps from the mire in which it is struggling. They believed this might come before Congress acts on some of the presidential proposals.

HELPFUL

Nevertheless, the Kennedy program was generally viewed as providing vital prospective stimulating shots in the economic arm.

The stock market gave every indication of approval for the government help. It racked up some sharp gains in a bullish atmosphere amid very heavy trading.

The aircraft-missile stocks took the lead in the advance on the word that the administration would step up defense spending, including a big increase in the fleet of military jet transport planes.

Brokers interpreted the market's steady gain through January as indication that it is anticipating the start of a business recovery about midyear.

However, business at the present remained in the doldrums.

Layoffs, low production and slow sales plagued the automobile industry. Steel output declined and, despite a pickup in some types of orders, there was little anticipation of marked improvement for another month.

AUTOS

Auto production totaled an estimated 102,000 last week, up 6.9 per cent from the previous week, but down 37.4 per cent from a year ago. January production amounted to 414,732 cars, compared with 522,710 in December and 669,991 in January 1960. The February schedule is for 420,000 cars, a cut of 40,000 from original plans.

Ford and Chrysler closed six assembly plants and car lines at two others for this week, idling 15,000. American Motors will shut down operations at Milwaukee and Kenosha, Wis., next week because of "a general decline in the automobile industry." General Motors planned to lay off 45,000 men for a week starting Feb. 13.

The cutback in car production upset the steel industry's hopes for a pickup. Production of steel last week declined 2.2 per cent to 1,496,000 tons from the previous week.

A severe cold wave compounded the economic troubles. It kept customers away from the stores and retail trade dropped 4 to 9 per cent below a year ago. Freight car loadings declined 2.8 per cent from the previous week and 21.3 per cent from a year ago. On the brighter side, there was increased demand for tire chains, snow tires, batteries, snow plows and rock salt.

Investment Reasoning

NEW YORK (UPI) — Men and women have different ideas on many different subjects but when it comes to investment objectives, they're closer than usual.

According to a National Association of Investment Companies poll, more than one out of three of both men and women indicated "future retirement income" as their favored investment goal. "A better return on savings" was cited by one in four of both male and female shareholders.

FINANCIAL OIL-GAS NEWS

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS average of 60 stocks gained for the sixth straight week, closing at 236.5 from 232.6 a week ago. The weekly volume was the best since mid-October, 1958. The Commodity Index, with food showing the largest gain, advanced for the second straight week, closing at 162.8 from 162.7 a week earlier. (AP Wirehoto Chart)

DESPITE SHORTAGE

Increase Expected In School Building

NEW YORK (UPI)—School construction is expected to move along a high plateau this year despite a definite easing in the post-war shortage of school plants.

The leveling off of the long upward trend in school contracts, along with a substantial reduction in the backlog of needed classrooms, point to this easing.

Thus, for forces sustaining outlays on school buildings and giving new uplift beyond 1961, we must look elsewhere, according to Edward A. Sprague of F. W. Dodge Corp.

Writing in the firm's monthly publication, Building Business, Sprague said the "spreading school" was one factor buoying the general outlook for school construction.

The modern school gymnasium, the new auditorium, the fully-equipped crafts shop and science laboratory, the appliance - filled home economics room, and the like, all represent new or expanded functions of our public schools.

EFECTS POSITIVE

While debate over the propriety of some of these functions rages on, the Dodge construction expert said, their net effect on school construction is quite positive.

Simply, more emphasis on supporting facilities and more classroom space per pupil means more building material per school or per addition.

Sprague looks for a definite shift in emphasis in the school construction market in the years ahead with secondary school and college building taking a greater share.

He noted that colleges and universities in a few years will be inundated by a wave of incoming students. The number of young people reaching the age of 18 will increase by a million in the space of little over a year (1964 to 1965).

This growth will eventually add up to vastly increased pressure for all sorts of college buildings.

OFFSET GAINS

Known trends in school age population also indicate a fairly sharp increase in secondary school enrollment. But, Sprague noted, this will be more than offset by smaller gains in elementary school enrollment. Here the slowdown will be evident only in comparison with swifter growth in the 1950's.

Sprague said a Dodge estimate last year of an increase of 62 per cent in total "real" expenditures on school construction in this decade would mean a work put in place figure of about $5.2 billion for the year 1969.

If these estimates prove reasonably correct, he added, school building should contribute substantially to the growth of total non-residential building. This in turn should accelerate at a faster pace than housing or heavy engineering construction.

In any event, Sprague believes school building is practically assured of maintaining its favorable position as the second largest category of non - residential construction, and the market for school building materials, equipment and supplies will be enormous by any measure.

Cotton Futures Close Mixed On N.Y. Board

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures contracts began and ended this week with a show of firmness, but were easy in between and ended with prices 5 cents a bale lower to 50 cents a bale higher.

Nearby March was the only month to show a loss.

Activity slowed from the previous week, when prices advanced, as traders marked time pending further developments regarding the support price for the 1961 crop.

Much trade talk centered on a proposal by President Kennedy's cotton task force that it should not be any longer than the choice "A" support price for the 1960 crop of 32.42 cents a pound for middle inch cotton at average location.

Advances during the week reflected price fixing in the nearer positions, while more distant months strengthened on commission house buying. This was influenced by price support prospects, a better mill inquiry for spot cotton and reports of some improvement in interest in the goods market.

From time to time the upturn was curbed, or reversed, by hedge selling, profit-taking and selling influenced by a further increase in stocks of certificated cotton.

Exports in the week ended Tuesday dropped to about 190,000 bales, estimated the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau.

HINTS GIVEN TO HOME-HUNTERS

Heating System Part Of House Buying

NEW YORK (UPI)—Nippy winter weather may not foster enthusiasm for house hunting, but it is the wise home-seeker who bundles up and goes out looking anyway.

The Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association (GAMA), notes that the heating system of a home may account for as much as 10 per cent of the purchase price and says cold weather house hunting will give you a better opportunity to judge the performance of a heating system than you would have during warmer weather.

GAMA advises that you check on thermostats, making sure they are located on inside walls, away from drafts, TV sets and other influences on heat control. It also suggests a check to see that there is a source of heat near house entrances. A radiator or register near the front or back door, it notes, can be an important fuel saver.

SATISFACTORY

What type of fuel is most satisfactory for heating?

Most manufacturers of heating equipment say the type of fuel has little effect on the over-all efficiency of the heating system. The experts generally agree that if a heating plant of high quality is properly engineered, installed and economical in operation, no matter which type of fuel is used.

The better heating-cooling council says the homeowner's primary concern regarding fuel should be what it will cost each year to heat his house with one type of fuel compared with another.

The best way to judge real fuel costs, it suggests, is to check with neighbors using different types of fuel, keeping in mind that a structure's size, construction and orientation and such factors as amount of glass area, weather stripping, storm windows and doors, and insulation all affect heating requirements.

FUEL SAVINGS

Some fuel saving tips for the homeowner are offered by the National Fuel Oil Council. To save dollars every month during the heating season, it recommends:

—Lower thermostat if you are going away for a day or two and at night. For an empty house, 55 degrees is plenty. The same lowering at night regularly, it says, can save 15 per cent on the heating bill.

—It seems elementary, but people forget to turn off heat and close off rooms not in use.

—Don't let heat "run away." Overheating, then cooling off by opening windows, is plain waste. Keep temperatures moderate.

—Don't place upholstered furniture, drapes or rugs where they can block flow of room heat from outlets such as radiators or registers.

—Raise the humidity. You'll feel warmer, more comfortable, even at lower than usual temperatures.

—Close outside doors promptly. Heat pours out during those lingering goodbyes at a wide-open door. Teach youngsters that quick entrances and exits are the rule.

—Be sure radiator and ducts balance the heat supplied to each room. Heat outlets, radiator valves or duct closures should be adjusted for more or less heat flow as necessary to give even heating throughout the house.

TWO COMPLETIONS

Area Oil-Gas Activity Still Lags Behind

By RICHARD GREENE
World Oil Editor

Setting the pace of what seems to be a general slowdown of the oil and gas operations in the area, the Monroe district recorded only two new well completions and four locations last week.

This makes the second straight week of somewhat increased inactivity in the drilling and exploration processes throughout the district.

The reason for several of the operations closing down was because of the mark left by inclement weather of a week back. Some other rigs have to be worked over and a few of the roads leading to the drilling sites are still under water.

Duncan S. Cook, manager of the 14 - parish district, also listed in the report a total of 14 active rigs and two holes plugged and abandoned in the area.

The Bruer and Curran Oil Co. and A. T. Teague Jr. et al have completed their Mrs. W. M. Tolar et al No. 1 in section 11-6-6E of the Tew Lake field of Catahoula Parish. It was completed to pump 86 barrels from perforations at 4208-60 ft., gravity 28.

In the White Sulphur Springs Field of LaSalle Parish, W. D. Simmons et al have completed its Mrs. J. E. Whatley et al No. 1 in section 9-7-2B. It was completed to pump 3 barrels from an open hole at 807-814 ft.

NEW LOCATIONS

Following are the new locations:

LaSALLE PARISH, Saline Lake Field — George Belchic Jr.'s Olin Tensas Delta "A" no. 1, located 330 ft. north and 660 ft. south of the SE corner of the south half of the NE¼ of sec. 2-4-4E.

TENSAS PARISH, Wildcat Field — LaGrange Petroleum Co.'s Mount Ararat Plantation no. 1, located 330 ft. from the west line and 330 ft. from the south line of the SE¼-SE¼ of sec. 33-11-12E.

UNION PARISH, Wildcat Field — Southwest Gas Producing Co.'s J. J. Hamilton Unit no. 1, located 1365 ft. north and 1720 ft. east of the SW corner of sec. 30-19-1E.

Monroe Field — La Gas Producing Co.'s Grafton no. 1, located 660 ft. north and 330 ft. west of the SE corner of the NW¼-NE¼ of sec. 12-21-2E.

These rigs were listed as active:

CATAHOULA

Long Branch Field — B. J. Baird's Olin - Ten Delta B-1 in sec. 11-6-5E, testing - swabbing.

Saline Lake Field — Justiss - Mears Oil Co.'s Olin - Ten Delta B-2 in sec. 28-5-5E, testing.

CONCORDIA

Wildcat Field — Jett Drilling Co. and Pan American Petroleum Corp.'s Ang. Hdw. Lbr. Co. no. 4 in sec. 36-3-7E, drilling.

FRANKLIN

South Big Creek Field — R. E. Williams Oil Co.'s W. G. Vernon no. 1 in sec. 18-16-8E, testing.

LaSALLE

Olla Field — Cities Service Oil Co.'s Trem. Lbr. Co. A-40 in sec 28-10-2E, testing.

Cities Service Oil Co.'s Trem. Lbr. Co. A-41 in sec. 34-10-2E, testing.

Cities Service Oil Co.'s Trem. Lbr. Co. A-46 in sec. 28-10-2E, testing.

RAPIDES

Wildcat Field — Hahn Oil and Gas Co.'s Southeast Timber Lbr. Co. no. 1 in sec. 40-8-1W, drilling.

RICHLAND

Wildcat Field — The California Co.'s John C. Morris no. 1 in sec. 6-16-7E, drilling.

TENSAS

Buckhorn Field — Est of William G. Helis' Boyle et al no. 7 in sec. 35-13-11E, drilling.

Humble Oil and Refining Co.'s M. M. Bloom et al no. 1 in sec. 36-12-11E, drilling.

Lake Formosa Field — Jett Drilling Co. and Sun Oil Co.'s Fisher Lbr. Corp. B-4 in sec. 22-12-10E, drilling.

UNION

Monroe Field — La Gas Prod. Co.'s Traylor no. 1 in sec. 14-21-2E, drilling.

Mount Olive Field — M. H. Marr's Colvin Unit no. 1 in sec. 5-21-3W, building roads and clearing location.

These holes were plugged and abandoned:

LaSALLE

Olla Field — Cities Service Oil Co.'s Trem. Lbr. Co. A-45 in sec. 22-10-2E, abandoned Jan. 26 at 2500 ft.

TENSAS

Wildcat Field — The Offshore Oil Co. et al's S. Dalton Watson no. 2 in sec. 23-10-11E, aband. Jan. 26 at 9063 ft.

Oil Company Set To Move District Office

SHREVEPORT (Special) — Pan American Petroleum Corp. will move its district exploration and production office from Shreveport to Jackson, Miss. about July the first. George W. Clarke, Pan Am's Vice President and division manager announced the move at the company's Oklahoma City division headquarters.

The office in Jackson will have jurisdiction over Pan Am's operations in northern Louisiana, Southern Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama and other Southeastern States. The move will combine personnel and operations of the Shreveport and Jackson offices.

P. D. Manning, district production superintendent from Shreveport will have charge of producing operations in the Jackson district. R. L. Nelson, who is presently district exploration superintendent in Jackson will be in charge of the new combined exploration district.

Clark said, "We regret the necessity to move our office from Shreveport, but the decision to combine both offices at Jackson was made in order to increase overall operating efficiency. We will of course continue our producing and exploration activities in Shreveport and expect to remain active in this part of the country for many years."

Fuels Policy On National Level Is Seen

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — One sentence in President Kennedy's State of the Union message was of particular interest to oil operators.

The President said he plans to send Congress a special message on measures to increase the development of the nation's natural resources.

Such resources, as outlined in the 1960 Democratic national platform, range from water, soil, and pure air to such minerals as coal and oil.

But the President's remark carried particular significance to the oilmen because the natural resources section of the 1960 platform pledges support to the establishment of a national fuels policy.

SPECULATE

Oil operators speculate it is probable President Kennedy's special message will include a suggestion Congress order a study on establishment of such a policy.

Such a proposal already is before the new Congress. Similar concurrent resolutions last year failed to reach the floor of either house. The Senate Interior Committee gave approval but the House Rules Committee did not do so. House action in boosting the Rules Committee membership from 12 to 15 members may enhance chances for the new proposal to reach the House floor.

Oil industry spokesmen traditionally have contended such a study is unnecessary. Two weeks ago, however, they pledged cooperation should President Kennedy, at the executive level, or Congress order a study.

Oilmen found one paragraph in last year's unsuccessful joint resolutions particularly objectionable.

The proposed joint committee would have been directed to give consideration to "the optimal allocation of the various fuels and energy resources to their most productive economic uses, including . . . the geographical distribution of these resources.

Oil spokesmen feared this meant authority for the government to allocate markets to certain fuels by substituting end-use controls for normal competition among all types of energy. Oil's end-use controls charges have been denied by the National Coal Policy Conference, one of the major backers of the fuels policy proposals.

The oil industry's strategy for any fuels policy hearings that may develop have not been announced.

It is known, however, the industry will place heavy emphasis on a contention Congress historically has followed a policy of noninterference in existing competition within the fuels industry and between different fuels.

The domestic platform does not suggest details for a national fuels policy.

The natural resources section makes only three rather indirect references to oil. The platform criticizes the Republican administration for "secret leasing of game refuges to favored oil interests." It pledges resumption of research and development work on use of low-grade mineral reserves such as oil shale. It also says the Democratic party favors a study of the problem on non-uniform seaward boundaries of coastal states.

The natural resources section ends with a paragraph headed "government machinery for managing resources."

"Long-range programming of the nation's resources development is essential," the paragraph reads. "We favor creation of a council of advisers on resources and conservation, which will evaluate and report annually upon our resource needs and progress."

Falling In Favor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Buckwheat pancakes are falling out of favor and as a result buckwheat farmers are feeling the pinch. Agriculture Department figures show that only 1.3 billion bushels of buckwheat were harvested in 1960, the lowest in 74 years. Prices also have slumped.

U. S. Business Awaits President's Next Move

Mississippi Wildcat Well Being Tested

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—American Oil Corp. of Delaware has scheduled production tests on a Lincoln County wildcat about 2 miles north of the Brookhaven oil field to test commercial worth of reported oil shows.

The Board of Supervisors No. 1, sec. 16-8n-7e, was reported to have some oil shows below 10,464 feet in the lower Tuscaloosa formation. Operators set production casing to 10,604 feet.

Ada Oil Co.-Gammill and Smith ran into completion problems in a wildcat, the Massey No. 1, sec. 3-1n-7e, about four miles south Magnolia in Amite County.

Operators attempted to test three sands in the lower Tuscaloosa that carried oil shows on electrical log. Testing operations were underway at a perforated interval from 10,730-35 feet.

The potential pool opener is about 8 miles south of the large McComb field.

PUCKET

In the recently found Puckett oil field of Rankin County, Larco Drilling Co. continued testing the McIntyre No. 1, sec. 13-3n-5e, with the well reported flowing about 65 barrels of oil per day from perforations rom 9,404-09 feet and 9,397-9,402 feet.

In Copiah County, Victor Smith was deepening a wildcat, the USA No. 1-7, sec. 25-9n-5e. It was originally scheduled to 10,800 feet, but drilling operations were reported continuing to 13,500 feet.

Contnental Oil Co. was below 7,000 feet in a wildcat, the Freudenberg No. 1, sec. 24-12n-2w, located near Yazoo City.

The Yazoo County wildcat is scheduled to 14,100 feet to test the Smackover lime formation.

The Mississippi Geological Society has named the new Smith County oil field the Traxler field. The discovery well was Triad Oil and Gas Co. and Jett Drilling Co. No. 1 Dukes-Central, sec. 36-3n-6e, completed in a Rodessa sand at 11,072, 78 feet.

Two other wildcat tests are underway in Smith County.

Placid Oil Co. was below 11,700 feet in the Eaton Brothers No. 1, sec. 9-1n-9e, and Pan American Petroleum Corp was attempting to free drill pipe at 10,974 feet in the Filtrol Corp. No. 1 in Hinds County wildcat, the Allen No. 1, sec. 9-5n-2w, after getting slight gas shows in the gas rock formation. It is 4 miles southeast of Bolton field.

Field drilling the past week brought four new oilers.

In the new Knoxo field of Marion County, Texaco Seaboard, Inc., completed its Hilton No. 1, sec. 14-2n-12e, which pumped 165 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 9,734-42 feet.

Sun Oil Co. finaled the Kenna unit No. A-1, sec. 11-4n-8e, Pike County, which flowed 151 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 10,733-43 feet. It is in the Little Creek field.

In the McComb field of Pike County, D. A. Biglane completed the Alford-Rogers-Kalusche No. 1, sec. 21-3n-7e, which flowed 180 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 10,946-66 feet.

Otis Ainsworth completed the Bonner No. 3, sec. 30-10n-10w, which pumped 100 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 5,658-63 feet at Sandersville in Jones County.

New Savings Association Is Formed In Area

VIDALIA (Special) — A Savings and Loan Association which will do business as the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Concordia has been formed in Vidalia.

Permission has been granted by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board of Washington, D. C., for the organization to function, it has been announced by William L. "Bill" Koerber, Vidalia attorney.

At an organizational meeting, W. F. Johnson was elected as chairman; Martin Nathanson, co-chairman and W. L. Koerber, secretary - treasurer.

The association will maintain an office here and will be in business primarily to serve Concordia Parish, but it can operate within a radius of fifty miles of Vidalia.

Before the actual charter is issued, an efficient manager will be hired and necessary capital shares will be subscribed.

MONTHLY REPORT

Building Permits Record Rise Here

Construction in Monroe during January rose by $200,000 over the same month in 1960, but West Monroe saw a minor decrease in building activities.

Dale Martha of the Monroe building permit division issued 117 permits for $783,607 worth of construction last month. In January, 1960, 57 permits were obtained for $579,634 in construction.

West Monroe construction fell off by $1,700 when balanced against last year's figures. Activity for the past month stands at $88,310. Permits for construction valued at $90,100 were isued in January, 1960.

In Monroe, 28 one-family units led the construction total. They are valued at $306,243. This also is an increase over the one-family construction of one year ago, when permits were issued for $155,675.

A breakdown on other construction items in Monroe shows the following permits were issued:

One two-family unit, $10,000; one six-family unit, $30,000; one 10-family unit, $55,000; two warehouses, $12,400; two offices for dentists, $21,500; one office, $9,650; three service stations, $60,000; one ink manufacturing plant, $100,000; one drive-in, $7,500; six stores, $92,000.

Forty alterations and Additions to residences are valued at $66,054, while seven alterations and additions to non-residences are valued at $13,260.

Eleven buildings were moved, 12 were demolished.

Construction activity in West Monroe for January of this year shows a slight drop from January, 1960, Building Inspector C. E. Frost commented Friday.

Permits issued last month show a total valuation of $83,310, compared with $90,100 for January a year ago.

A total of 16 permits were issued last month, six for new residences, seven for additions to residences, two commercial permits and one for an addition to a commercial structure, Frost noted.

January of 1960 shows 15 permits, one to demolish a buildng, three for new commercial structures, seven for new homes and four additions to homes.

The $90,100 total valuation last January was the lowest total for any month of the year, the inspector continued, adding that it is usual for January to rank low.

However, he pointed out, January of 1959 showed a total of $104,249 in valuations, a high figure for the first month of the year.

Sixteen permits were issued in Monroe during the past week:

Monday January 30:

G. W. Welch, move frame residence from West Monroe to Richwood Road, outside the city limits, size 24 by 32 by 16 feet high, $300.

Tuesday, January 31:

Mrs. G. R. Haynes, demolish frame residence, 220 Congo St., valued at $400.

Wednesday, February 1:

Donald B. Johnston, construct brick veneer residence, five rooms, one bath, 1402 Parkview, 1363 square feet, $11,000.

Business Briefs

New District Manager

Jack E. McLean, well known in investment circles in the Shreveport area, is now associated with Ladd Dinkins & Co., investment securities firm of New Orleans. He will serve as district manager, North Louisiana area, according to an announcement made recently by the company.

At the same time, the firm announced the opening of its new Shreveport office, under McLean's management, in the Petroleum Tower building in downtown Shreveport.

Special Recognition

John V. Craft, 416 Lakeshore Drive, has earned special recognition from the Burroughs Corp. for his outstanding 1960 sales record with the business machines and electronic data processing equipment firm.

Craft receives charter membership in the company's legion of honor and a trip to Florida for a convention sales meeting this week. To earn the trip, he achieved 164 per cent of his annual sales quota, placing him in the top 10 per cent of the equipment and systems marketing division's more than 2,000-man field sales force.

Meeting Scheduled

"Federal Regulation of Natural Gas and its Effect on the Gas Processing Industry" will be the subject of the principal address by William J. Merrill before the first South Louisiana Regional Meeting of the Natural Gasoline Association of America, scheduled February 24 at the Lafayette Petroleum Club in Lafayette. Merrill is a veteran of 11 years service with the law department of Humble Oil and Refining Company, Houston, and has spent the last five years in gas matters, principally before the Federal Power Commission.

Gets Promotion

George Francis Fox of 600 Pine St., West Monroe, has recently been promoted to district measurement superintendent by United Gas Pipe Line Co., according to J. G. Hicks, Monroe District Manager.

Fox, who had been serving as United's chief chart clerk in the Monroe district since April 1, 1956, joined United Gas Pipe Line Co. as a checker in August of 1933.

Many Plans Not Yet Put Into Effect

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The business world last week studied President Kennedy's "new frontier" proposals to spur the lagging economy, and wondered what is over the horizon.

Some of the President's program came in direct orders which will have quick effect. Other parts will depend upon congressional action.

Kennedy told Congress that the economy is in a short-term recession and long-term slack.

He urged increased Social Security payments, emergency unemployment benefits, an increase in the minimum wage, easier housing credit, lower long-term interest rates and swifter federal and local government spending.

Some business leaders felt that the economy already was priming to lift itself by its bootstraps from the mire in which it is struggling. They believed this might come before Congress acts on some of the presidential proposals.

HELPFUL

Nevertheless, the Kennedy program was generally viewed as providing vital prospective stimulating shots in the economic arm.

The stock market gave every indication of approval for the government help. It racked up some sharp gains in a bullish atmosphere amid very heavy trading.

The aircraft-missile stocks took the lead in the advance on the word that the administration would step up defense spending, including a big increase in the fleet of military jet transport planes.

Brokers interpreted the market's steady gain through January as indication that it is anticipating the start of a business recovery about midyear.

However, business at the present remained in the doldrums.

Layoffs, low production and slow sales plaqued the automobile industry. Steel output declined and, despite a pickup in some types of orders, there was little anticipation of marked improvement for another month.

AUTOS

Auto production totaled an estimated 102,000 last week, up 6.9 per cent from the previous week, but down 37.4 per cent from a year ago. January production amounted to 414,752 cars, compared with 522,718 in December and 688,991 in January 1960. The February schedule is for 430,000 cars, a cut of 40,000 from original plans.

Ford and Chrysler closed six assembly plants and car lines at two others for this week, idling 15,000. American Motors will shut down operations at Milwaukee and Kenosha, Wis., next week because of "a general decline in the automobile industry." General Motors planned to lay off 45,000 men for a week starting Feb. 13.

The cutback in car production upset the steel industry's hopes for a pickup. Production of steel last week declined 2.2 per cent to 1,466,000 tons from the previous week.

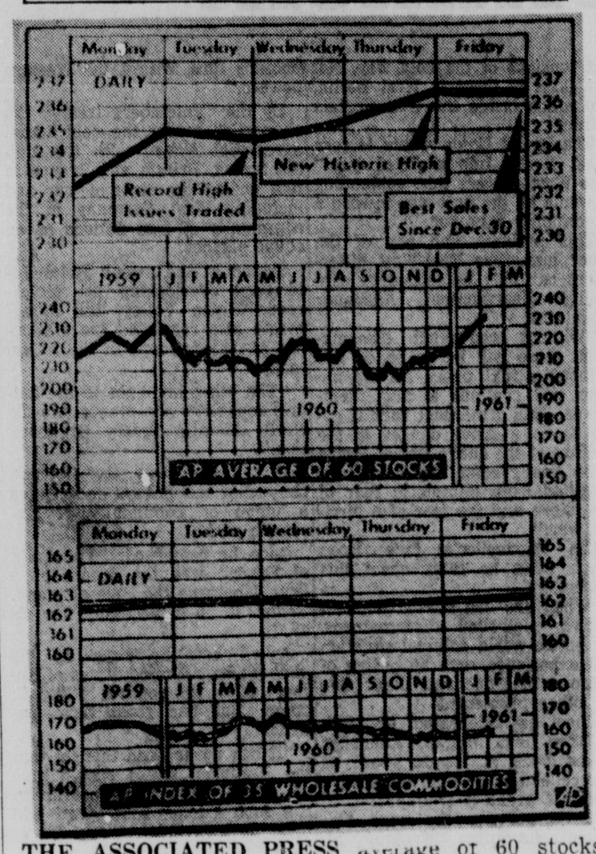
A severe cold wave compounded the economic troubles. It kept customers away from the stores and retail trade dropped 4 to 8 per cent below a year ago. Freight car loadings declined 2.8 per cent from the previous week and 21.3 per cent from a year ago. On the brighter side, there was increased demand for tire chains, snow tires, batteries, snow plows and rock salt.

Investment Reasoning

NEW YORK (UPI) — Men and women have different ideas on many different subjects but when it comes to investment objectives, they're closer than usual.

According to a National Association of Investment Companies poll, more than one out of three of both men and women indicated "future retirement income" as their favored investment goal. "A better return on savings" was cited by one in four of both male and female shareholders.

FINANCIAL $ OIL-GAS NEWS



THE ASSOCIATED PRESS average of 60 stocks gained for the sixth straight week, closing at 236.5 from 232.6 a week ago. The weekly volume was the best since mid-October, 1958. The Commodity Index, with food showing the largest gain, advanced for the second straight week, closing at 162,8 from 162.7 a week earlier. (AP Wirehoto Chart)

DESPITE SHORTAGE

Increase Expected In School Building

NEW YORK (UPI)—School construction is expected to move along a high plateau this year despite a definite easing in the post-war shortage of school plants.

The leveling off of the long upward trend in school contracts, along with a substantial reduction in the backlog of needed classrooms, point to this easing.

Thus, for forces sustaining outlays on school buildings and giving new uplift beyond 1961, we must look elsewhere, according to Edward A. Sprague of F. W. Dodge Corp.

Writing in the firm's monthly publication, Building Business, Sprague said the "spreading school" was one factor buoying the general outlook for school construction.

The modern school gymnasium, the new auditorium, the fully-equipped crafts shop and science laboratory, the appliance - filled home economics room, and the like, all represent new or expanded functions of our public schools.

EFECTS POSITIVE

While debate over the propriety of some of these functions rages on, the Dodge construction expert said, their net effect on school construction is quite positive.

Simply, more emphasis on supporting facilities and more classroom space per pupil means more building material per school or per addition.

Sprague looks for a definite shift in emphasis in the school construction market in the years ahead with secondary school and college building taking a greater share.

He noted that colleges and universities in a few years will be inundated by a wave of incoming students. The number of young people reaching the age of 18 will increase by a million in the space of little over a year (1964 to 1965).

This growth will eventually add up to vastly increased pressure for all sorts of college buildings.

OFFSET GAINS

Known trends in school age population also indicate a fairly sharp increase in secondary school enrollment. But, Sprague noted, this will be more than offset by smaller gains in elementary school enrollment. Here the slowdown will be evident only in comparison with swifter growth in the 1950's.

Sprague said a Dodge estimate last year of an increase of 62 per cent in total "real" expenditures on school construction in this decade would mean a work put in place figure of about $5.2 billion for the year 1969.

If these estimates prove reasonably correct, he added, school building should contribute substantially to the growth of total non-residential building. This in turn should accelerate at a faster pace than housing or heavy engineering construction.

In any event, Sprague believes school building is practically assured of maintaining its favorable position as the second largest category of non - residential construction, and the market for school building materials, equipment and supplies will be enormous by any measure.

Cotton Futures Close Mixed On N.Y. Board

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures contracts began and ended this week with a show of firmness, but were easy in between and ended with prices 5 cents a bale lower to 50 cents a bale higher.

Nearby March was the only month to show a loss.

Activity slowed from the previous week, when prices advanced, as traders marked time pending further developments regarding the support price for the 1961 crop.

Much trade talk centered on a proposal by President Kennedy's cotton task force that it should not be any longer than the choice "A" support price for the 1960 crop of 32.42 cents a pound for middle inch cotton at average location.

Advances during the week reflected price fixing in the nearer positions, while more distant months strengthened on commission house buying. This was influenced by price support prospects, a better mill inquiry for spot cotton and reports of some improvement in interest in the goods market.

From time to time the upturn was curbed, or reversed, by hedge selling, profit-taking and selling influenced by a further increase in stocks of certificated cotton.

Exports in the week ended Tuesday dropped to about 190,000 bales, estimated the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau.

TWO COMPLETIONS

Area Oil-Gas Activity Still Lags Behind

By RICHARD GREENE
World Oil Editor

Setting the pace of what seems to be a general slowdown of the oil and gas operations in the area, the Monroe district recorded only two new well completions and four locations last week.

This makes the second straight week of somewhat increased inactivity in the drilling and exploration processes throughout the district.

The reason for several of the operations closing down was because of the mark left by inclement weather of a week back. Some other rigs have to be worked over and a few of the roads leading to the drilling sites are still under water.

Duncan S. Cook, manager of the 14 - parish district, also listed in the report a total of 14 active rigs and two holes plugged and abandoned in the area.

The Bruer and Curran Oil Co. and A. T. Teague Jr. et al have completed their Mrs. W. M. Tolar et al No. 1 in section 11-8-6E of the Tew Lake field of Catahouala Parish. It was completed to pump 56 barrels from perforations at 4368-69 ft., gravity 38.

In the White Sulphur Springs Field of LaSalle Parish, W. D. Simmons et al have completed its Mrs. J. E. Whatley et al No. 1 in section 9-7-2B. It was completed to pump 3 barrels from an open hole at 807-814 ft.

NEW LOCATIONS

Following are the new locations:

LaSALLE PARISH, Saline Lake Field — George Belchic Jr.'s Olin Tensas Delta "A" no. 1, located 330 ft. north and 660 ft. south of the SE corner of the south half of the NE¼ of sec. 2-4-4E.

TENSAS PARISH, Wildcat Field — LaGrange Petroleum Co.'s Mount Ararat Plantation no. 1, located 330 ft. from the west line and 330 ft. from the south line of the SE¼-SE¼ of sec. 33-11-12E.

UNION PARISH, Wildcat Field — Southwest Gas Producing Co.'s J. J. Hamilton Unit no. 1, located 1865 ft. north and 1720 ft. east of the SW corner of sec. 30-19-1E.

Monroe Field — La Gas Producing Co.'s Grafton no. 1, located 660 ft. north and 330 ft. west of the SE corner of the NW¼-NE¼ of sec. 12-21-2E.

These rigs were listed as active:

CATAHOULA

Long Branch Field — B. J. Baird's Olin - Ten Delta B-1 in sec. 11-5-5E, testing - swabbing.

Saline Lake Field — Justiss - Mears Oil Co.'s Olin - Ten Delta B-2 in sec. 28-5-5E, testing.

CONCORDIA

Wildcat Field — Jett Drilling Co. and Pan American Petroleum Corp.'s Ang. Hdw. Lbr. Co. no. 4 in sec. 38-3-7E, drilling.

FRANKLIN

South Big Creek Field — R. E. Williams Oil Co.'s W. G. Vernon no. 1 in sec. 18-16-8E, testing.

LaSALLE

Olla Field — Cities Service Oil Co.'s Trem. Lbr. Co. A-40 in sec 28-10-2E, testing.

RAPIDES

Wildcat Field — Hahn Oil and Gas Co.'s Southeast Timber Lbr. Co. no. 1 in sec. 40-5-1W, drilling.

RICHLAND

Wildcat Field — The California Co.'s John C. Morris no. 1 in sec. 6-16-7E, drilling.

TENSAS

Buckhorn Field — Est of William G. Helis' Boyle et al no. 7 in sec. 35-12-11E, drilling.

Humble Oil and Refining Co.'s M. M. Bloom et al no. 1 in sec. 36-12-11E, drilling.

Lake Formosa Field — Jett Drilling Co. and Sun Oil Co.'s Fisher Lbr. Corp. B-4 in sec. 22-12-10E, drilling.

UNION

Monroe Field — La Gas Prod. Co.'s Traylor no. 1 in sec. 14-21-2E, drilling.

Mount Olive Field — M. H. Marr's Colvin Unit no. 1 in sec. 5-21-3W, building roads and clearing location.

These holes were plugged and abandoned:

LaSALLE

Olla Field — Cities Service Oil Co.'s Trem. Lbr. Co. A-45 in sec. 32-10-2E, abandoned Jan. 26 at 2500 ft.

TENSAS

Wildcat Field — The Offshore Oil Co. et al's S. Dalton Watson no. 2 in sec. 23-10-11E, aband. Jan. 26 at 9053 ft.

Fuels Policy On National Level Is Seen

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — One sentence in President Kennedy's State of the Union message was of particular interest to oil operators.

The President said he plans to send Congress a special message on measures to increase the development of the nation's natural resources.

Such resources, as outlined in the 1960 Democratic national platform, range from water, soil, and pure air to such minerals as coal and oil.

But the President's remark carried particular significance to the oilmen because the natural resources section of the 1960 platform pledges support to the establishment of a national fuels policy.

SPECULATE

Oil operators speculate it is probable President Kennedy's special message will include a suggestion Congress order a study on establishment of such a policy.

Such a proposal already is before the new Congress. Similar concurrent resolutions last year failed to reach the floor of either house. The Senate Interior Committee gave approval but the House Rules Committee did not do so. House action in boosting the Rules Committee membership from 12 to 15 members may enhance chances for the new proposal to reach the House floor.

Oil industry spokesmen traditionally have contended such a study is unnecessary. Two weeks ago, however, they pledged cooperation should President Kennedy, at the executive level, or Congress order a study.

Oilmen found one paragraph in last year's unsuccessful joint resolutions particularly objectionable.

The proposed joint committee would have been directed to give consideration to "the optimal allocation of the various fuels and energy resources to their most productive economic uses, including . . . the geographical distribution of these resources.

Oil spokesmen feared this meant authority for the government to allocate markets to certain fuels by substituting end-use controls for normal competition among all types of energy. Oil's end-use controls charges have been denied by the National Coal Policy Conference, one of the major backers of the fuels policy proposals.

The oil industry's strategy for any fuels policy hearings that may develop have not been announced.

It is known, however, the industry will place heavy emphasis on a contention Congress historically has followed a policy of noninterference in existing competition within the fuels industry and between different fuels.

The domestic platform does not suggest details for a national fuels policy.

The natural resources section makes only three rather indirect references to oil. The platform criticizes the Republican administration for "secret leasing of game refuges to favored oil interests." It pledges resumption of research and development work on use of low-grade mineral reserves such as oil shale. It also says the Democratic party favors a study of the problem on non-uniform seaward boundaries of coastal states.

The natural resources section ends with a paragraph headed "government machinery for managing resources."

"Long-range programming of the nation's resources development is essential," the paragraph reads. "We favor creation of a council of advisors on resources and conservation, which will evaluate and report annually upon our resource needs and progress."

Oil Company Set To Move District Office

SHREVEPORT (Special) — Pan American Petroleum Corp. will move its district exploration and production office from Shreveport to Jackson, Miss. about July the first. George W. Clarke, Pan Am's Vice President and division manager announced the move at the company's Oklahoma City division headquarters.

The office in Jackson will have jurisdiction over Pan Am's operations in northern Louisiana, Southern Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama and other Southeastern States. The move will combine personnel and operations of the Shreveport and Jackson offices.

P. D. Manning, district production superintendent from Shreveport will have charge of producing operations in the Jackson district. R. L. Nelson, who is presently district exploration superintendent in Jackson will be in charge of the new combined exploration district.

Clerk said, "We regret the necessity to move our office from Shreveport, but the decision to combine both offices at Jackson was made in order to increase overall operating efficiency. We will of course continue our producing and exploration activities in Shreveport and expect to remain active in this part of the country for many years."

Falling In Favor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Buckwheat pancakes are falling out of favor and as a result buckwheat farmers are feeling the pinch. Agriculture Department figures show that only 1.2 billion bushels of buckwheat were harvested in 1960, the lowest in 74 years. Prices also have slumped.

HINTS GIVEN TO HOME-HUNTERS

Heating System Part Of House Buying

NEW YORK (UPI)—Nippy winter weather may not foster enthusiasm for house hunting, but it is the wise home-seeker who bundles up and goes out looking anyway.

The Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association (GAMA), notes that the heating system of a home may account for as much as 10 per cent of the purchase price and says cold weather house hunting will give you a better opportunity to judge the performance of a heating system than you would have during warmer weather.

GAMA advises that you check on thermostats, making sure they are located on inside walls, away from drafts, TV sets and other influences on heat control. It also suggests a check to see that there is a source of heat near house entrances. A radiator or register near the front or back door, it notes, can be an important fuel saver.

SATISFACTORY

What type of fuel is most satisfactory for heating?

Most manufacturers of heating equipment say the type of fuel has little effect on the over-all efficiency of the heating system. The experts generally agree that if a heating plant of high quality is properly engineered, installed and economical in operation, no matter which type of fuel is used.

The better heating-cooling council says the homeowner's primary concern regarding fuel should be what it will cost each year to heat his house with one type of fuel compared with another.

The best way to judge real fuel costs, it suggests, is to check with neighbors using different types of fuel, keeping in mind that a structure's size, construction and orientation and such factors as amount of glass area, weather stripping, storm windows and doors, and insulation all affect heating requirements.

FUEL SAVINGS

Some fuel saving tips for the homeowner are offered by the National Fuel Oil Council. To save dollars every month during the heating season, it recommends:

—Lower thermostat if you are going away for a day or two and at night. For an empty house, 55 degrees is plenty. The same lowering at night regularly, it says, can save 15 per cent on the heating bill.

—It seems elementary, but people forget to turn off heat and close off rooms not in use.

—Don't let heat "run away." Overheating, then cooling off by opening windows, is plain waste. Keep temperatures moderate.

—Don't place upholstered furniture, drapes or rugs where they can block flow of room heat from outlets such as radiators or registers.

—Raise the humidity. You'll feel warmer, more comfortable, even at lower than usual temperatures.

—Close outside doors promptly. Heat pours out during those lingering goodbyes at a wide-open door. Teach youngsters that quick entrances and exits are the rule.

—Be sure radiator and ducts balance the heat supplied to each room. Heat outlets, radiator valves or duct closures should be adjusted for more or less heat flow as necessary to give even heating throughout the house.

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

Little League Growing

Expansion is on for Little League and Dixie League baseball in Monroe, and the addition of a new Little League has the membership of the current board of directors looking for new additions to their ranks.

Saul Adler and Buddy Blair, presidents of the Northside and Southside leagues respectively, lead the expansion move that's due to install a third Monroe circuit in the college area, necessitating another set of officers.

Attorney Ryan Sartor is the latest addition to the ranks of LL leaders here. Others, like Tony Lewis, Hiller Hesdorffer, Lucien Branch, Tony Renfro, Nelson Abell, Tony Embanato, and Buddy Harrison are due to get invitations if they haven't already received them.

Little League directors here also direct Dixie League for the older boys, and they're planning two leagues where only one existed last year. They're lining up sponsors for the new leagues along with the old.

There'll be some changes in force in the LL rules this summer. National regulations now allow seven 12-year-olds per team instead of six, and limits 10-year-olds and under to two, thus leaving room for six 11-year-olds to fill the legal - sized roster.

Eight-year-olds will not be permitted Little League membership this year, but they will be assigned for play in the Minor Leagues. National rules now permit eight teams in a league, but Monroe leagues will operate with their usual number.

Conduct of the Little League and Dixie League programs in Monroe comes about through cooperation between interested baseball leaders who serve as directors, Monroe merchants and businessmen who sponsor the teams, an Monroe city officials and the Recreation Department personnel that join in providing the places to play and handle conduct of the games.

Businessmen have sponsored Little League here since its inception and are now charged a flat fee of $200 per team for a full season. "This Is Little League 1961," the organization's national publication lists the average cost to equip a four - team league as $200 per team for equipment only and does not include insurance or umpires, and just two sets of catcher's equipment for all the teams and available for each game as it comes up.

Every Monroe team has its own catching equipment, paid umpires, and player insurance in addition to all other necessities. Part of the game concessions go to foot the bill, the bulk of which is carried by the sponsors. Many leagues over the country require $400 per sponsor for the complete coverage obtained here for $250 because of the take from concessions.

Monroe On Hanks' Route

Sam Hanks, racing director at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway and 1957 winner of the 500-mile Memorial Day automobile classic, will leave Bridgeport, Conn., Thursday for a cross country tour covering 14 states and scheduled stops in at least 26 cities, ending February 15 at Los Angeles, Calif.

If "Old Sambo" keeps on schedule he's due in Monroe at 8 p.m. Saturday after stops earlier in the day at Meridian, Jackson, and Vicksburg, Miss. Next stop after leaving Monroe will be Shreveport.

Speed is not Hank's object on this trip. He'll be obeying legal speed limits (he averaged 135.6 MPH in his '57 Speedway win) in a standard stock car, traveling superhighways, city streets and country roads. A second car and four expert drivers will be in Hanks' party which has the coast - to - coast trip lined up as a research project to test brake linings.

Some Short Shots

Bob Anderson, for nearly four years a member of the Morning World sports staff, is an LSU student again.

It should go without saying, but we'll say it anyhow. Bob is missed by the many friends he made around this section of the state, but they're all wishing him early success in his toil toward his master's degree.

Anybody want to drop him a card? Address it to "Bob Anderson, 1980 Wisteria, Baton Rouge, La."

There's only eleven lettermen in the crowd, but Ouachita Parish High has turned out the biggest squad of football talent to greet Coach Bob Allen and the largest since West Monroe High opened to take parish students west of the Ouachita river.

Sixty - seven Lion athletes have just completed a week of spring training. The lettermen on hand are Johnny Butler, Jimmy Furr, Donnie Letterman, Ernest Loyd, Butch Oglesbee, James Richardson, Danny Tousinan, Elbert Via, Roy Walten, Dennis Warner, and Billy Darden.

Ouachita squads have been so short in recent years that the graduating seniors have stayed on in spring training to play the new talent in the annual spring game. This spring the squad will be divided evenly for an intra-squad game February 23 when the spring work ends.

Dodson High School is planning playing dates for its fifth annual Independent Basketball Tournament so that every team seeking to enter can compete. Each year Dodson had to reject some entries when their brackets were filled. Last year only 14 could participate and there were five rejections.

But Principal K. C. Simmons now reports "we plan to reserve enough nights to take care of every team that enters. The dates are February 27 and 28, and March 2, 3 and 4. And independent teams desiring to participate are advised to contact Coach Buddy Bates at Dodson High. The entry fee is $10. Cash awards will be $60 for first place and $25 for second. Entry deadline is February 20.

Trainer Bill Ferrell of the Arkansas Razorbacks reports that the operation on the left shoulder of All - Southwest Conference halfback Lance Alworth "was a complete success," assuring Lance will be able to take part in spring sports for the Porkers this year. A grid injury made the operation necessary. He's a whiz at baseball and track in addition to football.

Alworth with assistant coach Dixie White and teammate Wayne Harris, will be in Delhi Thursday night when Coach Raymond Richards turns out his Black Bears for the Delhi High football banquet.

Lynn Whitman, who had a promising football career for West Monroe nipped early because of a knee injury when he was a junior high halfback, has the same leg in a cast again. The WMHS student was accidentally shot in the leg recently. He's convalescing at home.

3 Tied For Lead At Palm Springs

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Billy Casper, Ken Venturi and Billy Maxwell moved into a tie for the lead Saturday after 72 holes in the 90-hole, $50,000 Palm Springs Golf Classic.

Playing different courses, each posted a score of 274 and goes into the final round of this desert marathon Sunday one shot in front of Bob Rosburg, who carded a 73.

Casper played the swank Bermuda Dunes Country Club's par-72 course in 68, Maxwell toured the Thunderbird Club's 71 in 68 and Venturi had a 1-under-par 71 at the Eldorado course, rated the roughest in this resort land.

The final round, with the field trimmed to the low 60s and ties, shifts to the exclusive Tamarisk Country Club. It will be nationally televised by CBS from 4:30 to 6 p.m., EST.

The leader through the second and third rounds, dark horse Al Mengert had miseries in a day that was otherwise bright and, in the early stages, windy.

Mengert, a teaching professional at Phoenix, Ariz., took a whopping 76. He still is in contention, however, at 277. He had previous rounds of 66, 66 and 69.

Alone at 278 was Doug Sanders, who shot a 68.

U.S. Open champion Arnold Palmer, who fired a final-round 65 to win this tournament a year ago, faces a rougher assignment Sunday. He took a par 72 at Eldorado for 279.

"I'm not putting as I should but I hope to do better," said Palmer.

Tied with Palmer were Jay Hebert, who had a great chance for a sub-par score but got into trouble on the back nine and took a 73; Paul Harney, who also had a 73, and Gardner Dickenson, who shot a 67.

Mengert went into the fourth round with a one-stroke lead over Rosburg, two over Venturi and three over George Bayer.

Harrisonburg Cagers Finest In Catahoula

HARRISONBURG, La. (Special) — Championships in both senior divisions of the Catahoula Parish Basketball Tournament went to Harrisonburg High School last night, and Harrisonburg also claimed titles in two divisions for underclassmen.

Harrisonburg and Block of Jonesville fought it out in the featured boys and girls' finals, the host quintet winning, 60-52, and the home standing girls notching a 44-31 victory.

Cousins Truman Boothe and Shelby Boothe led the Harrisonburg quint with 24 and 18 points respectively, but Block's Billy Brock was the game's high scorer with 31.

Helen Randall, with 24 points, and Nancy Humble, with 17, led Harrisonburg in the girls' final, while Elva McMillin was Block's leading pointmaker with 15.

Albert Karuse, Sicily Island, won the boys' free - throw contest with a perfect score of 20-for-20. Helen Randall, Harrisonburg, and Dijuana Lewis, Enterprise, tied in the girls' class with 17-for-20 and will receive duplicate awards. Each school in the parish entered a free throw contender.

Final results in the other sections of the tournament were:

"B" girls — Harrisonburg 30, Sicily Island 17.

"B" boys — Sicily Island 62, Block 41.

Junior girls — Block 30, Central of Larto 17.

Junior boys — Harrisonburg 38, Central 16.

Elementary girls — Enterprise 26, Manifest 10.

Elementary boys — Sicily Island 35, Block 21.

Belt At Stake In Title Scrap At Roll-Arena

Adrian Ballongeon and Chief Geroaime tie up once again at Roll-Arena Monday night with a championship belt at stake.

The two grapplers met last week for the title but only set the scene for tonight's payoff when Geroaime was disqualified for choking and Commissioner Dave Silverstein decided to call it no decision.

Yaqui Joe, who earned a draw with Carlos Mendoza last week in a 15-minute opening match will try his skills against Wild Bill Stedham on tonight's card.

Rocky Marino and the Black Panther, Tony Neapolitan, will battle in tonight's 15 - minute opener. Missing from tonight's card will be Frenchman Pierre DeGlane, who lost a "loser set out of town match to the Panther last week.

Geroaime and Ballongeon had split their battle at one round each last week when the Chief put a towel around his opponents neck and twisted him into submission, while the referee was out of the ring. Tonight's match should see a champion crowned if the wrestlers can keep it close long enough for one to win fair and square.

JOHN BRIDGERS

Baylor's Coach Clinic Feature For Northeast

John Bridgers, athletic director and head football coach at Baylor University, will be a featured lecturer at the Northeast Louisiana State College Clinic for high school coaches here March 18, it was announced yesterday by Jack Rowan, Northeast's athletic director.

Bridgers will speak on the offensive game of football, a part he is well qualified to talk about. In 1960 Baylor ranked fifth nationally in passing, and led the Southwest Conference in passing, total offense, and pass defense.

In two years as Baylor coach, Bridgers guided the Bears to second place in the conference last year with an 8-2 over - all record and a bowl appearance.

Bridgers exploits the spread - T attack that is a trend back to the wide-open entertaining type of offense that for years was a trademark of Southwest Conference football.

Before taking the reins at Baylor, Bridgers coached defensive tackles and guards for the Baltimore Colts, including such standouts as Gino Marchetti and "Big Daddy" Lipscomb.

High school coaches from throughout Louisiana are being invited to participate in the clinic, Rowan said.

Gents Down La. Tech By 58-45 Score

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Centenary managed to stave off a second-half rally by Louisiana Tech here last night to defeat the cold - shooting Bulldogs, 58-45.

Tech hit only 27 per cent from the field on 17 of 61, and connected on only 6 of 16 free throws in the final half. Centenary took the lead midway of the first period and held a comfortable margin most of the contest.

Dale Van Bibber led Centenary with 18 points, mainly on hook shots. Jackie Crawford scored 12 for the Gents. Ron Futrell hit 15 points and Joe Daigle 10 for Tech.

Centenary poured in eight straight points midway in the first half to jump its margin to 20-10, led at halftime 27-21.

The Gents maintained a 10 point spread through most of the final half until a quick rally by Tech cut the margin to seven points late in the period. However, the Gents recovered with quick baskets in the final two minutes to extend their lead.

Winnfield outscored Taylor, Ark. 48-43 to take the girls' consolation trophy. Maxey and Love each had 17 points for the winners and Johnson led Taylor on 18 points.

Eiland, Mouser, Relay Team First

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (Special) — Northeast Louisiana State College, competing without last years winner and record holder in the pole vault, John Pennell, placed third in the Coliseum Relays here yesterday.

Coach Bob Groseclose's Indians scored 21 points to 23½ for Alabama's Crimson Tide and 22 for Auburn. Pennel, out of action for Northeast's cinder men for the time being with an injury, set a record last year in the vault with 14 ft. 2 inches, well over the winning margin here yesterday.

Northeast, defending champion in the Gulf States Conference track and field picture, got a good look at its possibilities for the coming season at yesterday's meet, with untiring Buddy Eiland notching two first place victories, Jim Mouser taking the half mile and the Tribe mile relay breaking the tape in front of all opposition.

Eiland won the mile run in 4:26.4 and the two mile in 9:49.8, and joined Corky Frost of Auburn as the meet's only double winner. Mouser stepped off the half mile in a time of 2:01.5 to notch his first place. The Indian mile relay, composed of Jim Mouser, Jim Glass (freshman), John Baker (freshman) and Randall Walker (sophomore) covered the distance in 3:21.3 to place first.

Eiland outdistanced Gordon Graham of Alabama and Jim Moorhead of Clemson in the two mile run and Graham and Ronald Smith of Alabama in the mile run. Mouser beat out Bill Davis of Florida State and Jim Dozier of Auburn of the top finishers in the half-mile.

The Indians got top performances from other track and field men as Jack Williams placed fourth in the mile run with a time of 4:30, and fifth in the two mile run. Hoy Rogers ended fifth in the shot put.

Northeast placed ahead of top notch runners from Clemson, Florida State, Georgia Tech, Georgia State, Georgia, Howard College, LSU, Mississippi State, Tennessee, Troy State, and Vanderbilt.

In the preliminaries of the 60-yard dash, Gary Martin of Alabama and Donnie Gilbert of Clemson equalled the record of 6.3 seconds set last year by Northeast's Don and Dave Styron.

Coach Bob Groseclose carried eleven team members to the meet, four of which were freshmen, and missed making it two Coliseum Relay championships in a row by the narrow margin of 2½ points.

GRAB SEC LEAD

Maroons Master Tigers, 77 To 61

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi State put on steam in the second half and raced to an easy 77-61 victory over Louisiana State and took over undisputed possession of first place in the Southeastern Conference basketball race Saturday night.

Earlier in the night, Kentucky stopped Florida 89-67. Florida and Mississippi State were tied for the lead with 5-0 marks going into Saturday night's games.

W. D. Stroud, a red-haired sophomore guard from Forrest, scored 21 points to take top scoring honors. It was the third consecutive game in which Stroud paced the Maroons.

The 6 foot guard connected on nine of 15 shots from the field and made all three free throws good.

After the score was tied three times in the first three and one-half minutes, the Maroons pulled ahead 12-11 on a field goal by guard Jack Berkshire and led the rest of the way.

The Maroons took a 42-36 advantage into halftime as LSU's classy junior George Nattin paced his team's attempts to overtake Mississippi State.

The Tigers hit a cold streak in the start of the second half. They went 10 minutes and 50 seconds before Nattin scored their first field goal.

Mississippi State, switching from a fast break to a slow, deliberate style of play, made good on 27 of 56 shots from the floor for a .482 mark. In the first half, they hit .562 per cent of their shots. LSU's field goal mark was .367.

All five of Mississippi State's starters scored in double figures. Jerry Graves, the Maroons' 6-6 senior center and second-ranking scorer in the SEC, scored 18 point Sophomore Leland Mitchell also had 15, while Berkshire scored 13 and forward Joe Gold 11.

Nattin led LSU with 20 points, 12 of them in the first half. Ellis Cooper scored 12 for the Tigers.

The victory was Mississippi State's 14th against three defeats for the entire season. LSU now is 3-3 in SEC action and has a 8-9 overall mark.

Fort Necessity Boys, Ogden Girls Triumph

BASKIN, La. (Special) — Fort Necessity flashed past Winnsboro, 67-57, to win the boys crown in the Franklin Parish tournament last night, and Ogden's girls came from behind to nip Gilbert, 61-58 to take their division championship.

Jurell Thames tallied 22 points to lead the champion boys and Burt Boyle contributed 21 to the Winnsboro attack.

In the girls' title game, which saw Ogden overcome a first quarter 16-13 setback, Linda Hatton notched 24 markers for the winners and Helen Sewell got 27 for Gilbert.

In the boys semifinals Winnsboro downed Central, 62-58, and Fort Necessity stopped Baskin by [illegible] Neary led Winnsboro with 26 points, Stegall collected 16 for Central, Hoyole Erwin popped in 22 for Fort and Harry Mock managed 27 for Baskin's losers.

In girls' semifinal action Ogden sank Crowville, 59-52 in a thriller and Gilbert barely outshot Winnsboro, 30-29. Linda Hatton scored 28 points for Ogden, Shirley Pierce got 40 for Crowville, Sewell hit 27 in the Gilbert attack, and Wiltshire popped in 21 for Winnsboro.

First and second place trophies were awarded after the final games.

Barnes Reelected

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—George Barnes of Chicago was reelected president of the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association.

Also named at the final meeting of the convention were: Edward Turville of St. Petersburg, Fla., first vice president; James M Dickel of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., second vice president; Harold Lehair of New York, treasurer and David Freed of Salt Lake City, secretary.

The convention voted to hold its 1962 meeting in Southern California at a site to be designated later.

Long Toss Nears Mark In Millrose

NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Backus got off a toss of 64 feet in the 35-pound weight throw Saturday in the Millrose - Metropolitan AAU meet and promptly announced he was ready to break the 70-foot mark.

Only Hal Connolly has gotten past 70 feet in the event. He smashed the barrier with a heave of 71-2½ in the National AAU Championships last year, and Backus has been trying to match it since.

"I feel I'm ready to get over 70 feet," said Backus. "There's no reason why I shouldn't. I had a real good throw in Boston a couple of weeks ago that I thought would go over 70 feet, but it missed. I'll get it soon.

"I'm building up to the National AAU meet in two weeks. That's where Connolly and I really go at each other. I'm aiming for a throw of about 73 feet."

When Connolly made his record toss year, Backus was second with a 69-8½ effort.

"Of course," mused Backus, "even if I do get my 73-footer, beating Connolly is another matter. I think he's capable of hitting around 74 feet." Connolly is the 1956 Olympic hammer throw champ who also competes in the weight throw.

"But if he has one slip I'll beat him. You never know, though. Today I felt real good and I only made 64 feet. The one who is 'up' for the AAU meet will in the weight."

The 34-year-old New York Athletic Club whale made two 64-footers and fouled on his other four tries. Stu Thomason, a clubmate at the New York A.C., also tossed the hardware 64 feet, but his second best throw was 63-2½.

That doesn't wind up the competition. Nine hardy brutes trudged through the snowstorm to compete. The distances will count toward both the Millrose and Metropolitan AAU titles.

The shot put was called off because the officials were snowbound. The snow also caused the Met AAU pole vault and broad jump, scheduled for New York University's Ohio Field, to be put off. Everything was scheduled to be finished up next Saturday.

Stan Doten of Harvard is in third place in the weights with a 63-10½ throw, followed by Ed Bailey of Harvard with a 59-7½ throw.

Tribe Places Third In Relays

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

Little League Growing

Expansion is on for Little League and Dixie League baseball in Monroe, and the addition of a new Little League has the membership of the current board of directors looking for new additions to their ranks.

Saul Adler and Buddy Blair, presidents of the Northside and Southside leagues respectively, lead the expansion move that's due to install a third Monroe circuit in the college area, necessitating another set of officers.

Attorney Ryan Sartor is the latest addition to the ranks of LL leaders here. Others, like Tony Lewis, Hiller Hesdorffer, Lucien Branch, Tony Renfro, Nelson Abell, Tony Embanato, and Buddy Harrison are due to get invitations if they haven't already received them.

Little League directors here also direct Dixie League for the older boys, and they're planning two leagues where only one existed last year. They're lining up sponsors for the new leagues along with the old.

There'll be some changes in force in the LL rules this summer. National regulations now allow seven 12-year-olds per team instead of six, and limits 10-year-olds and under to two, thus leaving room for six 11-year-olds to fill the legal - sized roster.

Eight-year-olds will not be permitted Little League membership this year, but they will be assigned for play in the Minor Leagues. National rules now permit eight teams in a league, but Monroe leagues will operate with their usual number.

Conduct of the Little League and Dixie League programs in Monroe comes about through cooperation between interested baseball leaders who serve as directors, Monroe merchants and businessmen who sponsor the teams, an Monroe city officials and the Recreation Department personnel that join in providing the places to play and handle conduct of the games.

Businessmen have sponsored Little League here since its inception and are now charged a flat fee of $250 per team for a full season. "This Is Little League 1961," the organization's national publication lists the average cost to equip a four - team league as $250 per team for equipment only and does not include insurance or umpires, and just two sets of catcher's equipment for all the teams and available for each game as it comes up.

Every Monroe team has its own catching equipment, paid umpires, and player insurance in addition to all other necessities. Part of the game concessions go to foot the bill, the bulk of which is carried by the sponsors. Many leagues over the country require $400 per sponsor for the complete coverage obtained here for $250 because of the take from concessions.

Monroe On Hanks' Route

Sam Hanks, racing director at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway and 1957 winner of the 500-mile Memorial Day automobile classic, will leave Bridgeport, Conn., Thursday for a cross country tour covering 14 states and scheduled stops in at least 36 cities, ending February 15 at Los Angeles, Calif.

If "Old Sambo" keeps on schedule he's due in Monroe at 8 p.m. Saturday after stops earlier in the day at Meridian, Jackson, and Vicksburg, Miss. Next stop after leaving Monroe will be Shreveport.

Speed is not Hank's object on this trip. He'll be obeying legal speed limits (he averaged 135.6 MPH in his '57 Speedway win) in a standard stock car, traveling superhighways, city streets and country roads. A second car and four expert drivers will be in Hanks' party which has the coast - to - coast trip lined up as a research project to test brake linings.

Some Short Shots

Bob Anderson, for nearly four years a member of the Morning World sports staff, is an LSU student again.

It should go without saying, but we'll say it anyhow. Bob is missed by the many friends he made around this section of the state, but they're all wishing him early success in his toil toward his master's degree.

Anybody want to drop him a card? Address it to "Bob Anderson, 1930 Wisteria, Baton Rouge, La."

There's only eleven lettermen in the crowd, but Ouachita Parish High has turned out the biggest squad of football talent to greet Coach Bob Ellen and the largest since West Monroe High opened to take parish students west of the Ouachita river.

Sixty - seven Lion athletes have just completed a week of spring training. The lettermen on hand are Johnny Butler, Jimmy Furr, Donnie Letterman, Ernest Loyd, Butch Oglesbee, James Richardson, Danny Tousinau, Elbert Via, Roy Walton, Dennis Warner, and Billy Darden.

Ouachita squads have been so short in recent years that the graduating seniors have stayed on in spring training to play the new talent in the annual spring game. This spring the squad will be divided evenly for an intra-squad game February 23 when the spring work ends.

Dodson High School is planning playing dates for its fifth annual Independent Basketball Tournament so that every team seeking to enter can compete. Each year Dodson had to reject some entries when their brackets were filled. Last year only 14 could participate and there were five rejections.

But Principal K. C. Simmons now reports "we plan to reserve enough nights to take care of every team that enters. The dates are February 27 and 28, and March 2, 3 and 4. And independent teams desiring to participate are advised to contact Coach Buddy Bates at Dodson High. The entry fee is $10. Cash awards will be $50 for first place and $25 for second. Entry deadline is February 20.

Trainer Bill Ferrell of the Arkansas Razorbacks reports that the operation on the left shoulder of All - Southwest Conference halfback Lance Alworth "was a complete success," assuring Lance will be able to take part in spring sports for the Porkers this year. A grid injury made the operation necessary. He's a whiz at baseball and track in addition to football.

Alworth with assistant coach Dixie White and teammate Wayne Harris, will be in Delhi Thursday night when Coach Raymond Richards turns out his Black Bears for the Delhi High football banquet.

Lynn Whitman, who had a promising football career for West Monroe nipped early because of a knee injury when he was a junior high halfback, has the same leg in a cast again. The WMHS student was accidentally shot in the leg recently. He's convalescing at home.

KEN VENTURI chips from the edge of a water hazard guarding the fourth green at Eldorado Country Club and puts the ball three feet from the pin during yesterday's fourth round of the 90-hole Palm Springs (Calif.) Golf Classic. He dropped the putt to get his par after almost going into the water on his second shot. Venturi shared a tie for the lead with Bill Casper and Billy Maxwell at the end of yesterday's play. (AP Wirephoto)

3 Tied For Lead At Palm Springs

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Billy Casper, Ken Venturi and Billy Maxwell moved into a tie for the lead Saturday after 72 holes in the 90-hole, $50,000 Palm Springs Golf Classic.

Playing different courses, each posted a score of 274 and goes into the final round of this desert marathon Sunday one shot in front of Bob Rosburg, who carded a 73.

Casper played the swank Bermuda Dunes Country Club's par-72 course in 68, Maxwell toured the Thunderbird Club's 71 in 68 and Venturi had a 1-under-par 71 at the Eldorado course, rated the roughest in this resort land.

The final round, with the field trimmed to the low 60s and ties, shifts to the exclusive Tamarisk Country Club. It will be nationally televised by CBS from 4:30 to 6 p.m., EST.

The leader through the second and third rounds, dark horse Al Mengert had miseries in a day that was otherwise bright and, in the early stages, windy.

Mengert, a teaching professional at Phoenix, Ariz., took a whopping 76. He still is in contention, however, at 277. He had previous rounds of 68, 65 and 68.

Alone at 278 was Doug Sanders, who shot a 66.

U.S. Open champion Arnold Palmer, who fired a final-round 65 to win this tournament a year ago, faces a rougher assignment Sunday. He took a par 72 at Eldorado for 279.

"I'm not putting as I should but I hope to do better," said Palmer.

Tied with Palmer were Jay Hebert, who had a great chance for a sub-par score but got into trouble on the back nine and took a 73; Paul Harney, who also had a 73, and Gardner Dickenson, who shot a 67.

Mengert went into the fourth round with a one-stroke lead over Rosburg, two over Venturi and three over George Bayer.

Belt At Stake In Title Scrap At Roll-Arena

Adrian Ballengeon and Chief Geronimo tie up once again at Roll-Arena Monday night with a championship belt at stake.

The two grapplers met last week for the title but only set the scene for tonight's payoff when Geronimo was disqualified for choking and Commissioner Dave Silverstein decided to call it no decision.

Yaqui Joe, who earned a draw with Carlos Mendoza last week in a 15-minute opening match will try his skills against Wild Bill Stedham on tonight's card.

Rocky Marino and the Black Panther, Tony Neopolitan, will battle in tonight's 15 - minute opener. Missing from tonight's card will be Frenchman Pierre DeGlane, who lost a loser get out of town match to the Panther last week.

Geronimo and Ballengeon had split their battle at one round each last week when the Chief put a towel around his opponents neck and twisted him into submission, while the referee was out of the ring. Tonight's match should see a champion crowned if the wrestlers can keep it clean long enough for one to win fair and square.

Harrisonburg Cagers Finest In Catahoula

HARRISONBURG, La. (Special) — Championships in both senior divisions of the Catahoula Parish Basketball Tournament went to Harrisonburg High School last night, and Harrisonburg also claimed titles in two divisions for underclassmen.

Harrisonburg and Block of Jonesville fought it out in the featured boys and girls' finals, the host quintet winning, 69-62, and the home standing girls notching a 44-31 victory.

Cousins Truman Boothe and Shelby Boothe led the Harrisonburg quint with 24 and 18 points respectively, but Block's Billy Brook was the game's high scorer with 31.

Helen Randall, with 24 points, and Nancy Humble, with 17, led Harrisonburg in the girls' final, while Elva McMillin was Block's leading pointmaker with 15.

Albert Karuse, Sicily Island, won the boys' free - throw contest with a perfect score of 20-for-20. Helen Randall, Harrisonburg, and Dijuana Lewis, Enterprise, tied in the girls' class with 17-for-20 and will receive duplicate awards. Each school in the parish entered a free throw contender.

Final results in the other sections of the tournament were:

"B" girls — Harrisonburg 30, Sicily Island 17.

"B" boys — Sicily Island 62, Block 41.

Junior girls — Block 30, Central of Larto 17.

Junior boys — Harrisonburg 28, Central 16.

Elementary girls — Enterprise 26, Manifest 10.

Elementary boys — Sicily Island 35, Block 32.

JOHN BRIDGERS

Baylor's Coach Clinic Feature For Northeast

John Bridgers, athletic director and head football coach at Baylor University, will be a featured lecturer at the Northeast Louisiana State College Clinic for high school coaches here March 18, it was announced yesterday by Jack Rowan, Northeast's athletic director.

Bridgers will speak on the offensive game of football, a part he is well qualified to talk about. In 1960 Baylor ranked fifth nationally in passing, and led the Southwest Conference in passing, total offense, and pass defense.

In two years as Baylor coach, Bridgers guided the Bears to second place in the conference last year with an 8-2 over - all record and a bowl appearance.

Bridgers exploits the spread - T attack that is a trend back to the wide-open entertaining type of offense that for years was a trademark of Southwest Conference football.

Before taking the reins at Baylor, Bridgers coached defensive tackles and guards for the Baltimore Colts, including such standouts as Gino Marchetti and "Big Daddy" Lipscomb.

High school coaches from throughout Louisiana are being invited to participate in the clinic, Rowan said.

Gents Down La. Tech By 58-45 Score

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Centenary managed to stave off a second-half rally by Louisiana Tech here last night to defeat the cold - shooting Bulldogs, 58-45.

Tech hit only 27 per cent from the field on 17 of 61, and connected on only 6 of 16 free throws in the final half. Centenary took the lead midway of the first period and held a comfortable margin most of the contest.

Dale Van Bibber led Centenary with 18 points, mainly on hook shots. Jackie Crawford scored 12 for the Gents. Ron Futrell hit 15 points and Joe Daigle 10 for Tech.

Centenary poured in eight straight points midway in the first half to jump its margin to 20-10, led at halftime 27-21.

The Gents maintained a 10 point spread through most of the final half until a quick rally by Tech cut the margin to seven points late in the period. However, the Gents recovered with quick baskets in the final two minutes to extend their lead.

Prairie View Taps Grambling

PRAIRIE VIEW, Tex. (AP) — Prairie View A&M won its 19th straight basketball game with a 100-73 decision over Grambling College Saturday night.

Zelmo Beaty had 30 points for Prairie View to lead the scorers.

Eiland, Mouser, Relay Team First

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (Special) — Northeast Louisiana State College, competing without last years winner and record holder in the pole vault, John Pennell, placed third in the Coliseum Relays here yesterday.

Coach Bob Groseclose's Indians scored 21 points to 23½ for Alabama's Crimson Tide and 22 for Auburn. Pennel, out of action for Northeast's cinder men for the time being with an injury, set a record last year in the vault with 14 ft. 2 inches, well over the winning margin here yesterday.

Northeast, defending champion in the Gulf States Conference track and field picture, got a good look at its possibilities for the coming season at yesterday's meet, with untiring Buddy Eiland notching two first place victories, Jim Mouser taking the half mile and the Tribe mile relay breaking the tape in front of all opposition.

Eiland won the mile run in 4:25.4 and the two mile in 9:40.0, and joined Corky Frost of Auburn as the meet's only double winner. Mouser stepped off the half mile in a time of 2:01.5 to notch his first place. The Indian mile relay, composed of Jim Mouser, Jim Glass (freshman), John Baker (freshman) and Randall Walker (sophomore) covered the distance in 3:31.3 to place first.

Eiland outdistanced Gordon Graham of Alabama and Jim Moorhead of Clemson in the two mile run and Graham and Ronald Smith of Alabama in the mile run. Mouser beat out Bill Davis of Florida State and Jim Dozier of Auburn of the top finishers in the half-mile.

The Indians got top performances from other track and field men as Jack Williams placed fourth in the mile run with a time of 4:30, and fifth in the two mile run. Hoy Rogers ended fifth in the shot put.

Northeast placed ahead of top notch runners from Clemson, Florida State, Georgia Tech, Georgia State, Georgia, Howard College, LSU, Mississippi State, Tennessee, Troy State, and Vanderbilt.

In the preliminaries of the 60-yard dash, Gary Martin of Alabama and Donnie Gilbert of Clemson equalled the record of 6.3 seconds set last year by Northeast's Don and Dave Styron.

Coach Bob Grosclose carried eleven team members to the meet, four of which were freshmen, and missed making it two Coliseum Relay championships in a row by the narrow margin of 2½ points.

GRAB SEC LEAD

Maroons Master Tigers, 77 To 61

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi State put on steam in the second half and raced to an easy 77-61 victory over Louisiana State and took over undisputed possession of first place in the Southeastern Conference basketball race Saturday night.

Earlier in the night, Kentucky stopped Florida 89-67. Florida and Mississippi State were tied for the lead with 5-0 marks going into Saturday night's games.

W. D. Stroud, a red-haired sophomore guard from Forrest, scored 21 points to take top scoring honors. It was the third consecutive game in which Stroud paced the Maroons.

The 6 foot guard connected on nine of 15 shots from the field and made all three free throws good.

After the score was tied three times in the first three and one-half minutes, the Maroons pulled ahead 12-11 on a field goal by guard Jack Berkshire and led the rest of the way.

The Maroons took a 42-36 advantage into halftime as LSU's classy junior George Nattin paced his team's attempts to overtake Mississippi State.

The Tigers hit a cold streak in the start of the second half. They went 10 minutes and 50 seconds before Nattin scored their first field goal.

Mississippi State, switching from a fast break to a slow, deliberate style of play, made good on 27 of 56 shots from the floor for a .482 mark. In the first half, they hit .562 per cent of their shots. LSU's field goal mark was .367.

All five of Mississippi State's starters scored in double figures. Jerry Graves, the Maroons' 6-6 senior center and second-ranking scorer in the SEC, scored 15 point Sophomore Leland Mitchell also had 15, while Berkshire scored 13 and forward Joe Gold 11.

Nattin led LSU with 20 points, 12 of them in the first half. Ellis Cooper scored 12 for the Tigers.

The victory was Mississippi State's 14th against three defeats for the entire season. LSU now is 3-3 in SEC action and has a 8-9 overall mark.

Fort Necessity Boys, Ogden Girls Triumph

BASKIN, La. (Special) — Fort Necessity flashed past Winnsboro, 67-57, to win the boys crown in the Franklin Parish tournament last night, and Ogden's girls came from behind to nip Gilbert, 61-58 to take their division championship.

Jurell Thames tallied 22 points to lead the champion boys and Burt Boyle contributed 21 to the Winnsboro attack.

In the girls' title game, which saw Ogden overcome a first quarter 16-13 setback, Linda Hatton notched 34 markers for the winners and Helen Sewell got 37 for Gilbert.

In the boys semifinals Winnsboro downed Central, 62-58, and Fort Necessity stopped Baskin by [illegible]. Henry led Winnsboro with 16 points, Stegall collected 16 for Central, Hoyete Erwin popped in 22 for Fort and Harry Mock managed 27 for Baskin's losers.

In girls' semifinal action Ogden eook Crowville, 53-52 in a thriller and Gilbert barely outshot Winnsboro, 50-49. Linda Hatton scored 28 points for Ogden, Shirley Pierce got 40 for Crowville, Sewell hit 27 in the Gilbert attack, and Wiltshire popped in 21 for Winnsboro.

First and second place trophies were awarded after the final games.

Spearsville In Junction City Tourney Win

JUNCTION CITY, Ark. (Special) — Spearsville took a big step last night in upending Athens, 78-58 to win first place in the Dual State tourney here last night.

Everett paced the winners with 22 points and mitchell hit 18 for the losers.

Norphlet, Ark. won the girls bracket with a 62-26 win over Spearsville. Sanders got 26 points for the winners and Mitcham tallied 19 for the losers.

Bernice won consolation honors in the boys' bracket with a 54 - 46 decision over Provincal. Lazenby led Bernice with 17 markers and O'Bannon hit 14 for Provincal. Winnfield outscored Taylor, Ark. 48-42 to take the girls' consolation trophy. Maxey and Love each had 17 points for the winners and Johnson led Taylor on 18 points.

Barnes Reelected

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—George Barnes of Chicago was reelected president of the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association.

Also named at the final meeting of the convention were: Edward Turville of St. Petersburg, Fla., first vice president; James M Dickel of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., second vice president; Harold Lebair of New York, treasurer and David Freed of Salt Lake City, secretary.

The convention voted to hold its 1962 meeting in Southern California at a site to be designated later.

BY BOB BACKUS

Long Toss Nears Mark In Millrose

NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Backus got off a toss of 64 feet in the 35-pound weight throw Saturday in the Millrose - Metropolitan AAU meet and promptly announced he was ready to break the 70-foot mark.

Only Hal Connolly has gotten past 70 feet in the event. He smashed the barrier with a heave of 71-2½ in the National AAU Championships last year, and Backus has been trying to match it since.

"I feel I'm ready to get over 70 feet," said Backus. "There's no reason why I shouldn't. I had a real good throw in Boston a couple of weeks ago that I thought would go over 70 feet, but it missed. I'll get it soon.

"I'm building up to the National AAU meet in two weeks. That's where Connolly and I really go at each other. I'm aiming for a throw of about 72 feet."

When Connolly made his record last year, Backus was second with a 63-2¾ effort.

"Of course," mused Backus, "even if I do get my 72-footer, beating Connolly is another matter. I think he's capable of hitting around 74 feet." Connolly is the 1956 Olympic hammer throw champ who also competes in the weight throw.

"But if he has one slip I'll beat him. You never know, though. Today I felt real good and I only made 64 feet. The one who is 'up' for the AAU meet will in the weight."

The 34-year-old New York Athletic Club whale made two 64-footers and fouled on his other four tries. Stu Thomason, a clubmate at the New York A.C., also tossed the hardware 64 feet, but his second best throw was 63-2½.

That doesn't wind up the competition. Nine hardy brutes trudged through the snowstorm to compete. The distances will count toward both the Millrose and Metropolitan AAU titles.

The shot put was called off because the officials were snowbound. The snow also caused the Met AAU pole vault and broad jump, scheduled for New York University's Ohio Field, to be put off. Everything was scheduled to be finished up next Saturday.

Stan Doten of Harvard is in third place in the weights with a 60-10½ throw, followed by Ed Bailey of Harvard with a 58-7½ throw.

30 FOR KERWIN

Greenies Swamp Ole Miss, 90-67

UNIVERSITY, Miss. (AP)—Tulane jumped to an early lead Saturday night and raced to a 90-67 Southeastern Conference victory over Mississippi.

Ole Miss suffered its first home loss of the season and second in the last two, both inflicted by the Greenies. Tulane evened its SEC record at 3-3, while Ole Miss dropped to 2-4.

Paced by big Jack Ardon, Tulane jumped to an early 16-6 lead. They built it up steadily to 49-31 at the end of the half. Ardon tallied 17 of his 23 points in the first half.

Tulane's big man again was Jim Kerwin, the Long Branch, N. J., sophomore who scored 45 points to break the school record on Wednesday. Kerwin scored 30 Saturday night, tops for both teams.

Tulane had a big edge in shooting. The Greenies made 39 of 82 shots from the floor for 47.6 per cent compared with 24 of 82 for Mississippi, or only 29.3 per cent. In the second half, Mississippi made only 13 of 53 shots.

During the first half, all-SEC forward Jack Waters, kept the Rebels in the game. He wound up with 21 points. Teammate Bobby McCarley scored 17. Tulane's Wayne Pearl scored 14.

Overall, Tulane now has an 8-8 record, while Ole Miss is 7-9.

Boys — Young, Jefferson; McGuffee, Logtown; Gamors, Ruston; Alexander and Aulds, West Monroe.

Reds Increase Baseball Roster To 25 Players

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds Saturday increased their number of signed players for 1961 to 25 with receipt of contracts from pitcher Jim Brosnan and first baseman Gordon Coleman.

The 31-year-old Brosnan turned in a fine job as a reliever in 1960 after failing in some early season starting assignments. He finished with a 7-2 record and a 2.36 earned run average. As a reliever he had a 1.70 earned run mark and at one stretch had a string of 29 1-3 innings without allowing an earned run.

Ouachita Tigers Defeat Wildcats

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (AP) — Ouachita College withstood a late rally by Louisiana College and took a 74-67 victory Saturday night.

Ouachita led by 10 points with 10 minutes to play, then Louisiana College surged and came within one point at 68-67.

Jim Perry hit two free throws for Ouachita, Wayne Davenport got two more and James Carney hit a field goal to put Ouachita out of reach.

Perry led Ouachita with 27 points. Truett Esser led Louisiana College with 19.

WRECKAGE OF 1960

Freed To Lead Cup Team In Salvage Attempt

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—U.S tennis fathers gave David Freed another chance as Davis Cup captain Saturday and took new steps toward opening up competition to the pros.

Freed, 51-year-old Salt Lake City financier, was chosen by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association to try to salvage the wreckage of the 1960 campaign which was marked by defeat and controversy.

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast," Freed said. "I debated a long time whether to accept. I welcome the chance to try to win back the Cup."

Last year the Americans were beaten in the inter-zone finals at Perth, Australia, by Italy — the first time in more than 20 years they had failed to gain the challenge round—and later the team was criticized for so-called poor sportsmanship.

Two members of that team—Chuck McKinley, 19, of St. Louis and Dennis Ralston, 18, of Bakersfield, Calif. — are under a year's probation for their antics. McKinley, who hurled a racket into the stands at Perth, is under suspension until May 1, 1961.

Yet they are the two key members in Uncle Sam's plans for recovery of lost prestige now that their older teammates, Barry MacKay and Earl (Butch) Buchholz, have turned professional.

McKinley and Ralston, we have the basis of a fine team—either one could turn into a Bobby Riggs or a Jack Kramer overnight," Freed said. "And in Tut Bartzen, we have the best clay courts player in the world."

Bernard (Tut) Bartzen, 33, of Dallas, served as a sort of co-captain to Freed last year but will not have the same capacity in the 1961 setup.

"Bartzen asked to be relieved of this responsibility," said George Barnes of Chicago, president of the USLTA. "He wants to concentrate on his playing." Bartzen sat at courtside and helped Freed formulate strategy in the 1960 venture. This year Freed will do it alone.

The captain disclosed a commitment that in case both the United States and Italy win their respective zones that the inter-zone final would be played in Italy, probably Rome, instead of the United States.

"This is a promise we made because of the many times Italy has played in this country," Freed said. "If another European country should win, we are not so obligated." Freed added that the United States also favored playing the Eastern Zone winner in an Eastern city—Manila, if the Philippines win; Tokyo or some Indian city, if the Japanese or Indians come through.

The USLTA, at the final meeting of its annual convention, also approved the open tennis plan submitted by Perry Jones of Los Angles.

Under the plan the United States will recommend to the International Lawn Tennis Federation, which meets in Stockholm in July, that each country may sanction an open tournament at its own discretion.

Professionals and amateurs would be permitted to play together where approved. Countries opposing open tennis could forbid their players to compete.

Also it was decided that Jones' committee should draw up within the next 90 days the framework of an open tournament plan to be submitted to the USLTA.

"Our committee will study every phase of the problem, discuss the matter with Jack Kramer and his pros and try to come up with a workable plan," Jones said. "Kramer is a friend of mine—I growed him up. I think we can get a formula."

The convention voted down many of the proposals of the research and planning committee headed by Ralph Westcott of Chicago, among these were the elimination of the word "amateur," a substitute for the term "love" (meaning "nothing"), Shortened matches and revised age limits.

Four changes were made in the mens' singles rankings, none involving the top 20 players. John Powless of Flora, Ill., was raised from No. 28 to No. 23. William Hoogs Jr. of Berkley, Calif., was lifted from 44th to 39th; Ray Senkowski of Hamtramck, Mich., from 40th to 31st; and Rudy Hernando of Modesto, Calif., was dropped from 25th to 32nd.

The convention also revised, effected Jan. 1, 1962, junior boys and girls age limits. The age limits will be 18, 16, 14 and 12 years, instead of 18, 15, 13 and 11.

MASON, HAWKINS, TARKENTON

Southerners Set For Viking Action

ST. PAUL, Minneapolis (AP) —The Minnesota Vikings, already committed to a youth movement in their inaugural year, Saturday announced the signing of their top three choices in the collegiate draft — Southerners Tommy Mason, Rip Hawkins and Francis Tarkenton.

Mason, the Tulane speedster described by Viking scout Joe Thomas "another Hugh McElhenny," was given a three-year contract. The others signed a conventional National Football League contract.

General Manager Bert Rose of the Vikings called the three "among the finest collegiate performers in the nation last fall" and said they would form part of the nucleus of the team. Minnesota will ride with young talent primarily, both from the college ranks and among its pro draftees.

Mason is expected to be No. 1 running back and Tarkenton, the slick - passing quarterback from Georgia, may be the No. 2 passer behind George Shaw.

Hawkins, center and linebacker at North Carolina, will play linebacker for Minnesota. Mason was the club's top draft choice, Hawkins No. 2 and Tarkenton, voted the outstanding player of the post-season Hula Bowl in Honolulu, was No. 3.

The Vikings had strong competition from the American Football League and the Canadian leagues in bidding for the three Southern stars.

"I picked the Vikings because of the league's prestive and the challenge of playing against the best football players in the country," Mason said. "Of course," he added, "I also received a pretty good contract."

Deprived of high national claim because of his team's losing record, Mason nonetheless was one of the most coveted players in the nation among the pro ivory hunters. He led the Southeastern Conference in scoring with 78 points and in rushing with 663 yards in 120 carries.

If Mason actually is another McElhenny, the young Vikings will be a team of rare distinction this season. They already have rights to the original article, McElhenny, obtained from San Francisco in the NFL draft last week.

Hawkins, a 228-pounder, won All-Atlantic Coast honors last season for the second straight year.

Tarkenton hit 108 passes in 185 attempts for a young Georgia team in 1960 after leading the Bulldogs to an Orange Bowl victory over Missouri the previous year.

Benham To Go As Pilot For U.S. Bob Sled

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—Stan Benham of Lake Placid, former Olympic bobsledder, won the right Saturday to pilot the four-man U. S. team in the World Bobsled Championships.

Benham grabbed the driver's seat on the No. 1 team by finishing second in the National AAU four-man championship on the Mt. Van Hoevenberg run.

Larry McKillip, who won Saturday's event, will drive the second U. S. team and Fred Fortune of Lake Placid heads the alternate team.

McKillip had a total time of 4 minutes, 42.08 seconds for four runs down the snow slowed chute.

Benham, second in 4:43.10, had scored 9 points, 5 for first in last week's Adirondack AAU and four for Saturday, to win the berth.

The teams were selected on the basis of the two races.

The two-man races for the world championships, which open here next week, will be chosen after the National AAU two-man race Sunday.

Benham had Saturday's fastest single heat, 1:09.79, but nearly a second short of the four-man record of 1:08.88 he set on the run in 1956.

One accident marred Saturday's races. James Dupree of Saranac Lake suffered a bruised right arm when his sled, piloted by Forest Morgan of Saranac Lake, brushed the lip in coming out the zag curve. Dupree was treated at the scene.

Bulldogs Add Two Powers To Schedule

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech will play a nine - game grid schedule next fall and with the addition of two small-college powerhouses, it will be a slate of the most formidable foes the Bulldogs have ever faced.

Newcomers on the Bulldog schedule are Tennessee Tech, which compiled an 8-2 record last fall and played in the Tangerine Bowl, and Arlington State, the mushrooming Texas college that also had an 8-2 record in 1960.

Tech Athletic Director Joe Aillet described Tech's schedule as one in which the Bulldogs "could easily lose every game."

Two other intersectional opponents for Tech are Arkansas State, which handed Tech one of its two defeats in 1960, and Mississippi Southern.

Tech has five Gulf States conference games. The GSC will be stronger than ever before in 1960 with every club rated as having a chance for the title.

Missing from the Tech schedule will be Lamar Tech, McMurry State and Pensacola Navy. Although no homecoming game has been designated, it will probably be the Mississippi Southern tilt on Nov. 11.

The 1961 Louisiana Tech schedule:
Sept. 23—Arkansas State at Ruston.
Sept. 30—McNeese State at Lake Charles.
Oct. 7—U. of Southwestern at Ruston.
Oct. 14—Arlington State at Arlington, Tex.
Oct. 21—Northwestern State at Shreveport.
Oct. 28—Tennessee Tech at Cookeville, Tenn.
Nov. 4—Southeastern at Hammond.
Nov. 11—Miss. Southern at Ruston.
Nov. 18—Northeast State at Ruston.

Patriots Obtain Illini's Lavery

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Patriots Saturday announced the signing of Larry Lavery, a 205-pound Illinois lackle, who had been a draft choice of the National Football League champion Philadelphia Eagles.

The American League club said the 6-foot-2 Lavery will be moved to defensive end by the Patriots. He is a native of Decatur, Ill.

30 FOR KERWIN

Greenies Swamp Ole Miss, 90-67

UNIVERSITY, Miss. (AP)—Tulane jumped to an early lead Saturday night and raced to a 90-67 Southeastern Conference victory over Mississippi.

Ole Miss suffered its first home loss of the season and second in the last two, both inflicted by the Greenies. Tulane evened its SEC record at 3-3, while Ole Miss dropped to 2-4.

Paced by big Jack Ardon, Tulane jumped to an early 16-6 lead. They built it up steadily to 49-31 at the end of the half. Ardon tallied 17 of his 23 points in the first half.

Tulane's big man again was Jim Kerwin, the Long Branch, N. J., sophomore who scored 45 points to break the school record on Wednesday. Kerwin scored 30 Saturday night, tops for both teams.

Tulane had a big edge in shooting. The Greenies made 39 of 82 shots from the floor for 47.6 per cent compared with 24 of 82 for Mississippi, or only 29.3 per cent. In the second half, Mississippi made only 13 of 53 shots.

During the first half, all-SEC forward Jack Waters, kept the Rebels in the game. He wound up with 21 points. Teammate Bobby McCarley scored 17. Tulane's Wayne Pearl scored 14.

Overall, Tulane now has an 8-3 record, while Ole Miss is 7-9.

Holt Dies

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — James (Red) Holt, 66, former first baseman for the New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics, died at his home here Thursday.

West Monroe Boys, Swartz Girls Winners

The West Monroe Junior High boys and the Swartz girls won championships at the annual West Monroe Junior High Basketball Tournament last night. The Colonels beat Logtown, 36-26, after Swartz stopped Lee of Monroe, 39-16, in the title finals.

Consolation winners were the Jefferson girls of Monroe, 12-4 victors over West Monroe, and the Ruston boys who shaded Jefferson, 27-23.

Semi-final results earlier in the day were:

Girls — Jefferson 20, Ouachita 18 (two overtimes); Swartz 24, Bastrop 21.

Boys — Jefferson 29, Lee 7; Logtown 31, Ouachita 27.

The all - tournament selections:

Girls — Campbell, Ouachita; Guinn and Gates, Swartz; Haddad, Lee; Seligman, Bastrop; and Purdy, Jefferson.

Boys — Young, Jefferson; McGuffee, Logtown; Gamors, Ruston; Alexander and Aulds, West Monroe.

Bulldogs Add Two Powers To Schedule

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech will play a nine - game grid schedule next fall and with the addition of two small-college powerhouses, it will be a slate of the most formidable foes the Bulldogs have ever faced.

Newcomers on the Bulldog schedule are Tennessee Tech, which compiled an 8-2 record last fall and played in the Tangerine Bowl, and Arlington State, the mushrooming Texas college that also had an 8-2 record in 1960.

Tech Athletic Director Joe Aillet described Tech's schedule as one in which the Bulldogs "could easily lose every game."

Two other intersectional opponents for Tech are Arkansas State, which handed Tech one of its two defeats in 1960, and Mississippi Southern.

Tech has five Gulf States conference games. The GSC will be stronger than ever before in 1960 with every club rated as having a chance for the title.

Missing from the Tech schedule will be Lamar Tech, McMurry State and Pensacola Navy. Although no homecoming game has been designated, it will probably be the Mississippi Southern tilt on Nov. 11.

The 1961 Louisiana Tech schedule:
Sept. 23—Arkansas State at Ruston.
Sept. 30—McNeese State at Lake Charles.
Oct. 7—U. of Southerwestern at Ruston.
Oct. 14—Arlington State at Arlington, Tex.
Oct. 21—Northwestern State at Shreveport.
Oct. 28—Tennessee Tech at Cookesville, Tenn.
Nov. 4—Southeastern at Hammond.
Nov. 11—Miss. Southern at Ruston.
Nov. 18—Northeast State at Ruston.

Reds Increase Baseball Roster To 25 Players

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds Saturday increased their number of signed players for 1961 to 25 with receipt of contracts from pitcher Jim Brosnan and first baseman Gordon Coleman.

The 31-year-old Brosnan turned in a fine job as a reliever in 1960 after failing in some early season starting assignments. He finished with a 7-2 record and a 2.36 earned run average. As a reliever he had a 1.70 earned run mark and at one stretch had a string of 29 1-3 innings without allowing an earned run.

Ouachita Tigers Defeat Wildcats

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (AP) — Ouachita College withstood a late rally by Louisiana College and took a 74-67 victory Saturday night.

Ouachita led by 19 points with 10 minutes to play, then Louisiana College surged and came within one point at 68-67.

Jim Perry hit two free throws for Ouachita, Wayne Davenport got two more and James Carney hit a field goal to put Ouachita out of reach.

Perry led Ouachita with 27 points. Truett Bazer led Louisiana College with 19.

Patriots Obtain Illini's Lavery

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Patriots Saturday announced the signing of Larry Lavery, a 236-pound Illinois tackle, who had been a draft choice of the National Football League champion Philadelphia Eagles.

The American League club said the 6-foot-3 Lavery will be moved to defensive end by the Patriots. He is a native of Decatur, Ill.

WRECKAGE OF 1960

Freed To Lead Cup Team In Salvage Attempt

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—U.S tennis fathers gave David Freed another chance as Davis Cup captain Saturday and took new steps toward opening up competition to the pros.

Freed, 51-year-old Salt Lake City financier, was chosen by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association to try to salvage the wreckage of the 1960 campaign which was marked by defeat and controversy.

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast," Freed said. "I debated a long time whether to accept. I welcome the chance to try to win back the Cup."

Last year the Americans were beaten in the inter-zone finals at Perth, Australia, by Italy — the first time in more than 20 years they had failed to gain the challenge round—and later the team was criticized for so-called poor sportsmanship.

Two members of that team—Chuck McKinley, 19, of St. Louis and Dennis Ralston, 18, of Bakersfield, Calif. — are under a year's probation for their antics. McKinley, who hurled a racket into the stands at Perth, is under suspension until May 1, 1961.

Yet they are the two key members in Uncle Sam's plans for recovery of lost prestige now that their older teammates, Barry MacKay and Earl (Butch) Buchholz, have turned professional.

McKinley and Ralston, we have the basis of a fine team—either one could turn into a Bobby Riggs or a Jack Kramer overnight," Freed said. "And in Tut Bartzen, we have the best clay courts player in the world."

Bernard (Tut) Bartzen, 33, of Dallas, served as a sort of co-captain to Freed last year but will not have the same capacity in the 1961 setup.

"Bartzen asked to be relieved of this responsibility," said George Barnes of Chicago, president of the USLTA. "He wants to concentrate on his playing." Bartzen sat at courtside and helped Freed formulate strategy in the 1960 venture. This year Freed will do it alone.

The captain disclosed a commitment that in case both the United States and Italy win their respective zones that the inter-zone final would be played in Italy, probably Rome, instead of the United States.

"This is a promise we made because of the many times Italy has played in this country," Freed said. "If another European country should win, we are not so obligated." Freed added that the United States also favored playing the Eastern Zone winner in an Eastern city—Manila, if the Philippines win; Tokyo or some Indian city, if the Japanese or Indians come through.

The USLTA, at the final meeting of its annual convention, also approved the open tennis plan submitted by Perry Jones of Los Angles.

Under the plan the United States will recommend to the International Lawn Tennis Federation, which meets in Stockholm in July, that each country may sanction an open tournament at its own discretion.

Professionals and amateurs would be permitted to play together where approved. Countries opposing open tennis could forbid their players to compete.

Also it was decided that Jones' committee should draw up within the next 90 days the framework of an open tournament plan to be submitted to the USLTA.

"Our committee will study every phase of the problem, discuss the matter with Jack Kramer and his pros and try to come up with a workable plan," Jones said. "Kramer is a friend of mine—I growed him up. I think we can get a formula."

The convention voted down many of the proposals of the research and planning committee headed by Ralph Westcott of Chicago, among these were the elimination of the word "amateur," a substitute for the term "love" (meaning "nothing"), Shortened matches and revised age limits.

Four changes were made in the mens' singles rankings, none involving the top 20 players. John Powless of Flora, Ill., was raised from No. 23 to No. 25. William Hoogs Jr. of Berkley, Calif., was lifted from 44th to 29th: Ray Senkowski of Hamtramck, Mich., from 40th to 31st; and Rudy Hernando of Modesto, Calif., was dropped from 25th to 32nd.

The convention also revised, effected Jan. 1, 1962, junior boys and girls age limits. The age limits will be 18, 16, 14 and 12 years, instead of 18, 15, 13 and 11.

MASON, HAWKINS, TARKENTON

Southerners Set For Viking Action

ST. PAUL, Minneapolis (AP) —The Minnesota Vikings, already committed to a youth movement in their inaugural year, Saturday announced the signing of their top three choices in the collegiate draft — Southerners Tommy Mason, Rip Hawkins and Francis Tarkenton.

Mason, the Tulane speedster described by Viking scout Joe Thomas "another Hugh McElhenny," was given a three-year contract. The others signed a conventional National Football League contract.

General Manager Bert Rose of the Vikings called the three "among the finest collegiate performers in the nation last fall" and said they would form part of the nucleus of the team. Minnesota will ride with young talent primarily, both from the college ranks and among its pro draftees.

Mason is expected to be No. 1 running back and Tarkenton, the slick - passing quarterback from Georgia, may be the No. 2 passer behind George Shaw.

Hawkins, center and linebacker at North Carolina, will play linebacker for Minnesota. Mason was the club's top draft choice, Hawkins No. 2 and Tarkenton, voted the outstanding player of the post-season Hula Bowl in Honolulu, was No. 3.

The Vikings had strong competition from the American Football League and the Canadian leagues in bidding for the three Southern stars.

"I picked the Vikings because of the league's prestive and the challenge of playing against the best football players in the country," Mason said. "Of course," he added, "I also received a pretty good contract."

Deprived of high national claim because of his team's losing record, Mason nonetheless was one of the most coveted players in the nation among the pro ivory hunters. He led the Southeastern Conference in scoring with 78 points and in rushing with 663 yards in 120 carries.

If Mason actually is another McElhenny, the young Vikings will be a team of rare distinction this season. They already have rights to the original article, McElhenny, obtained from San Francisco in the NFL draft last week.

Hawkins, a 228-pounder, won All-Atlantic Coast honors last season for the second straight year.

Tarkenton hit 108 passes in 185 attempts for a young Georgia team in 1960 after leading the Bulldogs to an Orange Bowl victory over Missouri the previous year.

Benham To Go As Pilot For U.S. Bob Sled

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—Stan Benham of Lake Placid, former Olympic bobsledder, won the right Saturday to pilot the four-man U. S. team in the World Bobsled Championships.

Benham grabbed the driver's seat on the No. 1 team by finishing second in the National AAU four-man championship on the Mt. Van Hoevenberg run.

Larry McKillip, who won Saturday's event, will drive the second U. S. team and Fred Fortune of Lake Placid heads the alternate team.

McKillip had a total time of 4 minutes, 42.08 seconds for four runs down the snow slowed chute.

Benham, second in 4:43.10, had scored 9 points, 5 for first in last week's Adirondack AAU and four for Saturday, to win the berth.

The teams were selected on the basis of the two races.

The two-man races for the world championships, which open here next week, will be chosen after the National AAU two-man race Sunday.

Benham had Saturday's fastest single heat, 1:09.79, but nearly a second short of the four-man record of 1:08.88 he set on the run in 1956.

One accident marred Saturday's races. James Dupree of Saranac Lake suffered a bruised right arm when his sled, piloted by Forest Morgan of Saranac Lake, brushed the lip in coming out the zag curve. Dupree was treated at the scene.

NOBODY GETTING RICH

Grid Bowls Doing Great Financially

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With the help of television, post-season football has developed into a multi-million-dollar enterprise, but nobody is getting rich on it.

Most of the money—and there was more than $6 million from college and pro attractions after the last campaign—is funneled to the conferences, universities and players themselves.

Charities profit from some of the games. Some of the attractions are civic affairs. Proceeds from others are used to promote bigger and more lucrative shows. It's a mad merry-go-round.

For example, a dozen of the better college bowl games lured close to 600,000 customers, who paid nearly 3½ million in gate receipts. To this was added around $1,250,000 in television and radio monies.

The National and American football leagues vied for post-season attention with playoff title games and an assortment of special bowls which brought in some 200,000 additional customers, another million at the gate and a half-million from TV sponsors.

The National League added to its solvency, the new American League reduced the amount of its first year's red ink and players in both circuits lined their pockets with some overtime cash.

The daddy of all bowl games continues to be the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif., where 99,281 persons saw Washington beat Minnesota on Jan. 2. Gate receipts were placed at $1,098,000 and the television figure at $999,000. Both are round figures, and estimated.

Rose Bowl sponsors are reluctant to announce the exact gate figures while the National Broadcasting Company, which put the game on the nation's screens, was unable to disclose the exact TV figure.

However, the Rose Bowl game is reported to be the richest plum in football—pro or college—and priced to sponsors at around $900,000.

The proceeds of the game are distributed among members of the rival conferences—in this case, the Big Ten and the Big Five of the Pacific Coast. This year, each dragged down $365,773.

The Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, which attracted 82,250 fans, carved up a melon placed unofficially at $650,000. It may have been more or slightly less. At any rate, each of the competing schools (Mississippi and Rice) got $160,000. Of this, they had to share some with their conferences.

The Sugar Bowl promoters announced that a small portion of the proceeds went for retirement of bonds used to improve stadium facilities. Officials of the organization are not paid.

At Dallas, Cotton Bowl attendance was placed at 70,000 and the receipts at $900,000, with $125,000 added from the sale of TV. Arkansas and Duke, the competing teams, each got $165,000 of which about half went to other members of their conferences.

The Orange Bowl at Miami produced a turnout of 71,219, a net gate of $326,226 and TV-radio receipts of $175,000. Missouri and Navy, this year's rivals, each received $180,000. Navy, an independent, got to keep the full purse. Missouri had to share with other members of the Big Eight Conference.

Other bowls operated under similar arrangements. Florida and Baylor each got $100,000 for playing in the Gator Bowl; Florida had to turn over $25,000 to the Southeastern Conference, Baylor $40,000 to the Southwest.

Penn State and Oregon each collected $80,000 from the Liberty Bowl. The Bluebonnet Bowl netted Texas and Alabama $160,000 each. Texas kept more than $80,000, Alabama kept $80,000. New Mexico State and Utah State received $30,000 from the Sun Bowl and each had to give up about 10 per cent to the other schools of its conference.

The East-West shrine game in San Francisco, one of the big post-season fixtures, is strictly a charity affair. It nets about $250,000 yearly for the shrine hospitals.

Games such as the Hula Bowl, Senior Bowl and North-South involve players ending college careers. These are similar to pro games in which players share in receipts.

The National Football League's playoff game between the Philadelphia Eagles and Green Bay Packers brought in $501,454, not counting $200,000 in television money. Each player on the Eagles' winning team collected $5,116.55, each losing player $3,165.14.

The American League championship drew 32,183 fans. The player breakdown was: $1,016.42 for the winning Houston Oilers and $718.61 for the losing Los Angeles Chargers.

LOUISIANA HANDICAP

Road House Nips Favored Wizard

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Road House, owned by Texans Roger Wilson and Earl Allen, spurted past the favored Grand Wizard in the stretch Saturday and hung up a narrow victory in the $12,450 Louisiana Handicap at the Fair Grounds.

The four year old son of Hasty Road finished a head in front of M. H. Van Berg's Estacion with Grand Wizard, owned by the Argonne Stable of New Orleans, drifting back to third.

The 13,907 fans installed Road House as second choice to Grand Wizard and the winner rewarded his backers by returning $6.60, $4.40 and $3.20. Estacion paid $6.20 and $4.40. Grand Wizard returned $4.

Jockey Sandino Hernandez had a tight rein on Road House in the early stages of the mile and one-sixteenth run as longshot First Money cut out the pace with Grand Wizard running second.

Coming around the final turn, Grand Wizard jumped into the lead but Road House moved past the favorite and was running strong at the finish line.

The winner's time was 1:48 and 2-5ths, better than three seconds off the track record despite a fast strip.

The triumph was the second in three starts this year for Road House, who picked up a check for $8,250 for his wealthy oilmen owners. Road House accounted for better than $30,000 in winnings last year.

Austin Venn ($21.20) won the first race and Stag Line ($10.60) took the second and the two combine for a $181 daily double.

The handle for the 10-race card was $680,662.

19 Newellton Athletes Get Grid Letters

NEWELLTON, La. (Special) — Over 100 football fans, young and old, turned out Thursday night for the Newellton High School football banquet to honor the 1960 team and hear Coach Jack Rowan of Northeast Louisiana State College as he spoke words of advice to the young men being honored.

Coaches Embry Pickett and Hardy Palmer presented awards on behalf of the Booster Club, and 19 members of the squad received letters.

Seven seniors were awarded plaques as follows: Buddy Tatum, Mike Cannon, Johnny Robinson, Sonny Kifer, Dale Crane, Joe McClain and James Hall. Keith Crane, a junior previously lettered was awarded a trophy.

First year lettermen were Tommy Fergerson, George Cooper, Danny Kifer, Allen Perritt, Jackie Carr, Johnny Roberts, Junior Bozemen, Charles Tullos, and Roy Sikes.

Other squadmen receiving squad patches were Lamar Barnette, W. L. Tullos, Paul Shaw, Danny Cannon, Roy Meyers, Lynn Beasley, Allen Bozemen, James Miles, and Edwin Preis, Jr. Coach Pickett praised the two managers, Charlie Colvin and Buddy Williams, as they were awarded manager's Jackets.

Joe McClain was presented the All-State Certificate on behalf of the Louisiana Sports Writers Association and he expressed his appreciation to his team mates for making it possible for him to receive such an honor. Joe, who is scheduled for Northeast State College next fall, stated that he felt it more of a team award than a personal award.

Booster Club publicity chairman Jack Poe recognized and said a few words about former All-State Fullback Buddy Emfinger, a member of the 1954 squad. Emfinger was also picked on the high school All-American team that year by the Wigwam Wisemen of America.

Coach Pickett expressed his appreciation to the members of the Booster Club for their cooperation during the year and was especially grateful to the parents for their support. "I would especially like to thank you parents for giving me the opportunity to coach your boys", stated Pickett. "And it was the first year since I've been coaching that I didn't have to take boys home in the evenings after practice."

Tribe To Face Tigers In First Baseball Tilt

Baseball season is just around the corner at Northeast Louisiana State College with a total of 30 games and 15 playing dates to be handled by the Indian nine.

Head baseball coach, George Luffey, reports that eight regulars are gone from the Northeast squad. The Tribe ran fourth in the Gulf States Conference race last season.

Two experienced pitchers, Jay Gross, Pioneer and Jerry Rouse, Gulfport, Miss. have graduated along with Ralph Ward, a fine catcher from Monroe. Others lost are Jerry Collins, Jena; Ronnie Sims and Louis Kincaid, Monroe; John O'Conner, Rayville and Bryan Blevins, Zwolle, Tex.

Returning lettermen are George Bryant, Eddie McGowen, Phil Petras and Mickey Yerger, all Monroe boys; Jerry Godwin, Shreveport; Bobby Lockwood, Marion and Levy Redden, Farmerville.

Nine newcomers will be on hand to help the returning players, with more expected after the basketball season and football spring practice.

The schedule:
March 18—LSU at Baton Rouge
March 29-31, April 1—Easter Tournament (Pittsburg U., Baylor, LSU, Mississippi State, Northwestern State, Northeast) at Monroe
April 5—*Southeastern at Monroe
April 8—*Louisiana Tech at Monroe

Nebraska Hires Marquette Aide

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — George L. Kelly, 33-year-old Notre Dame graduate and assistant football coach at Marquette since 1957, Saturday was named as assistant grid coach at Nebraska.

Kelly succeeds Russell Faulkinberry, who resigned to become head coach at Southwestern Louisiana Institute at Lafayette, La.

Marquette dropped intercollegiate football after last fall's season. Kelly comes to Nebraska under a one-year contract paying $8,000.

Duke Vs. Florida

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke and Florida football teams will meet Oct. 6, 1962, in the Gator Bowl Stadium at Jacksonville, in the first grid meeting between the two schools.

Demaret Listed As Senior Entry

DUNNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Jimmy Demaret, the only three-time winner of the Masters Tournament, has entered the 22nd annual PGA Seniors Championship, a $15,000 event for pros 50 years of age and older.

Tournament officials said Demaret's entry blank came in along with that of Dutch Harrison of San Francisco, Calif., another veteran of golf's tournament trail.

A field of more than 300 is expected to take part in the medal play event set for Feb. 14-19 over the PGA National Course in Dunnedin.

Yorky Takes Handicap Win In Big Race

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Calumet Farm's Yorky surged to the front in the stretch to take the 26th running of the $50,200 McLennan Handicap Saturday before the season's largest crowd of 22,238 at Hialeah.

The 4-year-old son of Bull Lea-Waymoke finished 2¾ lengths in front of Gustave Ring's Don Poggio with Cain Hoy Stable's All Hands third, 2¾ lengths farther back.

Teamed as an entry with Calumet's On-And-On, Yorky paid $6, $3.10 and $2.70 in winning $45,045 for his owners. Don Poggio paid $5.80 and $4.10 and All Hands paid $3.

With Johnny Sellers making up the big part of the 120 pounds he carried, Yorky carried the mile and one-eighth over a fast track in 1:48 as the field, away to a fine start, made the first 6 furlongs in a sizzling 1:09 3-5.

On-And-On, with Bill Hartack up, never was a factor and his stablemate galloped to his driving victory under leaden skies carrying a constant threat of rain. On-And-On finished last in the 14 horse field.

Yorky was fourth out of the gate, dropped back to fifth shortly after, and Sellers held him in that position through the half-mile mark.

April Skies had jumped to the front at the start and did fine until the stretch turn, where he began to tire and Yorky, Don Poggio and All Hands shot past him. Never Give In had run in second position until the stretch turn where he also began to fade.

Sellers said Yorky also was a very weary horse as the finish line neared.

"I had to get into him hard at the end because he was a mighty tired horse," Sellers said. "Going into the clubhouse turn we were carried out, and I had to ease up on him. We moved up steadily on the back side and were lucky enough to get through at the rail when the two lead horses went a bit wide."

Never Give In took the prize for trully courageous performance.

"He hit his head coming out of the gate," his jockey, Bob Usery said. "He probably was half dazed all through the race. I wanted to take the lead at the half-mile pole, but he couldn't do it."

Houston Selects Arizona For '62 Training Ground

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston baseball entry in the National League will train at Apache Junction, a little Arizona town about 30 miles from Phoenix, General Manager Gabe Paul announced Saturday.

Paul said the team will train in Apache Junction in 1962, 1963 and 1964.

He said the Apache Junction Chamber of Commerce, Superstition Mountain Enterprises and a resort hotel in the town have agreed to build a new ball park a quarter of a mile from the hotel.

The agreement calls for Houston to play at least six exhibition games in the stadium each spring.

Too Close

NAMPA, Idaho (AP) — Sophomore basketball teams from Nampa and Boise high schools played to a scoreless tie in their regulation game Friday night, but Nampa won in overtime, 24.

The Nampa players, considerably shorter than their Boise opponents, were instructed to play a control game, seeking only sure shots. During regulation play only six shots were attempted, and all failed. No foul was called during the game.

In the overtime, Nampa's Richard Grimes was fouled and he made both free throws.

Olympian Wins In Giant Slalom Internationals

BADGASTEIN, Austria (AP)—Guilliana Chenal-Minuzzo, twice an Italian Olympian and twice a mother, won the giant slalom competition of the international silver jug ski meet Saturday. Her time down the 1,600-yard icy course with its drop of 300 yards and 55 gates was 1 minute, 42.1 seconds.

Two French girls, Arlette Grosso and Annemarie Leduc, were second and third with times of 1:42.3 and 1:42.6. Erika Netzer of Austria, winner of Friday's downhill, was fourth with 1:43.1. She leads in the combined standings which determines the jug winner. The special slalom Sunday completes the competition.

Heidi Biebl of Germany, Olympic downhill queen, fell during the race. Sixty girls from 14 countries participated. There were no U. S. entrants.

Northeast Set For Cage Tilt With Bulldogs

Northeast gets back on the home court Monday night, meeting USL's Bulldogs at 7:30 in the new gym. The meeting will be a conference showdown for both squads.

Both the Indians and the Bulldogs stand 2-2 in league play.

Northeast, holding an 8-10 season record, is tied for third place in the GSC. The Indians will play Delta State here Wednesday and journey to Lake Charles Saturday night to face McNeese. Seven games remain on the Northeast '60-61' season chart.

Knight Gains Final Round In Indoor Tourney

PARIS (AP) — Billy Knight, British Davis Cupper who will play in the U. S. indoor tourney next week, gained the final round of the French indoor tennis meet Saturday with a 6-0, 6-4, 7-5 conquest of Wolfgang Stuck of Germany.

Jorgen Ulrich of Denmark downed Manuel Santana of Spain 6-2, 1-6, 6-1, 6-4 to gain the title round in the other bracket.

The women's doubles title went to Angela Mortimer and Ann Haydon of England for the second straight year. They defeated the French pair of Marie Odile Bouchet and Florence de la Courtie 6-2, 6-1.

NOBODY GETTING RICH

Grid Bowls Doing Great Financially

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With the help of television, post-season football has developed into a multi-million-dollar enterprise, but nobody is getting rich on it.

Most of the money—and there was more than $6 million from college and pro attractions after the last campaign—is funneled to the conferences, universities and players themselves.

Charities profit from some of the games. Some of the attractions are civic affairs. Proceeds from others are used to promote bigger and more lucrative shows. It's a mad merry-go-round.

For example, a dozen of the better college bowl games lured close to 600,000 customers, who paid nearly 3½ million in gate receipts. To this was added around $1,250,000 in television and radio monies.

The National and American football leagues vied for post-season attention with playoff title games and an assortment of special bowls which brought in some 200,000 additional customers, another million at the gate and a half-million from TV sponsors.

The National League added to its solvency, the new American League reduced the amount of its first year's red ink and players in both circuits lined their pockets with some overtime cash.

The daddy of all bowl games continues to be the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif., where 99,281 persons saw Washington beat Minnesota on Jan. 2. Gate receipts were placed at $983,000 and the television figure at $500,000. Both are round figures, and estimated.

Rose Bowl sponsors are reluctant to announce the exact gate figures while the National Broadcasting Company, which put the game on the nation's screens, was unable to disclose the exact TV figure.

However, the Rose Bowl game is reported to be the richest plum in football—pro or college—and priced to sponsors at around $500,000.

The proceeds of the game are distributed among members of the rival conferences—in this case, the Big Ten and the Big Five of the Pacific Coast. This year, each dragged down $365,773.

The Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, which attracted 82,250 fans, carved up a melon placed unofficially at $650,000. It may have been more or slightly less. At any rate, each of the competing schools (Mississippi and Rice) got $160,000. Of this, they had to share some with their conferences.

The Sugar Bowl promoters announced that a small portion of the proceeds went for retirement of bonds used to improve stadium facilities. Officials of the organization are not paid.

At Dallas, Cotton Bowl attendance was placed at 70,000 and the receipts at $300,000, with $125,000 added from the sale of TV. Arkansas and Duke, the competing teams, each got $165,000 of which about half went to other members of their conferences.

The Orange Bowl at Miami produced a turnout of 71,219, a net gate of $326,226 and TV-radio receipts of $175,000. Missouri and Navy, this year's rivals, each received $180,000. Navy, an independent, got to keep the full purse. Missouri had to share with other members of the Big Eight Conference.

Other bowls operated under similar arrangements. Florida and Baylor each got $100,000 for playing in the Gator Bowl; Florida had to turn over $25,000 to the Southeastern Conference, Baylor $40,000 to the Southwest.

Penn State and Oregon each collected $50,000 from the Liberty Bowl. The Bluebonnet Bowl netted Texas and Alabama $100,000 each. Texas kept more than $60,000, Alabama kept $80,000. New Mexico State and Utah State received $20,000 from the Sun Bowl and each had to give up about 10 per cent to the other schools of its conference.

The East-West shrine game in San Francisco, one of the big post-season fixtures, is strictly a charity affair. It nets about $250,000 yearly for the shrine hospitals.

Games such as the Hula Bowl, Senior Bowl and North-South involve players ending college careers. These are similar to pro games in which players share in receipts.

The National Football League's playoff game between the Philadelphia Eagles and Green Bay Packers brought in $591,454, not counting $200,000 in television money. Each player on the Eagles' winning team collected $5,116.55, each losing player $3,105.14.

The American League championship drew 32,183 fans. The player breakdown was: $1,016.42 for the winning Houston Oilers and $718.61 for the losing Los Angeles Chargers.

Yorky Takes Handicap Win In Big Race

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Calumet Farm's Yorky surged to the front in the stretch to take the 25th running of the $69,300 McLennan Handicap Saturday before the season's largest crowd of 22,328 at Hialeah.

The 4-year-old son of Bull Lee-Waynoke finished 2¾ lengths in front of Gustave Ring's Don Poggio with Cain Hoy Stable's All Hands third, 2¾ lengths farther back.

Road House Nips Favored Wizard

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Road House, owned by Texans Roger Wilson and Earl Allen, spurted past the favored Grand Wizard in the stretch Saturday and hung up a narrow victory in the $12,450 Louisiana Handicap at the Fair Grounds.

The four year old son of Hasty Road finished a head in front of M. H. Van Berg's Estacion with Grand Wizard, owned by the Argonne Stable of New Orleans, drifting back to third.

The 13,907 fans installed Road House as second choice to Grand Wizard and the winner rewarded his backers by returning $8.60, $4.40 and $3.20. Estacion paid $6.80 and $4.40. Grand Wizard returned $4.

Jockey Sandino Hernandez had a tight rein on Road House in the early stages of the mile and one-sixteenth run as longshot First Money cut out the pace with Grand Wizard running second.

Coming around the final turn, Grand Wizard jumped into the lead but Road House moved past the favorite and was running strong at the finish line.

The winner's time was 1:46 and 2-5ths, better than three seconds off the track record despite a fast strip.

The triumph was the second in three starts this year for Road House, who picked up a check for $8,950 for his wealthy oilmen owners. Road House accounted for better than $20,000 in winnings last year.

Austin Venn ($21.20) won the first race and Stag Line ($10.60) took the second and the two combine for a $181 daily double.

The handle for the 10-race card was $699,062.

19 Newellton Athletes Get Grid Letters

NEWELLTON, La. (Special) — Over 100 football fans, young and old, turned out Thursday night for the Newellton High School football banquet to honor the 1960 team and hear Coach Jack Rowan of Northeast Louisiana State College as he spoke words of advice to the young men being honored.

Coaches Embry Pickett and Hardy Palmer presented awards on behalf of the Booster Club, and 19 members of the squad received letters.

Seven seniors were awarded plaques as follows: Buddy Tatum, Mike Cannon, Johnny Robinson, Sonny Kifer, Dale Crane, Joe McClain and James Hall. Keith Crane, a junior previously lettered was awarded a trophy.

First year lettermen were Tommy Fergerson, George Cooper, Danny Kifer, Allen Perritt, Jackie Carr, Johnny Roberts, Junior Bozemen, Charles Tullos, and Roy Sikes.

Other squadmen receiving squad patches were Lamar Barnette, W. L. Tullos, Paul Shaw, Danny Cannon, Roy Meyers, Lynn Beasley, Allen Bozemen, James Miles, and Edwin Preis. Jr. Coach Pickett praised the two managers, Charlie Colvin and Buddy Williams, as they were awarded manager's Jackets.

Joe McClain was presented the All-State Certificate on behalf of the Louisiana Sports Writers Association and he expressed his appreciation to his team mates for making it possible for him to receive such an honor. Joe, who is scheduled for Northeast State College next fall, stated that he felt it more of a team award than a personal award.

Booster Club publicity chairman Jack Poe recognized and said a few words about former All-State Fullback Buddy Emfinger, a member of the 1954 squad. Emfinger was also picked on the high school All-American team that year by the Wigwam Wisemen of America.

Coach Pickett expressed his appreciation to the members of the Booster Club for their cooperation during the year and was especially grateful to the parents for their support. "I would especially like to thank you parents for giving me the opportunity to coach your boys", stated Pickett, "And it was the first year since I've been coaching that I didn't have to take boys home in the evenings after practice."

Nebraska Hires Marquette Aide

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — George L. Kelly, 33-year-old Notre Dame graduate and assistant football coach at Marquette since 1957, Saturday was named as assistant grid coach at Nebraska.

Kelly succeeds Russell Faulkinberry, who resigned to become head coach at Southwestern Louisiana Institute at Lafayette, La.

Marquette dropped intercollgiate football after last fall's season. Kelly comes to Nebraska under a one-year contract paying $8,000.

Olympian Wins In Giant Slalom Internationals

BADGASTEIN, Austria (AP)—Guiliana Chenal-Minuzzo, twice an Italian Olympian and twice a mother, won the giant slalom competition of the international silver jug ski meet Saturday. Her time down the 1,680-yard icy course with its drop of 390 yards and 55 gates was 1 minute, 42.1 seconds.

Two French girls, Arlette Grosso and Annemaric Leduc, were second and third with times of 1:42.3 and 1:42.6. Erika Netzer of Austria, winner of Friday's downhill, was fourth with 1:43.1. She leads in the combined standings which determines the jug winner. The special slalom Sunday completes the competition.

Heidi Biebl of Germany, Olympic downhill queen, fell during the race. Sixty girls from 14 countries participated. There were no U. S. entrants.

Tribe To Face Tigers In First Baseball Tilt

Baseball season is just around the corner at Northeast Louisiana State College with a total of 30 games and 15 playing dates to be handled by the Indian nine.

Head baseball coach, George Luffey, reports that eight regulars are gone from the Northeast squad. The Tribe ran fourth in the Gulf States Conference race last season.

Two experienced pitchers, Jay Gross, Pioneer and Jerry Rouse, Gulfport, Miss. have graduated along with Ralph Ward, a fine catcher from Monroe. Others lost are Jerry Collins, Jena; Ronnie Sims and Louis Kincaid, Monroe; John O'Conner, Rayville and Bryan Blevins, Zongwin, Tex.

Returning lettermen are George Bryant, Eddie McGowen, Phil Petras and Mickey Yerger, all Monroe boys; Jerry Godwin, Shreveport; Bobby Lockwood, Marion and Levy Redden, Farmerville.

Nine newcomers will be on hand to help the returning players, with more expected after the basketball season and football spring practice.

The schedule:

Demaret Listed As Senior Entry

DUNNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Jimmy Demaret, the only three-time winner of the Masters Tournament, has entered the 22nd annual PGA Seniors Championship, a $15,000 event for pros 50 years of age and older.

Tournament officials said Demaret's entry blank came in along with that of Dutch Harrison of San Francisco, Calif., another veteran of golf's tournament trail.

A field of more than 380 is expected to take part in the medal play event set for Feb. 14-19 over the PGA National Course in Dunnedin.

New British U.S. Envoy To Be Named

LONDON (UPI) — Britain was reported planinng Saturday to name a leading public figure — probably a member of the government—as its new ambassador to the United States.

Among those mentioned for the post now held by Sir Harold Caccia is David Ormsby-Gore, 42-year-old minister of state for foreign affairs.

Ormsby-Gore has been closely linked with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's foreign policy for the past four years. He is also well acquainted with President Kennedy.

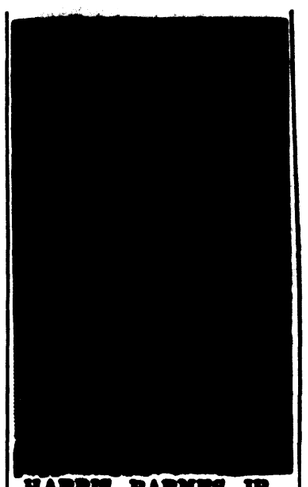
Informed sources said a decision on the appointment would not be made before the meeting between Macmillan and Kennedy scheduled for Washington early in April.

Much attention, however, is already focused in government quarters on the choice of the new envoy, especially in the light of Macmillan's desire for the closest possible alignment with the United States.

British officials, meanwhile, were preparing a warm reception for President Kennedy's newly-appointed ambassador to Britain, David K. E. Bruce.

Government and political quarters expressed their pleasure over the appointment. Bruce, 63, has served as ambassador to France and West Germany. He is being acclaimed here as an expert with a singular knowledge of European and international problems.

The Times of London said that this is "an ideal post for him. Not least because he sees the Atlantic alliance as being founded on the unwritten agreements between the English-speaking peoples."



HARRIS BARNES JR., manager of King and Anderson ranch, Clarksdale, Miss., will be a speaker Friday at the Farm Chemical Day program near Tallulah.

JFK Keeping Eye On N.Y. Demo Split

NEW YORK (AP)—The tail of the once powerful Tammany tiger was stepped on this week in a bitter Democratic intraparty fight being watched closely by President Kennedy.

A continuation of the split between insurgents and the organization in the state ranks of the party—or a healing of the breach—could have a sharp impact on the national political picture in 1964.

Continued division would help Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's chance of re-election in 1962 and thus project him into the next presidential picture.

Closing of the ranks would help Democratic chances of beating him in 1962 or of at least trimming his victory margin to the point where he might not be a standout for a White House nomination.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner handed a surprise defeat to Tammany, the Manhattan Democratic organization, in the election of a Manhattan borough president Tuesday.

Wagner's candidate, Domestic Court Judge Edward R. Dudley, won over Assemblyman Lloyd E. Dickens, who had the backing of Tammany leader Carmine G. DeSapio.

That boosted the hopes of the insurgent Democrats, headed by former Sen. Herbert H. Lehman and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt who are seeking DeSapio's ouster on the ground that he symbolizes "bossism."

De Sapio contends the insurgents simply want to be bosses themselves.

Kennedy so far has not openly taken sides in the party fight that has been raging for two years—but he has shown signs that he leans toward the insurgent group.

Asked about the situation at his first news conference as president, he simply said he had asked Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey "to lend a helping hand in attempting to alleviate some of the distress."

However, last week Kennedy named former Air Force Secretary Thomas K. Finletter, one of the insurgent leaders, as his ambassador to the North Atlantic Council.

And in an incident in the closing days of the presidential campaign, Kennedy made a pointed show of friendship toward the insurgents.

He reportedly was angered that Lehman and Mrs. Roosevelt, attending a New York rally that he addressed, were not permitted by the organization Democrats to speak at the rally. When Kennedy finished his own address, he turned his back on the organization leaders to shake hands with Lehman and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The rift did not hurt Kennedy in the state's election returns. Each faction, working separately, supported him and he carried the state by 400,000 votes.

But his natural goal is to get the party united for the 1962 and 1964 campaigns.

JFK Keeping Eye On N.Y. Demo Split

NEW YORK (AP)—The tail of the once powerful Tammany tiger was stepped on this week in a bitter Democratic intraparty fight being watched closely by President Kennedy.

A continuation of the split between insurgents and the organization in the state ranks of the party—or a healing of the breach—could have a sharp impact on the national political picture in 1964.

Continued division would help Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's chance of re-election in 1962 and thus project him into the next presidential picture.

Closing of the ranks would help Democratic chances of beating him in 1962 or of at least trimming his victory margin to the point where he might not be a standout for a White House nomination.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner handed a surprise defeat to Tammany, the Manhattan Democratic organization, in the election of a Manhattan borough president Tuesday.

Wagner's' candidate, Domestic Court Judge Edward R. Dudley, won over Assemblyman Lloyd E. Dickens, who had the backing of Tammany leader Carmine G. DeSapio.

That boosted the hopes of the insurgent Democrats, headed by former Sen. Herbert H. Lehman and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt who are seeking DeSapio's ouster on the ground that he symbolizes "bossism."

De Sapio contends the insurgents simply want to be bosses themselves.

Kennedy so far has not openly taken sides in the party fight that has been raging for two years—but he has shown signs that he leans toward the insurgent group.

Asked about the situation at his first news conference as president, he simply said he had asked Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey "to lend a helping hand in attempting to alleviate some of the distress."

However, last week Kennedy named former Air Force Secretary Thomas K. Finletter, one of the insurgent leaders, as his ambassador to the North Atlantic Council.

And in an incident in the closing days of the presidential campaign, Kennedy made a pointed show of friendship toward the insurgents.

He reportedly was angered that Lehman and Mrs. Roosevelt, attending a New York rally that he addressed, were not permitted by the organization Democrats to speak at the rally. When Kennedy finished his own address, he turned his back on the organization leaders to shake hands with Lehman and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The rift did not hurt Kennedy in the state's election returns. Each faction, working separately, supported him and he carried the state by 400,000 votes.

But his natural goal is to get the party united for the 1962 and 1964 campaigns.

New British U.S. Envoy To Be Named

LONDON (UPI) — Britain was reported planinng Saturday to name a leading public figure — probably a member of the government—as its new ambassador to the United States.

Among those mentioned for the post now held by Sir Harold Caccia is David Ormsby-Gore, 42-year-old minister of state for foreign affairs.

Ormsby-Gore has been closely linked with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's foreign policy for the past four years. He is also well acquainted with President Kennedy.

Informed sources said a decision on the appointment would not be made before the meeting between Macmillan and Kennedy scheduled for Washington early in April.

Much attention, however, is already focused in government quarters on the choice of the new envoy, especially in the light of Macmillan's desire for the closest possible alignment with the United States.

British officials, meanwhile, were preparing a warm reception for President Kennedy's newly-appointed ambassador to Britain, David K. E. Bruce.

Government and political quarters expressed their pleasure over the appointment. Bruce, 63, has served as ambassador to France and West Germany. He is being acclaimed here as an expert with a singular knowledge of European and international problems.

The Times of London said that this is "an ideal post for him. Not least because he sees the Atlantic alliance as being founded on the unwritten agreements between the English-speaking peoples."

Timely Cuba Topic Given Review Club

The Thomas C. Dansby home on Glenmar Avenue, was scene of the semi - monthly meeting of the Review Club Monday afternoon, when Mrs. Dansby entertained the members and two guests, Mrs. Robert Lewis and Mrs. H. M. Walters.

A small Grecian urn filled with marguerite daisies and fern enhanced the hutch in the living room where the group assembled and other attractive arrangements were noted throughout the home.

The meeting opened with the club collect in unison after which Mrs . W. M. Inabnet, president, welcomed the guests.

During the business session announcement was made of the fifth district meeting of Louisiana Federation of Women's clubs to be held February 25 in Rayville.

Mrs. A. T. Givens, chairman of the advisory board, introduced the study of Cuba for the afternoon's program. Mrs. D. W. Griffith gave a resume of "To Have and Have Not," by Ernest Hemingway. Mrs. Griffith's narration of the book's scenes of violence in the life of Harry Morgan, a Key West character who makes a living by rum - running between Florida and Cuba, provided a background for Mrs. DeWitt Henry's book review on Cuba, which followed.

In Cuba: Island of Paradox, the author R. Hart Phillips, tells in a seasoned mature and colorful way the ironic story of an island of contrasts, ever fighting for freedom, yet condemned to a succession of dictatorships. On the scene since the 1920s, Mrs. Phillips has seen the rise of the military power until it became master of the people, the torture and graft of the numerous governments and the role of the United States in Cuban affairs and in those of Latin American in general. Mrs. Henry's review related factual knowledge of Cuba, an island of foremost interest in the world today.

At conclusion of the program Mrs. Dansby served a spiced drink with hot orange muffins to members and guests including Mrs. W. E. Bennett Jr., Mrs. C. B. Braun, Mrs. E. P. Cudd, Mrs. W. T Davis, Mrs. A. T. Givens, Mrs. C. P. Gray Jr., Mrs. D. W. Griffith, Mrs. DeWitt Henry, Mrs. Fred Huenefeld, Mrs. W. M. Inabnet, Mrs. J. C. Loftin, Mrs. Robert Lewis, Mrs. Marcus Mapp, Mrs. Claude Smith, Mrs. N. R. Spencer, Mrs. H. M. Walters, Mrs. L. N. Waddell and Mrs. George Walker.

Janette Smith, Fiance Plan Summer Vows

MR. AND MRS. GLYN DOUGLAS BRAND

Brand-Nelson Nuptials Read In Coax Church

Miss Alice Elizabeth Nelson and Glyn Douglas Brand were united in marriage on Sunday, January 22 in the Coax Baptist church. The bride is the daughter of J. A. Nelson, Winnsboro and the late Mrs. Nelson and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Brand of the Coax community.

The Rev. Walter Braswell officiated at the double ring ceremony at 2:30 p.m. and was assisted by the Rev. J. W. Allen, pastor of the church.

An arch entwined with greenery and white satin pompoms, flanked by pedestal baskets of gladioli, formed a background for the exchange of vows. Cathedral tapers in branched candelabra completed the altar setting.

Miss Betty Jo Loony, organist, presented a program of nuptial music and accompanied Mrs. Francis Dear Garner, who sang "Because," and "Through The Years."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white Chantilly lace and bridal satin, fashioned with scalloped neckline, long sleeves tapered to points over the hands and a floor-length skirt. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a satin headdress and she carried a white orchid, showered with white satin ribbon streamers.

Miss Evelyn Nelson, cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore a yellow waltz length dress, styled with full skirt and carried a bouquet of yellow blossoms. Miss Sue Loony was bridesmaid and wore a blue frock styled identical to the honor attendant's and carried blue flowers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride's father. The attendants' bouquet centered the bride's table with the wedding cake and punch bowl at opposite ends. Miss Jean Gilmer presided at the guest book.

After a short wedding trip the couple has established a home in West Monroe.

Couple Plans March Nuptials

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Carlisle of Washington, Miss., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Lois Jane to John Patrick Hodge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Hodge Sr., of Bolton, Miss. The wedding will be an event of March 26.

Miss Carlisle is a graduate of Washington high school. Mr. Hodge attended Raymond, Miss. schools and is now employed in Jackson, Miss.

Don't pack down white sugar when you are measuring it.

MISS BETH MCNEIL

Betrothal Of Beth McNeil To Mr. White Announced

Announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Beth McNeil to Clarence H. White Jr., of Swartz is made today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. McNeil of West Monroe. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. White Sr. of Swartz.

February 25 is the date selected for the wedding which will take place in McClendon Baptist church in West Monroe. Rev. J. L. Strittman, pastor of the Alto Baptist church at Alto will officiate.

Attendants for the bride will be Mrs. Lucy McNeil, who will serve as matron of honor and Miss Mary Martin and Miss Dale Anding, all of West Monroe, will be bridesmaids.

Monty Parks, Swartz, will attend Mr. White as best man and ushers will be David Spiers and Sonny Ramsey, of Swartz.

A graduate of West Monroe high school and Louisiana Business college, the bride - elect is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Lindsay and Mrs. Mayme Henry, all of West Monroe.

Mr. White was graduated from Ouachita Parish high school and Northeast Louisiana State college.

The couple plans to establish a home in Monroe.

Company Dish

For company: cook slivered snap beans with thin crescents of celery; drain and mix with slivered blanched almonds browned in butter. Garnish with scarlet strands of pimiento.

Mrs. W. D. Brown New Member Of Potpourri Club

Mrs. W. D. Brown was introduced as a new member of the Potpourri Book club when it met Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Jack Taylor on Marie Place. Mrs. D. C. Bernhardt was cohostess.

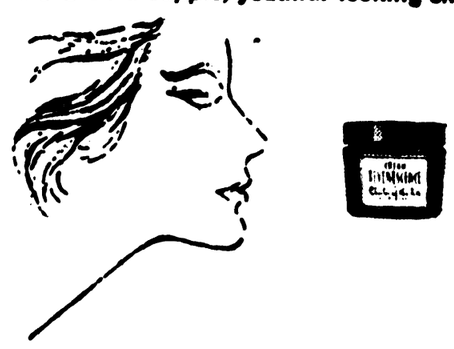
Mrs. Edward J. Brown reviewed "The Crown and the Cross," by Frank Slaughter and Mrs. Herbert Breard Jr. reviewed "The Gifts," by Dorothy Wilson to highlight the afternoon's program.

A dessert course in a seasonal motif was served at conclusion of the meeting by Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Bernhardt to Mrs. Nelson Abel, Mrs. Jack Terzia, Mrs. Ben Marshall, Mrs. Jack Davis, Mrs. Jack Easterling, Mrs. Joe Durrett Jr., Mrs. Harvey Marcoux and Mrs. Mabel Ratliff.

White Sauce

Kitchen arithmetic: Count on using at least half a cup of medium white sauce to a cup of cooked diced vegetables or chicken for a creamed dish.

LOST: a supple, youthful-looking skin.



FOUND: fresh, new beauty with the wonder working ingredients of Revenescence Cream. Will replenish a dry and aging complexion with dewy moisture. Will conserve natural freshness. Will lend a youthful glow worn with or without foundation. REVENESCENCE CREAM: 3.50 to 27.50 plus tax. LIQUID REVENESCENCE: $6 to $15, plus tax. For information, see our Beauty Consultant.

MRS. O. D. HART JR.

Ridge Avenue Church Site Of Hart-Holstead Nuptials

Miss Edith Holstead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Holstead of West Monroe, became the bride of O. D. Hart Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Hart Sr., Monroe, in a ceremony performed by the bride's brother, Rev. C. E. Holstead at Ridge Avenue Baptist church on January 27.

A pyramid of white candles, banked with huckleberry foliage formed a background at the altar for the exchange of vows with pedestal baskets of white gladioli at either side.

Candles were lighted by Miss Sally Holstead, sister of the bride and Miss Judy Holstead, niece of the bride. They were dressed identically in embossed gold cotton frocks, styled with scoop necklines, puffed sleeves and bouffant skirts and wore wrist corsages of bronze chrysanthemums.

Miss Bobbie Sue Saxon, organist, rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied Luther Birney, who sang, "Because," and "I Love You Truly" preceding the ceremony and "The Lord's Prayer," for the benediction as the couple knelt on a white satin prie dieu.

For her wedding the bride wore a gown of silk faced peau de soie, lavishly embellished with appliques of reembroidered Alencon lace and tiny seed pearls and sequins. The bodice featured a scalloped Sabrina neckline ending in a V-back, accented by tiny buttons and three-tier pouf effect, topping a chapel train. The reembroidered lace motifs were repeated on a front panel of the very full floor-length skirt and on each tier of the back pouf. Elbow length white gloves complemented the ¾ sleeves of the gown and her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a tiara of matching lace, sequins and pearls. She carried atop a white lace covered prayer book a white orchid, showered with lily of the valley and satin ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Betty Goodwin, Waco, Texas, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a gold velvet frock styled with softly pleated skirt, three - quarter sleeves and fitted bodice with scoop neckline. Her slippers were of gold velvet and her headband was of gold feathers.

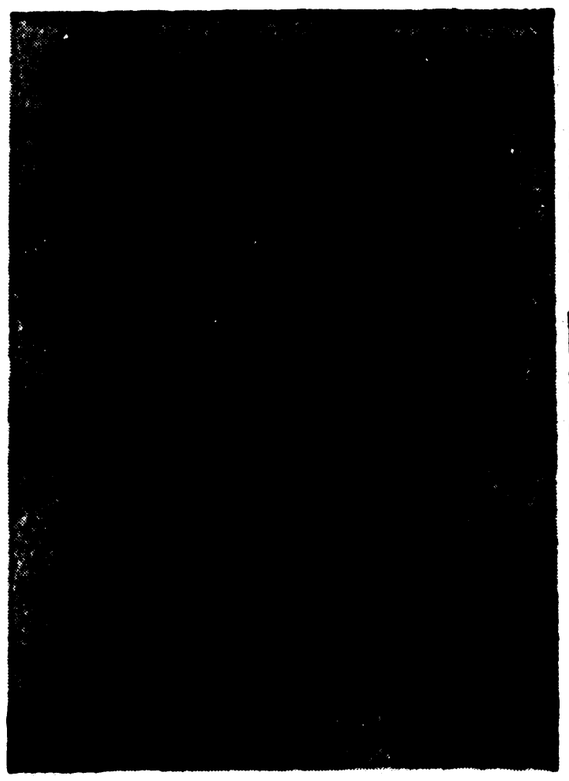
The bridesmaids, Miss Gwenne Newcomber and Mrs. Cynthia Statham, sister of the bridegroom, wore dresses of gold peau de soie, styled identically to the honor attendant's with gold satin slippers and feather headbands. All three carried kissing rings covered in variegated gold satin to which were attached gold and bronze chrysanthemums and gold feathers.

James T. Bailey served as best man for the bridegroom and ushers were C. W. Statham and Kenneth R. Kirkham.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Holstead selected an orchid embossed taffeta sheath with matching jacket, small close fitting hat of orchid flowers, pearlized shoes and bag and purple gloves. Her corsage was of orchid chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Hart wore a sheath dress of powder blue wool jersey with jeweled appliques, blue flower hat, with matching satin pumps and a blue chrysanthemum corsage.

At the reception which followed the bride's table was centered with an arrangement of white and yellow chrysanthemums, flanked by tapers in silver candelabra. Mrs. Charles Durham and Mrs. James Stricklin presided at the punch bowl and Miss Ellen Wilson and Miss Glenda Griffin served the cake. The guest book was placed on another table, presided over by Mrs. Jesse Owens.



MISS MARY JACQUELINE MILLER

Miss Miller Betrothed

Announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Mary Jacqueline Miller of Winnsboro to A-3c Charles Bentley Pierce of Newellton, is made today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gervin Olen Miller. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Deloyt Pierce of Newellton.

The wedding will be an event of Sunday, March 5 at 5 o'clock in the afternoon at Temple Baptist church of Winnsboro. The Rev. Joe Mongle will perform the ceremony.

Miss Miller graduated from Winnsboro high school and completed a business course at Northwest Louisiana Vocational school.

A graduate of Newellton high school, Airman Pierce is now with the United States air force, attending technical school at Chanute Air Force base in Illinois.

Firm Eggs

A teaspoon of vinegar added to the water in which you are poaching eggs will keep the whites from spreading.

Bell Ringer

To keep an ear on the youngster who has discovered he can crawl, tie bells to his shoe laces.

Lipstick Brush Needs Cleaning

If you use the same lipstick brush to apply all your various shades of lipstick, as most women do, be sure that the lipstick in the brush from previous application has been removed.

Besides preventing as smooth an application as possible, the mixture of the two different shades may produce a color effect that is unflattering. For instance, if you have previously used an orange shade and now decide to wear one that has a bluish caste, the mixture in your brush will be grayed and muddy. To eliminate this possibility and insure a clear, smooth application, stroke your brush across a cleansing tissue until it is lipstick free immediately after applying each shade. In addition, give your brush a more thorough cleaning once a week.

Easy-Way Appetizers

New fashion is hot appetizers broiled over wood charcoal briquets. One favorite is chicken liver and sliced water chestnut wrapped in bacon, broiled on a metal skewer. For indoor entertaining, use a Japanese hibachi (small iron pot with rack) or a small charcoal broiler and let guests do their own cooking.

Grow Your 'Kabobs'

If you have a garden, consider growing your own "kabob" meals. Small yellow or cherry or plum tomatoes are delicious on a skewer along with cubed meat. A garden can yield tasty small vegetables and fruits for meals when you barbecue in back yard, patio or kitchen. A herb garden glamorizes meals if you plant basil (for sliced broiled tomatoes), dill or chives (for flaky baked potatoes), mint (for barbecued leg of lamb). When you plan spring planting, keep in mind meals you can grow for charcoal grill treats.

MRS. O. D. HART JR.

Ridge Avenue Church Site Of Hart-Holstead Nuptials

Miss Edith Holstead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Holstead of West Monroe, became the bride of O. D. Hart Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Hart Sr., Monroe, in a ceremony performed by the bride's brother, Rev. C. E. Holstead at Ridge Avenue Baptist church on January 27.

A pyramid of white candles, banked with huckleberry foliage formed a background at the altar for the exchange of vows with pedestal baskets of white gladioli at either side.

Candles were lighted by Miss Sally Holstead, sister of the bride and Miss Judy Holstead, niece of the bride. They were dressed identically in embossed gold cotton frocks, styled with scoop necklines, puffed sleeves and bouffant skirts and wore wrist corsages of bronze chrysanthemums.

Miss Bobbie Sue Saxon, organist, rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied Luther Burney, who sang, "Because," and "I Love You Truly" preceding the ceremony and "The Lord's Prayer," for the benediction as the couple knelt on a white satin prie dieu.

For her wedding the bride wore a gown of silk faced peau de soie, lavishly embellished with appliques of reembroidered Alencon lace and tiny seed pearls and sequins. The bodice featured a scalloped Sabrina neckline ending in a V-back, accented by tiny buttons and three-tier pouf effect, topping a chapel train. The reembroidered lace motifs were repeated on a front panel of the very full floor-length skirt and on each tier of the back pouf. Elbow length white gloves complemented the ¾ sleeves of the gown and her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a tiara of matching lace, sequins and pearls. She carried atop a white lace covered prayer book a white orchid, showered with lily of the valley and satin ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Betty Goodwin, Waco, Texas, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a gold velvet frock styled with softly pleated skirt, three - quarter sleeves and fitted bodice with scoop neckline. Her slippers were of gold velvet and her headband was of gold feathers.

The bridesmaids, Miss Gwenne Newcomber and Mrs. Cynthia Statham, sister of the bridegroom, wore dresses of gold peau de soie, styled identically to the honor attendant's with gold satin slippers and feather headbands. All three carried kissing rings covered in variegated gold satin to which were attached gold and bronze chrysanthemums and gold feathers.

James T. Bailey served as best man for the bridegroom and ushers were C. W. Statham and Kenneth R. Kirkham.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Holstead selected an orchid embossed taffeta sheath with matching jacket, small close fitting hat of orchid flowers, pearlized shoes and bag and purple gloves. Her corsage was of orchid chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Hart wore a sheath dress of powder blue wool jersey with jeweled appliques, blue flower hat, with matching satin pumps and a blue chrysanthemum corsage.

At the reception which followed the bride's table was centered with an arrangement of white and yellow chrysanthemums, flanked by tapers in silver candelabra. Mrs. Charles Durham and Mrs. James Stricklin presided at the punch bowl and Miss Ellen Wilson and Miss Glenda Griffin served the cake. The guest book was placed on another table, presided over by Mrs. Jesse Owens.

Grow Your 'Kabobs'

If you have a garden, consider growing your own "kabob" meals. Small yellow or cherry or plum tomatoes are delicious on a skewer along with cubed meat. A garden can yield tasty small vegetables and fruits for meals when you barbecue in back yard, patio or kitchen. A herb garden glamorizes meals if you plant basil (for sliced broiled tomatoes), dill or chives (for flaky baked potatoes), mint (for barbecued leg of lamb). When you plan spring planting, keep in mind meals you can grow for charcoal grill treats.

Miss Miller Betrothed

Announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Mary Jacqueline Miller of Winnsboro to A-3c Charles Bentley Pierce of Newellton, is made today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Garvin Olion Miller. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Deloyt Pierce of Newellton.

The wedding will be an event of Sunday, March 5 at 3 o'clock in the afternoon at Temple Baptist church of Winnsboro. The Rev. Joe Mongle will perform the ceremony.

Miss Miller graduated from Winnsboro high school and completed a business course at Northwest Louisiana Vocational school.

A graduate of Newellton high school, Airman Pierce is now with the United States air force, attending technical school at Chanute Air Force base in Illinois.

Firm Eggs

A teaspoon of vinegar added to the water in which you are poaching eggs will keep the whites from spreading.

Bell Ringer

To keep an ear on the youngster who has discovered he can crawl, tie bells to his shoe laces.

Lipstick Brush Needs Cleaning

If you use the same lipstick brush to apply all your various shades of lipstick, as most women do, be sure that the lipstick in the brush from previous application has been removed.

Besides preventing as smooth an application as possible, the mixture of the two different shades may produce a color effect that is unflattering. For instance, if you have previously used an orange shade and now decide to wear one that has a bluish caste, the mixture in your brush will be grayed and muddy. To eliminate this possibility and insure a clear, smooth application, stroke your brush across a cleansing tissue until it is lipstick free immediately after applying each shade. In addition, give your brush a more thorough cleaning once a week.

Easy-Way Appetizers

New fashion is hot appetizers broiled over wood charcoal briquets. One favorite is chicken liver and sliced water chestnut wrapped in bacon, broiled on a metal skewer. For indoor entertaining, use a Japanese hibachi (cast iron pot with rack) or a small charcoal brazier and let guests do their own cooking.

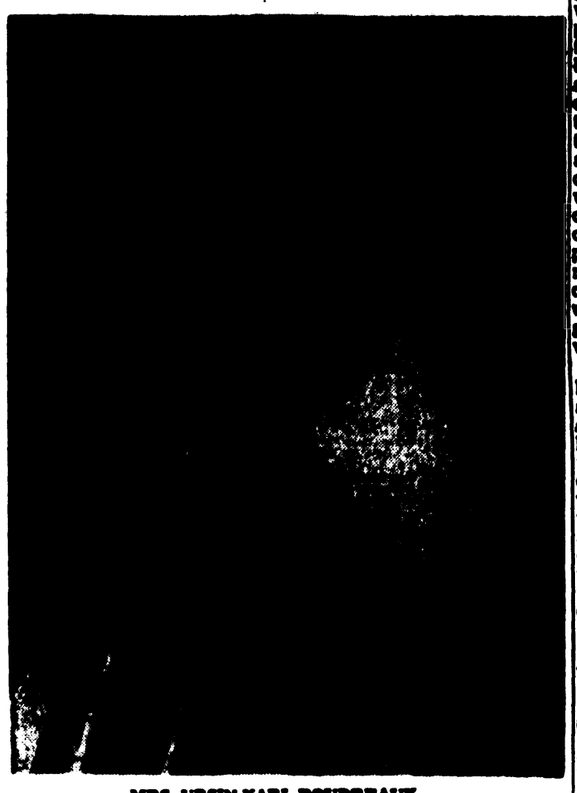
Wedding Trip To Southern Europe Follows Boudreaux-McCallister Vows

On a six weeks wedding trip to Paris, France and a tour of Southern Europe, are Mr. and Mrs. Ursin Karl Boudreaux, whose marriage was an event of Saturday, January 28 in Franklin, La. The bride is the former Miss Darla Jacquelyn McCallister, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Vernon McCallister of Monroe. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Ursin Boudreaux of Franklin.



MRS. URSIN KARL BOUDREAUX

The Rev. John H. Disch was celebrant for the 10 a.m. Nuptial Mass in the Church of the Assumption at Franklin. White gladioli, stock, chrysanthemums and greenery were used in the main altar arrangements, with vases of the same flowers on side altars.

A program of nuptial music was presented by the church organist, which included "Ave Maria," and Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a gown of white silk peau de soie with princess lines, featuring long pointed sleeves. The neckline was framed with Alencon lace reembroidered with seed pearls and sequins and lace appliques adorned the bodice and cascaded down the voluminous skirt, encircling the hemline which extended into a chapel train in back, with a center bow of peau de soie. Her veil of illusion in fingertip length cascaded from a crown of Alencon lace, encrusted with seed pearls and sequins and she carried a bouquet of white roses, centered with a yellow-throated white orchid, in a shower of pale green silk leaves and lily of the valley.

Miss Noel Breaud of New Orleans, served as maid of honor and wore a floor - length full skirted gown of emerald green nylon chiffon with deep green velvet cummerbund, falling to a drape bustle in back, accented with large velvet roses. Tiny velvet roses adorned the short sleeves and she wore a semi-crown headdress with a short veil of illusion and wrist length white gloves. She carried a bouquet of talisman roses.

Bridesmaids, who were dressed identical to the maid of honor were Miss Donna Nelson of Baton Rouge; Miss Monte Miller, Haynesville, and Miss Kathy Arboneaux, junior bridesmaid.

Darryl W. Boudreaux attended his brother as best man and groomsmen - ushers were Orien Dalton, New Iberia; Joe Fairchild and Michael Henry, of Franklin.

Mrs. McCallister selected for her daughter's wedding a rose-beige wool dress, styled with portrait neckline and three - quarter sleeves. Complementing her costume was a satin hat in shades of rose - beige and other accessories were of luster beige. Her corsage was of pink cymbidium orchids. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Boudreaux wore a navy blue crepe dress with pale blue accent and navy accessories and a cymbidium orchid corsage.

Immediately following the Nuptial Mass a reception was held at Belleview Country club, decorated for the occasion with white flowers and greenery. The bride's table was covered with a floor length white satin cloth overlaid with shirred white chiffon. Silver candelabra holding white tapers at either end of the table were garlanded with smilax, hyacinth blossoms and greenery. A memory candle burned on the guest book table, presided over by Miss Brigette Cymbal and Miss Janis Ayres. Mrs. Charles Avrill and Mrs. Wilfred Bourque served the cake and Mrs. Paul Comeaux and Mrs. Henry Bayard Jr., presided at the punch bowl.

Mrs. Dale Perrieleaux and Mrs. Monk Salley alternated at the coffee service and tea girls were Misses Peggy Chauvin and Sylvia Chauvin, cousins of the bridegroom.

For a traveling costume when the couple left on a wedding trip to Paris, France and Southern Europe, the bride wore a green wool fitted suit with brown and beige pillbox hat, brown alligator accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. Upon their return in six weeks the couple will be at home in Wisconsin where Mr. Boudreaux is employed by an engineering corporation.

A graduate of Neville high school, the bride was a senior at Louisiana State University prior to her wedding. She is a member of Phi Mu social sorority. Mr. Boudreaux graduated from Hanson Memorial high in Franklin and from Louisiana State University. His fraternity is Alpha Tau Omega.

Attending the wedding from Monroe were Mr. and Mrs. Monk T. Salley, Hubert Sanders, Mrs. Helene Cymbal, Miss Bigette Cymbal, and Richard Shovan. Other out - of - town guests were Vernon Chauvin and Miss Doris Chauvin of Port Acres, Texas; Mrs. Dell Oxley, Mr. and Mrs. William Talbert and Mr. and Mrs. W. Breaud, all of New Orleans.

A SPRING WEDDING is planned by Miss Lorene Pilcher, above, and C. E. Aulds, both of Choudrant, whose engagement is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Pilcher of Choudrant. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Shep Aulds of Choudrant. Both were graduated from Choudrant high school and are now employed in Ruston.

Miss Hamberlin, Fiance Complete Wedding Plans

Plans have been completed by Miss Carol Ann Hamberlin and her fiance, Vernon Albert Lee of Fort Worth, Texas, for their wedding, which will be solemnized Saturday, February 25 in Spearsville Baptist church, Spearsville, La.

Miss Hamberlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Hamberlin of Lexington, Mississippi, has chosen for her matron of honor her cousin, Mrs. James V. Whitaker Jr., of Satartia, Miss. Junior bridesmaids will be her sister, Martha Cherry Hamberlin of Lexington and her cousin, Glenda Cherry Futch of Winnfield, La.

Lewis B. Garrett of Fort Worth, will serve as best man for Mr. Lee. Groomsmen will be William Clyde Hamberlin, of State college, Mississippi, brother of the bride-elect, and Don C. Wade of Fort Worth.

The nuptials will be solemnized at 3 p.m. with the Rev. Allan Denton officiating. Mrs. Joe Barron, Spearsville, organist and Dr. Pete Carroll, of Bernice, soloist, will present a program of nuptial music.

A reception will be held immediately following the ceremony in the home of the bride-elect's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Clyde Cherry.

Girl Scout News

When the golden anniversary of Girl Scouting rolls round in '62, many bright spots of golden blossoms will appear across our country, blossoms that Scouts have planted to beautify homes, schools and parks. A start in that direction is being made now with the planting of Girl Scout roses, a shipment of which arrived last week. A yellow floribunda, the rose is a charming tribute to the Scouts. We now join the ranks of such luminaries as Mamie Eisenhower, Queen Elizabeth, and Kate Smith in having one of the world's most beloved flowers named for us.

Those who saw the National Convention film at the annual meeting recall that the stage of Kiel Auditorium in St. Louis was decorated with the roses. They also saw a rose bed being planted in the Plaza in downtown St. Louis. Well, we're planting a smaller one in the backyard at the office and hope to have golden blossoms through the birthday years.

Next spring the rose will go on sale to the general public. It can be purchased now by any member of the Girl Scout organization. We've heard, too, that Mrs. O. K. Davis, leader of Troop 3, received a rose bush as a gift from Kathy Parrish, a member of her troop.

A trip that was informative and fun, too, was that of Troop 15 in connection with one of the Homemaking badges. The girls visited a dairy to see cows milked, and the milk processed. In an age where most of us are far removed from the source of our food products, a visit like this was a revelation to the girls. Mrs. John Salisburg and Mrs. Charles Schneider are leaders of this busy troop.

Our council is pleased that Girl Scouting is being organized in Winnsboro, three troops being planned as a starter. Training for adult leaders and troop committee members will begin Tuesday at 9 a.m. at the home of Mrs. L. E. Green.

Training meeting for Bastrop will be held Wednesday afternoon.

Congratulations to the Boy Scouts on their 51st birthday! Last year they observed their golden anniversary and now are moving into another half century of service to boyhood.

DAR Groups Set Annual Luncheon

Annual luncheon meeting will be held by the Fort Miro, Chief Tusquahoma and Abram Morehouse Chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution on Saturday, February 11 at the Paragon Club.

The event, scheduled for 1 p.m. will honor the state regent, Mrs. James B. Shackleford.

A program of American Music, arranged by Mrs. George Hemphill, will be presented during the afternoon. Chairmen for the luncheon from the three chapters are Mrs. Henry Biedenharn Sr., Fort Miro; Mrs. Ray Lee, Chief Tusquahoma and Mrs. Conrad McDuffie, Abram Morehouse.

For reservations members are requested to call Mrs. O. C. Roddey, FA 3-2165.

Low Calorie Intake Best Reducing Aid

By SOLANGE BERTRAND

With liquid "reducing" diets reaching the proportions of a national fad, it's time to repeat a simple, unwelcome truth. Reducing can be done only by reducing caloric intake.

Many people are using the liquid diets under the impression that here at last is the magic formula that will reduce weight without having to cut down eating. Stories are told of office workers solemnly lunching on the liquid diet, then going back to their desks to nibble the afternoon away on chocolate and cookies!

The purpose of the liquid diets was originally to provide a complete food formula for certain kinds of hospital patients who could not eat solid food. In other words, such a formula replaces food.

Subsequent experiments indicated that such formulas could be a reducing aid, when used by doctors as part of an overweight patient's total diet.

But the person who drinks nine hundred calories or so of liquid formula and keeps right on eating as usual, has merely added that many calories.

How should the liquid formulas be used? It cannot be said too often that casual self-treatment of weight reduction is usually useless and can be dangerous. A real desire to lose weight should take one to a doctor for guidance in lowering caloric intake gradually, steadily and permanently.

As part of the program, he may recommend a day or two a week when nothing but the liquid diet be taken. Although these formulas supply about nine hundred calories, they satisfy all hunger feelings, thus enabling the patient to cut calories more easily.

Arthur Grant and Mrs. Doyle Hamilton.

Soak Glass

To remove brown stains from glass baking dishes put three tablespoons of baking soda into each casserole and fill with hot water.

Soak for a few minutes then wash. If there are stubborn stains, rub with a damp cloth dipped in soda. Do not scour glass cook - ware with coarse abrasives. They may weaken the skin or surface and weaken the glass in that spot.

Bean Cookery

Rapid boiling and frequent stirring causes bean skins to break when cooking. To keep them whole while cooking boil slowly and avoid stirring.

If cooking under pressure, allow time for a slow rise and fall of pressure so that beans will cook evenly without breaking.

February—gay and glorious month of Valentine candy, George Washington cherry tarts, Mardi Gras costumes, Groundhog's shadow . . . . . days of spring alternating with day of slush; camellias, violets, and first gay bulbs. There's always a reason for being cheery, even on the nastiest of February days.

Most gala party of the month in Monroe is the traditional Mardi Gras ball at Bayou DeSiard country club. The event will be held this coming Saturday night for the thirteenth consecutive year.

Committee members have been at work for the past several weeks on fabulous decorations which contribute to the festivities. Paint and paper and cardboard and glitter applied with a generous hand and a gifted imagination will transform club rooms into suitable settings for an "Old South Ball."

This year's general chairman is JOAN KING, who is being aided and abetted by her assistants, MARY ALICE LOFLIN, and MARY LEE MILAM.

Club president JOHN SHERROUSE, JR., will be king of the ball. Members of the Board of Directors will be dukes, escorting the maids, college - age daughters of club members. LOUISE SEYMOUR and MARTHA GRANT are co - chairmen of the court committee, which also include HILDA M'DONALD, BERNICE WOODS, NANCY WEAKS, and PAULINE RILEY.

At the club front door, wrought iron gates will swing open into the foyer, which will be transformed into an avenue of moss-hung oak trees. FLO KELLY and LOUISE KLAM, assisted by CHE CHE LILES, HELEN CANNON, and JACKIE WOODS, are decorating the entrance. PAT MADDEN and TEETIE DIXON, with PAT RILEY and Catherine COTTON, are responsible for Oak Alley.

In the main ballroom, the columned portico of a plantation mansion is being constructed by JANE BARHAM and MARY ANN JOHNSTON and their committee: DOLL BIEDENHARN, MILDRED VANDERPOOL, JANE SHERROUSE, CHARLOTTE ETHRIDGE, MARY FRANCES PERRY, HUGH TOUCHSTONE, JIM WALLACE, PRENT SEYMOUR, and JOYCE KELLOGG.

JEAN DICKENHORST and ESTHER MASUR plan to use old brick, wrought iron, and tubbed plants to create a courtyard garden on the porch. Working with them are MARIE COOKSTON, LIL and FRED MARX, JEAN MINTZ, SYDNIE SMITH, CAROLYN and RALPH SIMPSON.

The Southern mansion's main hall, with chandelier and curving staircase, will be duplicated in the dining room. BILLIE and LAVELLE SALLEY and DORIS and JIM FRAZIER will be assisted in this room by JEAN HUENEFELD, TOMMY SUE SARTOR, BILLIE and RABUN SMITH, and DOT and FRED AMMAN.

A most ambitious project is underway in the young people's lounge, which is to suggest a riverboat. BILLIE ROOT and VERA KELSO are co - chairmen here, with EILEEN RUBIN, LIZA GUILKEY, SARA DUCOTE, MARIE POHLMAN, HELEN WHEELER, WINNIE SHAVER, DOT NASH, ROSALIE FUDICKAR, ELEANOR BROWN, MARGARET DAVIS, JOAN SAGER, BITZA BROWN and COMO PROPHIT on the committee.

VIRGINIA HIGH and JEAN HAMILTON are decking the walls of the bar with playing cards a la Old Absinthe House. On the porch are large drawings of roulette wheels and other games of chance. Their assistants include MARIANNE RAY, CODY ROSAMUND, SALLY GAINNIE, CHRIS BARTON, LORRAINE WICKS WANDA HINKLE, ALVA COOK, MADRON JONES, VIRGINIA THOMPSON, and HELEN CAMPBELL.

The party is a masquerade, of course, with members' costumes echoing the theme, which varies from year to year. For "Old South," elegance in hoop-skirted ballgowns and Confederate gray is expected, along with mad, mad originals. Masquers arrive early for the promenade from 8:30 until 9. The Dukes will play for dancing beginning at 9.

Entrance of the court will be at 9:30, when the identity of the queen is made known for the first time. Awards for costumes are made after her coronation. Prizes are awarded on the basis of beauty, originality, and suitability to the theme, to the best individual, couple and group.

For the beginning of February, month of patriotic birthdays, it seems suitable to use "Gift Outright," which was read by the author, Robert Frost, at the inauguration last month:

The land was ours before we were the land's.
She was our land more than a hundred years
Before we were her people. She was ours in Massachusetts, in Virginia,
But we were England's, still colonials,
Possessing what we still were unpossessed by,
Possessed by what we now no more possessed.
Something we were withholding made us weak
Until we found out that it was ourselves We were withholding from our land of living,
And forthwith found salvation in surrender.
Such as we were we gave ourselves outright (The deed of gift was many deeds of war)
To the land vaguely realizing westward,
But still unstoried, artless, unenchanted. Such as she was, such as she would become.

Lakeshore PTA Makes Plans For Pancake Supper

A panel discussion on "Improving Study Habits," was presented at the January meeting of Lakeshore Parent-Teacher Association last week at the school.

Mrs. Ben Winegeart, program chairman, introduced Mrs. John P. Zoll, Lakeshore elementary principal, who served as moderator. She introduced the panelists who were Mrs. Faye Cook, third grade teacher; Mrs. Mary Lou Humphries, fourth grade teacher; W. W. Ward, superintendent of Ouachita school system and Dr. Fred Vogel, P.T.A. president, who represented the parents in the discussion.

Mr. Ward stressed the importance of the setting for improving study habits; Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Humphries pointed out ways and means of establishing good study habits and Dr. Vogel discussed what parents can do to improve the study habits of their children at home. Among points brought out for the students improve study were to determine needed materials and assemble them, select a quiet, comfortable place for studying, resolve to master the lesson, practice sustained attention, use references and dictionary and follow the teachers instructions.

Dr. Vogel conducted a brief business session, during which it was announced an honorary life membership and pin will be awarded a member at the Founders Day meeting. Plans for a pancake supper were discussed and room award was won by Mrs. F. S. Fisher's sixth grade.

Third grade parents were hosts during the social hour and served refreshments to the group.

Pointed Toes Remain Popular In Shoe Styles

NEW YORK — The continued popularity of the extremely slender, elongated shoe was underscored here at a special Spring preview by the Shoe Fashion Service of Leather Industries of America. Among the leading new pointed toe styles presented were daytime pumps, spectators, daytime walkers and wedge casuals in a profusion of leather textures — smooth, grained, brushed, lustered and patent leathers.

The only real shift from the pointed toe look will be seen this season in some tailored shoes.

Miss Colvin, Mr. Durham Exchange Vows

Fair Park Baptist Church in West Monroe was the setting for the wedding of Miss Patricia Colvin and Charles Lyndon Durham, solemnized January 21 at 7:30 p.m. Rev. O. C. Clark performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Colvin, West Monroe, and Mr. Durham is the son of Mrs. Clarice Durham, West Monroe and D. M. Durham, Lubbock, Texas.

Slender white tapers in branched candelabra and baskets of white gladioli and greenery formed a background for the bridal party. Mrs. Jane Peterson, organist, presented a program of nuptial music and accompanied Mrs. Shirley Willis as she sang "I Love You Truly," and "Because."

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a traditional gown of ivory satin, featuring a floor - length skirt, and fitted bodice with appliqued scallops at the neckline studded with seed pearls. The applique motif was repeated on the long sleeves, which tapered to points over her wrists. Her shoulder length veil was attached to a pearl encrusted headpiece of leaf design and she carried a bouquet of white feathered carnations encircling a white orchid.

Miss Ann Colvin attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore a gown of blue brocade taffeta, fashioned with a full skirt and basque bodice, with matching headpiece and carried a bouquet of pink carnations, backed by blue maline and greenery. Mrs. James E. Stricklin, matron of honor, and Miss Karen Durham, sister of the bridegroom, candlelighter, were dressed identically to the maid of honor, with the candlelighter wearing a pink carnation wrist corsage.

Serving as best man was the bridegroom's brother, Max Durham. Daniel Shelton was groomsman and ushers were Jim Colvin, and Radford Odom.

A blue wool sheath dress with black accessories was the costume worn by the bride's mother. Mrs. Colvin, and the bridegroom's mother wore a blue lace with matching accessories. Both had corsages of pink carnations.

A reception was held in the church parlor following the ceremony. The bride's table, covered with white lace, was centered with an arrangement of white chrysanthemums and blue bells, flanked with tapers in crystal holders. Mrs. V. L. Colvin served the three - tiered white and blue wedding cake and Miss Glenda Griffin, Miss Gwen Newcomb and Mrs. Duke Hart alternated at the punch bowl.

For a wedding trip to Vicksburg, Mississippi, the bride changed to a beige suit with brown accessories and the orchid corsage from her wedding bouquet. The couple will be at home at 304 Laurel, West Monroe.

Out - of - town guests included Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Robinson, Ruston; Joe Futrell, Ruston; Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Colvin, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Allen Colvin, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Fuller, Charles and James Fuller, all of Dubach and Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Odom, Farmerville.

Dressing To Freeze

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture is at work on a salad dressing that will not separate when frozen and thawed. USDA said the basic mixture includes oil of safflower (a thistle-like herb), a waxy rice flour, and fresh egg yolks. Tests show the mixture remains stable at temperatures as low as 10 degrees F. but researchers hope to work out a formula which will remain stable at zero, the temperature at which frozen food should be held. USDA said the research is underway at its laboratories in Albany, Calif.

SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer

"Dear Eunice,

"I have trouble getting a comfortable fit in the dresses I've tried to make. I have extremely narrow shoulders and hollow places in my upper chest. This causes the dress around the hollow places to be slack and loose. Can a pattern be altered to help this trouble?"

Mrs. W.M.McM.

Dear Mrs. W.M. McM.:

You will have to take a fold in the pattern at the shoulders, as described a few weeks ago, in order to make the shoulder width narrower.

It also sounds like the pattern is too long for you from the shoulder to the bust line. Try taking a ¼-inch fold horizontally in your pattern from armhole to center front, about 4 inches below the shoulder. You will also have to lower the armhole ½ inch so the sleeve will again fit the armhole.

You will also find that if you will line the bodice of your dresses, they will hang much better and not sink in where they now do. The lining gives your garment extra body.

UNPRESSED PLEATS

"Dear Eunice,

"I tried to make a velveteen dress for my daughter for Christmas and it had a very full, gathered skirt. I absolutely could not get the material pulled up tight enough to fit the waistband. Can you give me any clue as to what I should do?"

Mrs. M.R.

Dear Mrs. M.R.:

If the skirt you were trying to gather was about 3 yards wide, as most gathered skirts are, the velveteen is too thick to gather that much. For heavier type fabrics, the skirt would hang so much better if you substituted small, unpressed pleats for the gathers. The waistline will not be as thick now and it will be much easier to apply the waistband.

BIAS-CUT

"Dear Eunice,

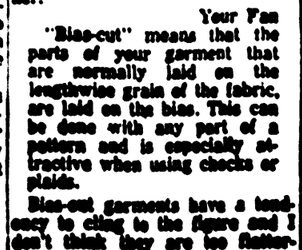
"Will you please explain what is meant by "bias-cut" wool or rayon skirts? How do you lay your pattern? I have heard they fit very well when cut in this manner."

Your Fan

"Bias-cut" means that the parts of your garment that are normally laid on the lengthwise grain of the fabric, are laid on the bias. This can be done with any part of a pattern and is especially attractive when using checks or plaids.

Bias-cut garments have a tendency to cling to the figure and I don't think they are too flattering unless you are quite slender. They also have the disadvantage of hanging uneven at the hemline.

It will have to be up to you to decide if the effect of a bias cut skirt outweights the disadvantages.



If you have any need for special instructions on any phase of dressmaking that we have not covered please write to Sew Simple, in care of your newspaper.

If you would like a copy of my pamphlet, "All About Sleeves," enclose 10 cents and a large, stamped, self - addressed envelope with your request to Eunice Farmer, in care of Morning World.

Herb Butter Hints

Cream some butter with favorite herbs for next when you barbecue. Into a stick of butter you can work fish parsley or chives, marjoram or thyme, tarragon, chervil to your taste. These are handy for buttering grilled chicken or various chops, corn on the cob or fish.

Traxler-Branch Vows Read In Baptist Church

Miss Edith Rose Branch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Autra B. Branch of Rayville, became the bride of A-1c Curtis Malcolm Traxler, England Air Force Base, Alexandria, on Sunday, January 29 at 3 p.m. in the Grace Baptist church at Rayville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Traxler of Winnsboro.

Baskets of white gladioli and greenery formed a background for the double ring ceremony which was performed by Rev. H. L. Weeks.

Nuptial music was provided by Miss Barbara Henderson, and Miss Nancy O'Quinn, organists and Richard Rockett, soloist. Selections included "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was given in marriage by her father. For her wedding she wore a beige wool suit with matching fur collar and brown accessories. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and white double violets on a white lace-seed pearls.

Miss Sonja Traxler, sister of the bridegroom, served as maid of honor, and wore a rust-colored wool suit with brown accessories and carried a cascade of pink chrysanthemums.

Both mothers of the couple wore gray suits with black accessories and carsages of pink camellias.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents. The serving table, covered with a cutwork cloth over pink linen was centered with an arrangement of pink chrysanthemums, carnations and greenery, flanked by pink candles. Pink flowers encircled the wedding cake which was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Mrs. Ralph McKinstry served the cake and Miss Carolyn Boseman presided at the punch bowl. The guest book was in charge of Miss Belinda Branch and assisting as tea girls were Miss Nelwyn Branch and Miss Jean Lamprich.

The bride wore her wedding suit as a going away ensemble when the couple left for a trip to Alexandria, La., and Houston, Texas, en route to Amarillo, Texas, where the bridegroom is being transferred from England Air Base. A graduate of Winnsboro high school, he is now with the air force. Mrs. Traxler was graduated from Rayville high school and attended a Monroe business college.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Miss Shirley Dennis, Miss Benny Lewis, Miss Wanda Ruple, Mrs. Ruth Hundley, Mrs. Mary Martin, all of Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. Ted Lamprich, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Powell and Judy, Columbia; Miss Jo Lambert, Bastrop, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hendrix Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Earl Merchant, Mrs. Nan Norman and Ray, Delhi; Miss Jean Lamprich, Monroe; Miss Nelwyn Branch, Monroe, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McKinstry, Ruston and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Traxler, Lawanna, Steve and Monty, Winnsboro.

Wild Rice

Wild rice is a tall aquatic perennial grass whose grain or seed is used as food. White rice is the seed of an annual grass.

Topping

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pancakes or waffles are tasty with this cranberry topping. Wash 4 cups of fresh or home frozen cranberries. Combine them with 2½ cups of sugar, 1 cup of water and ½ small lemon, thinly-sliced. Bring to a boil in a saucepan and cook until the berries pop and the sauce thickens. Stir frequently to prevent pitching. Cool and chill. If desired, stir in ½ cup of broken walnuts or filberts before serving.

Miss Colvin, Mr. Durham Exchange Vows

Fair Park Baptist Church in West Monroe was the setting for the wedding of Miss Patricia Colvin and Charles Lyndon Durham, solemnized January 21 at 7:30 p.m. Rev. O. C. Clark performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Colvin, West Monroe, and Mr. Durham is the son of Mrs. Clarice Durham, West Monroe and D. M. Durham, Lubbock, Texas.

Slender white tapers in branched candelabra and baskets of white gladioli and greenery formed a background for the bridal party. Mrs. Jane Peterson, organist, presented a program of nuptial music and accompanied Mrs. Shirley Wills as she sang "I Love You Truly," and "Because."

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a traditional gown of ivory satin, featuring a floor - length skirt, and fitted bodice with appliqued scallops at the neckline studded with seed pearls. The applique motif was repeated on the long sleeves, which tapered to points over her wrists. Her shoulder length veil was attached to a pearl encrusted headpiece of leaf design and she carried a bouquet of white feathered carnations encircling a white orchid.

Miss Ann Colvin attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore a gown of blue brocade taffeta, fashioned with a full skirt and basque bodice, with matching headpiece and carried a bouquet of pink carnations, backed by blue maline and greenery. Mrs. James E. Stricklin, matron of honor, and Miss Karen Durham, sister of the bridegroom, candlelighter, were dressed identically to the maid of honor, with the candlelighter wearing a pink carnation wrist corsage.

Serving as best man was the bridegroom's brother, Max Durham. Daniel Shelton was groomsman and ushers were Jim Colvin, and Radford Odom.

A blue wool sheath dress with black accessories was the costume worn by the bride's mother, Mrs. Colvin, and the bridegroom's mother wore a blue lace with matching accessories. Both had corsages of pink carnations.

A reception was held in the church parlor following the ceremony. The bride's table, covered with white lace, was centered with an arrangement of white chrysanthemums and blue bells, flanked with tapers in crystal holders. Mrs. V. L. Colvin served the three - tiered white and blue wedding cake and Miss Glenda Griffin, Miss Gwen Newcomb and Mrs. Duke Hart alternated at the punch bowl.

For a wedding trip to Vicksburg, Mississippi, the bride changed to a beige suit with brown accessories and the orchid corsage from her wedding bouquet. The couple will be at home at 304 Laurel, West Monroe.

Out - of - town guests included Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Robinson, Ruston; Joe Futrell, Ruston; Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Colvin, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Allen Colvin, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Fuller, Charles and James Fuller, all of Dubach and Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Odom, Farmerville.

Dressing To Freeze

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture is at work on a salad dressing that will not separate when frozen and thawed. USDA said the basic mixture includes oil of safflower (a thistle-like herb), a waxy rice flour, and fresh egg yolks. Tests show the mixture remains stable at temperatures as low as 10 degrees F, but researchers hope to work out a formula which will remain stable at zero, the temperature at which frozen food should be held. USDA said the research is underway at its laboratories in Albany, Calif.

Traxler-Branch Vows Read In Baptist Church

Miss Edith Rose Branch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Autra B. Branch of Rayville, became the bride of A-1c Curtis Malcolm Traxler, England Air Force Base, Alexandria, on Sunday, January 22 at 3 p.m. in the Grace Baptist church at Rayville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Traxler of Winnsboro.

SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer

"Dear Eunice,

"I have trouble getting a comfortable fit in the dresses I've tried to make. I have extremely narrow shoulders and hollow places in my upper chest. This causes the dress around the hollow places to be slack and loose. Can a pattern be altered to help this trouble?"

Mrs. W.M.McM.

Dear Mrs. W.M. McM.:

You will have to take a fold in the pattern at the shoulders, as described a few weeks ago, in order to make the shoulder width narrower.

It also sounds like the pattern is too long for you from the shoulder to the bust line. Try taking a ¼-inch fold horizontally in your pattern from armhole to center front, about 4 inches below the shoulder. You will also have to lower the armhole ½ inch so the sleeve will again fit the armhole.

You will also find that if you will line the bodice of your dresses, they will hang much better and not sink in where they now do. The lining gives your garment extra body.

UNPRESSED PLEATS

"Dear Eunice,

"I tried to make a velveteen dress for my daughter for Christmas and it had a very full, gathered skirt. I absolutely could not get the material pulled up tight enough to fit the waistband. Can you give me any clue as to what I should do?"

Mrs. M.R.

Dear Mrs. M.R.:

If the skirt you were trying to gather was about 3 yards wide, as most gathered skirts are, the velveteen is too thick to gather that much. For heavier type fabrics, the skirt would hang so much better if you substituted, small, unpressed pleats for the gathers. The wasitline will not be as thick now and it will be much easier to apply the waistband.

BIAS-CUT

"Dear Eunice,

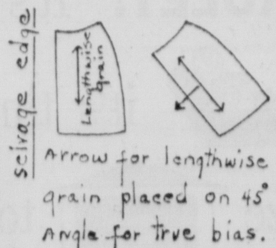
"Will you please explain what is meant by "bias-cut" wool or rayon skirts? How do you lay your pattern? I have heard they fit very well when cut in this manner."

Your Fan

"Bias-cut" means that the parts of your garment that are normally laid on the lengthwise grain of the fabric, are laid on the bias. This can be done with any part of a pattern and is especially attractive when using checks or plaids.

Bias-cut garments have a tendency to cling to the figure and I don't think they are too flattering unless you are quite slender. They also have the disadvantage of hanging uneven at the hemline.

It will have to be up to you to decide if the effect of a bias cut skirt outweights the disadvantages.



If you have any need for special instructions on any phase of dressmaking that we have not covered please write to Sew Simple, in care of your newspaper.

If you would like a copy of my pamphelt, "All About Sleeves," enclose 10 cents and a large, stamped, self - addressed envelope with your request to Eunice Farmer, in care of Morning World.

Herb Butter Hints

Cream some butter with favorite herbs for zest when you barbecue. Into a stick of butter you can mash fine parsley or chives, marjoram or thyme, tarragon, chervil to your taste. These are handy for buttering grilled chicken or various chops, corn on the cob or fish.

Tips Offered On Purchase Of Timepiece

Will your watch be one of the $8,000,000 that goes to the 'hospital' for repairs this year?

If so, it's quite possible that you didn't select a good one when you chose your timepiece. When you're shopping for a new watch these suggestions by consumer service should prove helpful:

First, go to a dependable jeweler, one upon whose integrity you can depend. Make sure of the number of jewels, usually synthetic sapphires, in the watch. A minimum of 17 jewels is required to protect all of the most important wear points. If you want even more precision inquire about 21-jewel timepieces.

Don't be tempted by bargain prices. Watches with fewer than 17 jewels — including those with none at all — may be priced from $5 to $15 but you'll be lucky if they last as much as a year. For $25 to $30 you should be able to get a 17-jewel watch that will give dependable service for many years. Remember that a $25 watch may have the same movement as one priced much higher but decorations and case design probably will cost more.

Don't be misled by vague advertising terms such as "jeweled" 'or "gold-toned" case. If the watch has 17 jewels and the case is gold, platinum, or stainless steel the ad probably will say so.

And finally, remember that just because a watch bears a Swiss label it isn't necessarily a good timepiece. The Swiss make low-quality watches as well as fine ones.

A Good Fit

Never fit a dress unless you have on the foundation garments and the shoes you usually will wear with the dress.

PAUL HEWITT'S
1312 LOUISVILLE MONROE

MRS. DALE SMITH

West Monroe Church Site Of Smith-Fuller Nuptials

Solemnized Friday, February 3 at 8 p.m. in the First Pentecostal church, was a double ring ceremony which united in marriage Miss Billie Rose Fuller and Dale Smith, both of West Monroe. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodis L. Fuller, West Monroe, and Mr. Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Smith Jr., of Natchez, Mississippi.

Rev. V. Arlen Guidroz, of Alexandria, brother - in - law of the bride, officiated at the exchange of vows, with Rev. E. W. Caughron, pastor of the church assisting.

Baskets of pink gladioli and asters, flanked by pink tapers in wrought - iron candelabra, draped in smilax, formed the altar setting at the church with large potted palms in the background.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Martha Thompson sang "Because," Rev. Guidroz sang, "The Wedding Prayer," and the bride sang, "Whither Thou Goest." They were accompanied by Mrs. Bonnie Fordham, organist, who also played traditional wedding marches.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of bridal satin with a sculptured bodice featuring a deep yoke of Chantilly lace, encrusted with seed pearls and forming high scallops at the neckline. Pearl encrusted lace motifs appliqued the bouffant waltz length skirt and were repeated on the long sleeves which tapered to lily points at the wrists. Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion, also adorned with the lace paillettes, was attached to a pill - box headdress of Alencon lace over silk, embellished with seed pearls. She carried a white lace - covered Bible, topped with a purple orchid in a cascade of lily of the valley.

Mrs. Robbie Guidroz, Alexandria, was her sister's matron of honor. She wore a mint green crystalette frock, fashioned with an elongated waistline and very full skirt. She wore matching gloves and shoes and a half hat to which was attached a circular veil and carried an arrangement of deep pink roses.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Pat Treadway of Jonesboro; Miss Juanita Wyatt of Vinton; Misses Sandra and Janet Smith of Natchez, Mississippi, sisters of the bridegroom; Miss Becky Caughron and Miss Diana Black, were dressed identical to the honor attendant and each carried a single long - stemmed pink rose.

Candlelighters were Larry Stevens, Monroe, and Miss Barbara Simpkins of Lake Charles, both cousins of the bride. Miss Simpkins was dressed similar to the other attendants and wore a wrist corsage of pink roses. Serving as flower girl was Debbie Thompson, whose mint green crystalette frock featured a full skirt of ruffles, with which she wore green satin slippers, green gloves and a headpiece of matching material, adorned with roses. She also carried a single long stemmed rose.

Gale Smith, twin brother of the bridegroom, served as best man and groomsmen were Lonnie Treadway Jr., Sam Bailey, Jimmie Nordan, R. C. Slocum, Lavoy Tingle and Jerry Clark. Ushers were Eddie Jones and Floyd Avery and ring bearer was DeWayne Hearold, cousin of the bridegroom.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Fuller was wearing a Dior blue lace dress with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Smith, mother of the bridegroom, wore a powder blue lace dress with matching accessories and a white carnation corsage.

A reception in the social room of the church followed the ceremony. The bride's table, covered in pink satin with a net overskirt, held a central arrangement of white flowers and pink candles. The tiered wedding cake was decorated in pink and green. Baskets of pink gladioli and asters formed a background for the receiving line.

Those assisting with the reception hospitalities were Mrs. Sudie Bratten, Mrs. Grace Cosby, Mrs. Wilma Hearold, Mrs. Medria Nordan, Mrs. Mildred Wyatt and Mrs. Ollie V. Stevens.

When the couple left for a wedding trip to the Gulf Coast, the bride was wearing a lilac sheath dress and jacket ensemble of silk bopsacking with matching hat and gloves and black patent accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

Upon their return the couple will be at home in West Monroe, where the bride is a student at West Monroe High School. Mr. Smith was graduated from Natchez High School and attended Southern Institute of Graphic Arts at Nashville, Tenn. He is at present employed in West Monroe.

Pat Rush Engaged To Mr. Bullock

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Pat Rush, Monroe, daughter of Mrs. Bill Rush, Oak Grove, and the late Mr. Rush, to Morris Bullock, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Bullock, West Monroe, is announced this weekend by the mother of the bride-elect.

The couple has selected March 4 as the date of their wedding which will be solemnized in the home of the bride's mother. Rev. J. D. Cheatham, pastor of Oak Grove Baptist church, will perform the 6 p.m. ceremony.

Serving as attendants for the couple will be Miss Billie Jean Rush, sister of the bride - elect, as maid of honor, and Raymond Bullock, brother of the future bridegroom, as best man.

Miss Rush is the granddaughter of Mrs. L. S. Gantt, Arcadia and Mrs. C. B. Smith of Shreveport. She graduated from Oak Grove high school and a Shreveport business college.

A graduate of West Monroe high school, Mr. Bullock is the grandson of Mrs. Robert Pace, Pela Hatcha, Miss. He is now employed in Monroe, where the couple will establish a home.

Child's Party Requires Plans For Success

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—The plan's the key to success when putting on a children's party.

Veteran party planners agree on ground rules for staging a successful party. For example:

—Check with Junior or Janie and decide on a theme for the party.

—Send invitations ten days to two weeks in advance of the date. Be very clear about stating how long the party will last. Don't forget to specify RSVP.

—Decide ahead of time on games and entertainment. Have a store of extra ideas in case some activities bore guests.

—Fix things so every guest goes home with a souvenir.

Amateur Warned Of Pitfalls In Coloring Hair

By SOLANGE BERTRAND

As winter goes on, many women will be tempted to start coloring their hair out of sheer desire to do something to brighten up the season.

Fine! But beware of pitfalls that often leave the first - time colorist discouraged, not to say dismayed, with the results.

If trying color on oneself, it is unwise to plunge into blonding or permanent tinting. In the first place, how does one decide which color to use?

The first - time user's most common error is to visualize some dazzling shade she's always wanted to be. On the contrary, she should start with the present shade and glamorize it. Use rinses the temporary, one-shampoo colors that can be soaked out as easily as they were rinsed in.

Remember that a $25 watch may have the same movement as one priced much higher but decorations and case design probably will cost more.

Don't be misled by vague advertising terms such as "jeweled' 'or "gold-toned" case. If the watch has 17 jewels and the case is gold, platinum, or stainless steel the ad probably will say so.

And finally, remember that just because a watch bears a Swiss label it isn't necessarily a good timepiece. The Swiss make low-quality watches as well as fine ones.

A Good Fit

MRS. DALE SMITH

West Monroe Church Site Of Smith-Fuller Nuptials

Solemnized Friday, February 3 at 8 p.m. in the First Pentecostal church, was a double ring ceremony which united in marriage Miss Billie Rose Fuller and Dale Smith, both of West Monroe. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodis L. Fuller, West Monroe, and Mr. Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Smith Jr., of Natchez, Mississippi.

Rev. V. Arlen Guidroz, of Alexandria, brother - in - law of the bride, officiated at the exchange of vows, with Rev. E. W. Caughron, pastor of the church assisting.

Baskets of pink gladioli and asters, flanked by pink tapers in wrought - iron candelabra, draped in smilax, formed the altar setting at the church with large potted palms in the background.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Martha Thompson sang "Because," Rev. Guidroz sang, "The Wedding Prayer," and the bride sang, "Whither Thou Goest." They were accompanied by Mrs. Bonnie Fordham, organist, who also played traditional wedding marches.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of bridal satin with a sculptured bodice featuring a deep yoke of Chantilly lace, encrusted with seed pearls and forming high scallops at the neckline. Pearl encrusted lace motifs appliqued the bouffant waltz length skirt and were repeated on the long sleeves which tapered to lily points at the wrists. Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion, also adorned with the lace paillettes, was attached to a pill - box headdress of Alencon lace over silk, embellished with seed pearls. She carried a white lace - covered Bible, topped with a purple orchid in a cascade of lily of the valley.

Mrs. Robbie Guidroz, Alexandria, was her sister's matron of honor. She wore a mint green crystalette frock, fashioned with an elongated waistline and very full skirt. She wore matching gloves and shoes and a half hat to which was attached a circular veil and carried an arrangement of deep pink roses.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Pat Treadway of Jonesboro; Miss Juanita Wyatt of Vinton; Misses Sandra and Janet Smith of Natchez, Mississippi, sisters of the bridegroom; Miss Becky Caughron and Miss Diana Black, were dressed identical to the honor attendant and each carried a single long - stemmed pink rose.

Candlelighters were Larry Stevens, Monroe, and Miss Barbara Simpkins of Lake Charles, both cousins of the bride. Miss Simpkins was dressed similar to the other attendants and wore a wrist corsage of pink roses. Serving as flower girl was Debbie Thompson, whose mint green crystalette frock featured a full skirt of ruffles, with which she wore green satin slippers, green gloves and a headpiece of matching material, adorned with roses. She also carried a single long stemmed rose.

Gale Smith, twin brother of the bridegroom, served as best man and groomsmen were Lonnie Treadway Jr., Sam Bailey, Jimmie Nordan, R. C. Slocum, Lavoy Tingle and Jerry Clark. Ushers were Eddie Jones and Floyd Avery and ring bearer was DeWayne Hearold, cousin of the bridegroom.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Fuller was wearing a Dior blue lace dress with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Smith, mother of the bridegroom, wore a powder blue lace dress with matching accessories and a white carnation corsage.

A reception in the social room of the church followed the ceremony. The bride's table, covered in pink satin with a net overskirt, held a central arrangement of white flowers and pink candles. The tiered wedding cake was decorated in pink and green. Baskets of pink gladioli and asters formed a background for the receiving line.

Those assisting with the reception hospitalities were Mrs. Sudie Bratten, Mrs. Grace Cosby, Mrs. Wilma Hearold, Mrs. Medria Nordan, Mrs. Mildred Wyatt and Mrs. Ollie V. Stevens.

When the couple left for a wedding trip to the Gulf Coast, the bride was wearing a lilac sheath dress and jacket ensemble of silk hopsacking with matching hat and gloves and black patent accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

Upon their return the couple will be at home in West Monroe, where the bride is a student at West Monroe High School. Mr. Smith was graduated from Natchez High School and attended Southern Institute of Graphic Arts at Nashville, Tenn. He is at present employed in West Monroe.

Pat Rush Engaged To Mr. Bullock

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Pat Rush, Monroe, daughter of Mrs. Bill Rush, Oak Grove, and the late Mr. Rush, to Morris Bullock, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Bullock, West Monroe, is announced this weekend by the mother of the bride-elect.

The couple has selected March 4 as the date of their wedding which will be solemnized in the home of the bride's mother. Rev. J. D. Cheatham, pastor of Oak Grove Baptist church, will perform the 6 p.m. ceremony.

Serving as attendants for the couple will be Miss Billie Jean Rush, sister of the bride - elect, as maid of honor, and Raymond Bullock, brother of the future bridegroom, as best man.

Miss Rush is the granddaughter of Mrs. L. S. Gantt, Arcadia and Mrs. C. B. Smith of Shreveport. She graduated from Oak Grove high school and a Shreveport business college.

A graduate of West Monroe high school, Mr. Bullock is the grandson of Mrs. Robert Pace, Pela Hatcha, Miss. He is now employed in Monroe, where the couple will establish a home.

Child's Party Requires Plans For Success

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—The plan's the key to success when putting on a children's party.

Veteran party planners agree on ground rules for staging a successful party. For example:

—Check with Junior or Janie and decide on a theme for the party.

—Send invitations ten days to two weeks in advance of the date. Be very clear about stating how long the party will last. Don't forget to specify RSVP.

—Decide ahead of time on games and entertainment. Have a store of extra ideas in case some activities bore guests.

—Fix things so every guest goes home with a souvenir.

Amateur Warned Of Pitfalls In Coloring Hair

By SOLANGE BERTRAND

As winter goes on, many women will be tempted to start coloring their hair out of sheer desire to do something to brighten up the season.

Fine! But beware of pitfalls that often leave the first - time colorist discouraged, not to say dismayed, with the results.

If trying color on oneself, it is unwise to plunge into blonding or permanent tinting. In the first place, how does one decide which color to use?

The first - time user's most common error is to visualize some dazzling shade she's always wanted to be. On the contrary, she should start with the present shade and glamorize it. Use rinses the temporary, one-shampoo colors that can be sudsed out as easily as they were rinsed in.

Vera and Dick Troy have just returned from New York and a bit of theatre - going. They saw "Bye Bye Birdie," "Advise and Consent," "Sound of Music," "Irma La Deuce," and "Do Re Mi." While there they saw some old friends of the Monroe Little Theatre and had dinner with them — Ivan Uttal, Jack Ansell, and Slade Brown, co - producer of "Bye Bye Birdie." The national company of "Birdie" will open in Los Angeles in April. Jack Ansell has written a play which Ivan is directing and it will be produced at the Waldorf-Astoria. It is a charity affair. They are all doing fine and send greetings to their friends here.

RETURNED

Schurck Degen has just returned from New York, and while there, saw "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," "Do Re Mi," "Advise and Consent," "Taste of Honey," and "Becket." He especially enjoyed "Becket," starring Sir Lawrence Olivier.

The Bishop's Company, a unique repertory company now in its eighth year of touring coast to coast, will present C. S. Lewis' "The Great Divorce," in Grace Episcopal Church on Tuesday, February 7th, at 7:30 p.m. "The Great Divorce" is one of the six carefully selected works to be staged by The Bishop's Company. The play is an evening of brilliant wit, biting satire and high contest, making personal some of life's most soul searching questions.

The author takes the audience on an excursion (by bus) to the very borders of Heaven. Here they discover that inevitably there can be no marriage between Heaven and Hell, only "the great divorce."

The public is cordially invited to attend.

Don't forget — Call FAirfax 3-1236 between 2:00 and 7:00 p.m. beginning Tuesday to make your reservations for "The Mousetrap," which opens February 9th.

Deputy Believes Woman Excell At Fighting Fires

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Deputy Sheriff Robert Newman is convinced more women should be fighting fires.

El Paso County's rural fire department received an alarm for a grass fire.

Trouble was, when the firemen arrived, there was no fire. Five housewives had attached lengths of garden hose together, fastened it to the water tap of Mrs. J. D. Vinson.

When the firemen arrived, the gals not only had the fire out but had uncoupled the hose and gone home.

TUESDAY

'Great Divorce' To Appear Here

The dramatization of C. S. Lewis' "The Great Divorce" as presented by The Bishop's Company of Santa Barbara will be seen Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Grace Episcopal Church here. This is the unique repertory company which tours 51 weeks of the year from coast to coast and in Canada.

This unusual production takes "man," as an observer, on an excursion by omnibus to the borders of Heaven. His fellow passengers, residents of Hell, have decided to take this once-a-year trip to look over Heaven and rush to get off the bus upon arrival. They are met by their counterparts who are willing to help them earn their way across the great mountain to eternal happiness. Eventually each passenger goes back to the bus for the return trip willing to make the sacrifice necessary for this eternal happiness.

SKILLED CAST

"The Great Divorce" will be presented with a skilled cast of The Bishop's Company, founded in 1952 by Phyllis Benbow Beardsley.

The English theatre, as most people know, was born before the altar of the church. The long separation between church and stage is being brought to an end by The Bishop's Company. Its outstanding record includes 600,000 miles of travel in 48 states and Canada. Asking the congregation to share in the creation of the play is part of the technique of the company. No sets and few props are used.

The casts of the touring units are inter-faith. The company has a full schedule as part of the concert series of colleges and universities, as well as being highlighted on church calendars in all parts of the country. It is an independent organization named in honor of Bishop Gerald Kennedy of the Methodist Church.

Orwell's Novel Due For Stage

NEW YORK (AP) — A stage adaptation of George Orwell's novel "1948" is being planned for exhibit in Dallas, London and New York.

Wilton Hall Jr. plans to test the work at the Texas city's theater center next fall. It is under option for subsequent showing in London and eventually on Broadway.

Old Operettas Of Gilbert And Sullivan Rolling

NEW YORK (AP) —Broadway musicals come and go, but Gilbert & Sullivan keep rolling along.

Audience enthusiasm for the half - century - old operettas now has led to establishment of a repertory company as part of the permanent format for the City Center of Music and Drama.

The performing unit is the Center's fifth, lining up alongside the New York City Ballet, Operas, Drama and Light Opera troupes.

Morton Baum, finance chairman of the center, says the unit was created in response to the enthusiastic reception given occasional G & S performances by the opera company.

The first Savoyard regular season launched in January, will include "The Mikado," "The Pirates of Penzance," "H. M. S. Pinafore" and "The Gondoliers."

Gable, Monroe Star In Film At Paramount

The finest creative talents in the world of entertainment were brought together for the production of "The Misfits," the new film slated to open here today at the Paramount Theatre through United Artists release. The picture stars the late Clark Gable, Marilyn Monroe and Montgomery Clift, with Thelma Ritter and Eli Wallach co-starring.

John Huston, a virtuoso among film directors, a craftsman of drive, incisiveness and color, who meets the challenge of dramatic values with his own masterful methods of story telling, spearheaded the cinematic destiny of "The Misfits."

Frank E. Taylor is the producer. Editorial director of Dell Books, and at one time Arthur Miller's editor, Taylor took a leave of absence from his literary duties to produce the film.

Alex North, a giant in the world of music, is the composer of the film's original musical score. Russell Metty is the cameraman capturing the mood, intensity and violence of the picture.

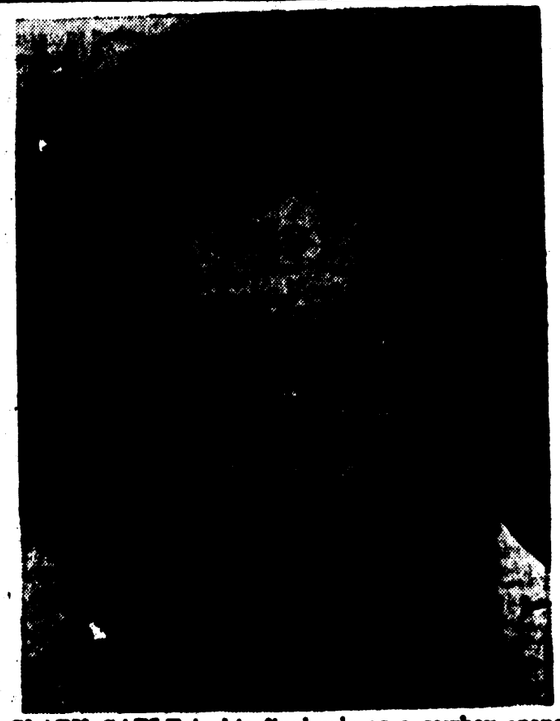
Filmed for the most part on location at Reno, Nevada, "The Misfits" is an electrifying drama of three independent men and one woman, and their attitudes toward the world in which they live. That world being the raw, carnival atmosphere of a small-time rodeo near Reno. There are scenes of carousing and brawling, all recreating the unique, rootless and root-seeking, section of Nevada, as it exists today. Gable and Miss Monroe are surely one of the most explosive pair of lovers in all screen history, and their love scenes range from the tender to the violent.

Marilyn Monroe is one of the best known personalities in motion pictures. Her recent pictures, "Some Like It Hot," and "Let's Make Love," are both in contrast to the serious role she plays in "The Misfits."

Montgomey Clift has been singled out for Academy Award nominations three times, in "The Search," "A Place in the Sun," and "From Here to Eternity."

Thelma Ritter, the distinguished actress, is a four - time Academy Award nominee for her performances in "All About Eve," "The Mating Season," "With a Song in My Heart" and "Pillow Talk."

Eli Wallach made his motion picture debut in "Baby Doll" and has recently been seen in "The Magnificent Seven." On the stage, he has been acclaimed for his many fine penetrating performances."



CLARK GABLE in his final role as a cowboy opens today at the Paramount in "The Misfits." Also starring in the United Artists' release are Marilyn Monroe, Montgomery Clift and Thelma Ritter.

Simultaneous Assignments

NEW YORK (AP) — Simultaneous assignments on stage and screen are being handled by Arthur Hill and Aline MacMahon.

Between performances of the Broadway drama "All the Way Home," Hill and Miss MacMahon are enacting important roles in "The Young Doctors," a film starring Frederic March.

Broadway Legit For Joey Adams

NEW YORK (AP) — Joey Adams, night club comic and president of the American Guild of Variety Artists, bows into Broadway legit in the upcoming "The Whole Darn Shooting Match."

The Jack Perry script is being staged by Jack Whiting, veteran dancer, for April premiere.

They are met by their counterparts who are willing to help them earn their way across the great mountain to eternal happiness. Eventually each passenger goes back to the bus for the return trip willing to make the sacrifice necessary for this eternal happiness.

SKILLED CAST

"The Great Divorce" will be presented with a skilled cast of The Bishop's Company, founded in 1952 by Phyllis Benbow Beardsley.

The English theatre, as most people know, was born before the altar of the church. The long separation between church and stage is being brought to an end by The Bishop's Company. Its outstanding record includes 600,000 miles of travel in 48 states and Canada. Asking the congregation to share in the creation of the play is part of the technique of the company. No sets and few props are used.

The casts of the touring units are inter-faith. The company has a full schedule as part of the concert series of colleges and universities, as well as being highlighted on church calendars in all parts of the country. It is an independent organization named in honor of Bishop Gerald Kennedy of the Methodist Church.

Orwell's Novel Due For Stage

NEW YORK (AP) — A stage adaptation of George Orwell's novel "1948" is being planned for exhibit in Dallas, London and New York.

Wilton Hall Jr. plans to test the work at the Texas city's theater center next fall. It is under option for subesquent showing in London and eventually on Broadway.

Old Operettas Of Gilbert And Sullivan Rolling

NEW YORK (AP) —Broadway musicals come and go, but Gilbert & Sullivan keep rolling along.

Audience enthusiasm for the half - century - old operettas now has led to establishment of a repertory company as part of the permanent format for the City Center of Music and Drama.

The performing unit is the Center's fifth, lining up alongside the New York City Ballet, Operas, Drama and Light Opera troupes.

Morton Baum, finance chairman of the center, says the unit was created in response to the enthusiastic reception given occasional G & S performances by the opera company.

The first Savoyard regular season launched in January, will include "The Mikado," "The Pirates of Penzance," "H. M. S. Pinafore" and "The Gondoliers."

Gable, Monroe Star In Film At Paramount

The finest creative talents in the world of entertainment were brought together for the production of "The Misfits," the new film slated to open here today at the Paramount Theatre through United Artists release. The picture stars the late Clark Gable, Marilyn Monroe and Montgomery Clift, with Thelma Ritter and Eli Wallach co-starring.

John Huston, a virtuoso among film directors, a craftsman of drive, incisiveness and color, who meets the challenge of dramatic values with his own masterful methods of story telling, spearheaded the cinematic destiny of "The Misfits."

Frank E. Taylor is the producer. Editorial director of Dell Books, and at one time Arthur Miller's editor, Taylor took a leave of absence from his literary duties to produce the film.

Alex North, a giant in the world of music, is the composer of the film's original musical score. Russell Metty is the cameraman capturing the mood, intensity and violence of the picture.

Filmed for the most part on location at Reno, Nevada, "The Misfits" is an electrifying drama of three independent men and one woman, and their attitudes toward the world in which they live. That world being the raw, carnival atmosphere of a small-time rodeo near Reno. There are scenes of carousing and brawling, all recreating the unique, rootless and root-seeking, section of Nevada, as it exists today. Gable and Miss Monroe are surely one of the most explosive pair of lovers in all screen history, and their love scenes range from the tender to the violent.

Marilyn Monroe is one of the best known personalities in motion pictures. Her recent pictures, "Some Like It Hot," and "Let's Make Love," are both in contrast to the serious role she plays in "The Misfits."

Montgomey Clift has been singled out for Academy Award nominations three times, in "The Search," "A Place in the Sun," and "From Here to Eternity."

Thelma Ritter, the distinguished actress, is a four - time Academy Award nominee for her performances in "All About Eve," "The Mating Season," "With a Song in My Heart" and "Pillow Talk."

Eli Wallach made his motion picture debut in "Baby Doll" and has recently been seen in "The Magnificent Seven." On the stage, he has been acclaimed for his many fine penetrating performances."

CLARK GABLE in his final role as a cowboy opens today at the Paramount in "The Misfits." Also starring in the United Artists' release are Marilyn Monroe, Montgomery Clift and Thelma Ritter.

Simultaneous Assignments

NEW YORK (AP) — Simultaneous assignments on stage and screen are being handled by Arthur Hill and Aline MacMahon.

Between performances of the Broadway drama "All the Way Home," Hill and Miss MacMahon are enacting important roles in "The Young Doctors," a film starring Frederic March.

Broadway Legit For Joey Adams

NEW YORK (AP) — Joey Adams, night club comic and president of the American Guild of Variety Artists, bows into Broadway legit in the upcoming "The Whole Darn Shooting Match."

The Jack Perry script is being staged by Jack Whiting, veteran dancer, for April premiere.

This statement was made by the atheist leader of a Godless nation. The open graves in Communist Slave Camps all over Eastern Europe cry out, "Liar!" You can help RADIO FREE EUROPE broadcast the truth of the Free World to 79 million people behind the Iron Curtain. For many, RADIO FREE EUROPE is the last link with freedom.

Broadcasting from 28 transmitters manned by excapees from communism, RFE reaches over 90% of these people despite communist jamming. But RFE needs money to do its job, to become more effective. It is privately supported and depends on individual Americans for its very existence.

Will you help fight communism and secure the future of your children in a free world? Can you give a dollar . . . five dollars . . . more?

Set School Of Missions At McGuire

A church-wide School of Missions will begin in McGuire Methodist Church in West Monroe today at 6 p.m. Theme for the school is "Into All The World Together."

Classes have been arranged for all ages, beginning with the five year olds. A nursery for smaller children will also be open during this period.

The school is a joint endeavor of the Commission on Missions, the Commission on Education, and the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the church. It is under the direction of Mrs. Charles Magown, chairman of the Missions Commission.

GROUPS

Working with kindergarten children are Mrs. James Alexander, Miss Janice Berlin; primary children, Mrs. Don Elliott, Mrs. Charles Huggins, Mrs. Carey Cheek; junior children, Mrs. Beth Blazier, Mrs. John Richey; Jr.-Hi Dept., Mr. and Mrs. Amos Hood; Sr.-Hi Dept., Mr. and Mrs. Pat Riser; older youth and adults, Mrs. Don Wineinger.

It has been pointed out that this is a study dealing with two ideas — the mission of the church, and the essential unity of Christians through their faith in Christ. The theme of the school will be keynoted in the evening worship service at the church, when the film, "Household of Faith" will be shown. The school is to continue for six successive Sunday nights.

Church Women Planning For Prayer Day

The United Church Women of Monroe and West Monroe are making plans for the local observance of World Day of Prayer, Friday, Feb. 17.

That day will mark the 73th anniversary of the observance. Theme for the occasion will be "Forward Through the Ages."

Leaders of the planning group said that Christians around the world will share in the fellowship of prayer on the first Friday of the Lent season.

In an announcement, they explained:

"Seventy - five years ago, one group of women met in one church to pray. On Feb 17th millions of women, men and children will gather in thousands of churches on six continents."

Adult services are scheduled at 10 a.m. that day at First Presbyterian Church, Monroe, and at 7:30 p.m. at the First Methodist Church of West Monroe.

Children's services will be held at the following sites at 3:30 p.m.: Memorial Methodist Church, Monroe; Convenant Presbyterian Church, Monroe; Southside Methodist Church, Monroe; Highland Presbyterian Church, West Monroe.

Officials also said that plans call for halting flow of traffic for one minute at 1 p.m. on World Day of Prayer to allow for a moment of prayer.

My Answer

By Billy Graham

QUESTION: As a young Christian I have recently become very interested in becoming a missionary. However, I do not believe I should go to the mission field without a call. How will I know when I receive such a call? P.A. McD.

ANSWER: I might answer you by inquiring as to whether or not you have had a call to stay home. If you are convinced of the need of missionary activity on the part of Christians, then you already have had a call to be a missionary. The only question is — where are you going to fulfill that mission and where will you serve the Lord?

Never forget, it is just as possible for you to serve Him where you are now as if you were to make a move of two or three thousand miles. Crossing the ocean never makes missionaries. The call you would receive to go to some other place, such as a foreign country, will come as you inform yourself of the spiritual, moral and physical need, and prayerfully wait for the open door. Otherwise, my advice to you is —be a missionary where you are!

Set School Of Missions At McGuire

A church-wide School of Missions will begin in McGuire Methodist Church in West Monroe today at 6 p.m. Theme for the school is "Into All The World Together."

Classes have been arranged for all ages, beginning with the five year olds. A nursery for smaller children will also be open during this period.

The school is a joint endeavor of the Commission on Missions, the Commission on Education, and the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the church. It is under the direction of Mrs. Charles Magown, chairman of the Missions Commission.

GROUPS

Working with kindergarten children are Mrs. James Alexander, Miss Janice Berlin; primary children, Mrs. Don Elliott, Mrs. Charles Huggins, Mrs. Carey Cheek; junior children, Mrs. Seth Blazier, Mrs. John Richey; Jr.-Hi Dept., Mr. and Mrs. Amos Hood; Sr.-Hi Dept., Mr. and Mrs. Pat Riser; older youth and adults, Mrs. Don Wineinger.

It has been pointed out that this is a study dealing with

THE HOME SHIFT

Blooms Near For Magnolia

By MILDRED SWIFT

It's about time for the white Japanese magnolia (denutata) to bloom. This belongs to the same family as the purple one, often mistakenly called tulip tree because the blooms look like tulips. The white is very beautiful but stays in bloom such a short time. The freeze usually gets these blossoms, but still it's worth while having a plant if you have room. They grow into small trees, but can be kept pruned.

ARDESIA

Ardesia is not particular as to to the need for small shrubs. It has a compact, upright growth habit and grows to about a two foot height. Its branch spread is about nine inches. It is relatively fast growing.

Ardesia produces terminal clusters of berries. The berries stay green all summer, change to red color in the fall. Birds like these berries.

The foliage is handsome. Glossy, lance-shaped leaves are dark green on top, lighter green underneath. The leaves, about two to three inches long are scalloped on the edges.

When planting ardesia, choose a partly shaded, semi-protected spot. The shrub is hardy in the open. Full shade is not recommended as it makes the growth too leggy. It grows well under the shelter of pine trees.

Ardesia is not particular as to soil requirements, but thrives in slightly acid soil such as suitable for azaleas and camellias. It is moisture loving and should be fertilized in March with 8-8-8. The shrub is not bothered by insects or disease and requires little or no pruning.

Ardesia reseeds itself from berries which drop on the ground. Balled and burlapped ardesia shrubs can be purchased in the nurseries and now is the time to plant them.

DIVIDE ASTERS

February is a good month to divide overgrown clumps of hardy asters. This will allow sufficient time for them to get established for spring blooming. The flowers are fine for cutting because they are long lasting. After a spike finishes blooming, break it off at the base and this will make several young plants.

Asters seem pretty free of insects and disease except for occasional red spider.

ALL AMERICAN

This year, three seed plants won the All America award. They are: Alyssum Rosia O'Day, rose colored; Petunia Coral Satin, a coral salmon color; Gloriosa Double Daisy is a perennial. One of the most remarkable things about alyssum Rosia O'Day is its size. It is only two inches tall, which makes it as low as a nice turf of grass. One of it's best uses is for a ground cover. Give it lots of room because it has a spread of 10 to 12 inches.

A good way to do that is to sow the seed fairly thick, hoping you'll get about three plants to the foot, or possibly more. Then as they grow and develop, thin them out gradually - first a few at a time, and ultimately until they are from 10 to 12 inches apart.

The A A S people have this to say about Rosia O'Day. "It holds its color even in western and southern heat, deep rose in color and it is a blanket of blooms. It's early to flower in the spring and is an all - season bloomer."

DOUBLE DAISY

The Gloriosa Double Daisy is entirely different and unique. It is a hardy perennial blooming freely the first year from seed. Its a big golden yellow daisy, actually a rudbeckia far removed from the old Black Eyed Susan type of flower and just as easy to grow. Plants are upright in growth with luxurious green foliage. Long stemmed flowers are well supported above the foliage and measure four inches or more across. Opening fully double, some flowers will eventually open wide to display the contrasting black button eye in the center. Flowering begins when plants are about two feet high, but they keep on growing to over three foot bushy plants with correspondingly long stemmed flowers. Start seeds early and transplant when soil may be worked in the spring (March).

CORAL SATIN

Coral Satin petunia is a hybrid. Its color is a rich coral salmon, almost light red as it opens, but quickly mellowing to a rich satiny salmon pink or coral with a satiny sheen. It belongs to the multiflora class, a 12 inch compact mounded plant with blooms simply covering the foliage. Flowers are of good size, plain petalled and make a beautiful display.

GARDEN JOBS

Any limbs that were broken from ice and freeze should be cut and the wound sealed with tree seal. It remains to be seen just how much cold damage was done. Don't rush in and start cutting back evergreens that look sick. Remember the heavy freeze of February, 1961? Even ligustrums were stripped of leaves. However, most of these put out leaves, some as late as June and July.

If you haven't pruned your crepe myrtles do this as soon as the weather permits. These plants start putting out leaves in March and you want to get all unnecessary wood out before then. Prune nandinas.

Fertilize all shrubs and trees this month or next. Finish transplanting and planting shrubs and trees during February.

Put poinsettias in a dark place. Water only enough to keep them alive.

Look over your list of annuals and perennials that can be planted in February. Get these planted when the soil is dry enough.

HOME FURNISHINGS

There wasn't much of a new look to the home furnishings mart in Chicago this winter. In fact, the offerings had quite an old look to them. There were considerable numbers of furnishings with the early American and Colonial look. This leads authorities in the field to believe that roughly two-thirds of the furniture moving into stores this spring will be of 18th Century design. However a lot of work has gone into these design revivals. Construction seems better, as does the finish. And they maintain an authenticity of line that has not been so apparent here to fore in low priced reproductions. Mahogany, walnut and cherry seem to be the favorite woods of the furniture makes.

Wallpaper is making a comeback in American homes. New designs, new color combinations and new materials are making a hit with the average buyer. However, design experts caution against selecting wallpaper on appearance only — since a number of new finishes have been added.

Be sure you know something about the wallpaper you are buying and the care it requires. For example, the term washable does not mean the same as scrubbable. A washable wallpaper is water resistant, but will not stand scrubbing with strong soap. A mild soap solution is recommended. This can be applied with a sponge. Go over the wall lightly — but don't use harsh strokes.

There are, of course, some plastic type or oil cloth type wall coverings that go well in the kitchen. These are less porous than regular wallpaper and resist stain and soiling.

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday and Tuesday Miss Fluffy will give us some fine rice recipes; Wednesday, flower arrangements with Gladys Kulche; Thursday and Friday, marketing with Mildred.

See you next Sunday.

'Meaningful' Stamp Issue On Refugees

Taking a backward glance for a moment at the hundreds of stamps issued by many nations all over the world during 1960, it would be difficult to point a finger at any one particular stamp as the "outstanding" issue of the year.

However, this column does agree with "Stamps," one of the most respected weekly philatelic publications, that the "most meaningful" would be the World Refugee Years stamps.

They were issued by nearly 80 different countries of the free world echoing a common plea for and publicizing the plight of the millions of unfortunate victims of tyranny and oppression in all corners of the globe. The prime mover behind the scenes was the United Nations.

The government of Ceylon has issued a special stamp to honor its late prime minister, the Honorable S. W. R. D. Bandaranaike. The 10 cents blue adhesive shows a three quarter head portrait of Mr. Bandaranaike. The stamps were printed by Courvoisier of Switzerland in sheets of 100.

The Republic of Korea has issued a three value set honoring Christmas and New Years. The 15 hwan shows a boy with a cow. The 25 hwan depicts the star of Bethlehem. The 30 hwan illustrates a girl holding a New Year's Day greeting.

Nigeria has issued a 13 value definitive set designed to depict the manifold cultural, economic, natural and technological resources of the Federation of Nigeria. The designs feature groundnuts, coal mining, education, pottery, weaving, Benin Mask, Oyo Carver, horn bill bird, camel train and map, Central Bank, Nigerian Museum, Kano Airport, and Lagos Terminal. The last four are airmails.

Haiti has overprinted its United Nations 15th anniversary set for UNICEF. The two airmails and one for regular postage are overprinted "UNICEF plus 25 centimes." The design depicts a view of the United Nations Building against a skyline of New York City.

Also reported from Haiti is a set of six values to mark the inauguration of the first steps in the construction of the international airport at Port-au-Prince. The stamps show jet planes in flight.

FOR GOOD PICTURE

Moment To Remember Cameraman Catches

A MOMENT'S MEMORY, captured when seen and preserved in its natural light and action, makes a family memento for all time.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

The other night, I happened to pass my teenage daughter's room after she had bid us "Good night." She was still up, sitting cross - legged on the bed, busily writing in her diary. The lamp highlighted one side of her with a beautiful edge light that conveyed the story of what she was doing simply, expressively and naturally.

"What a nice picture!" I thought. Normally, it might have stopped at that but fortunately I felt ambitious, my camera happened to be handy and it had fast film in it. In the two minutes that it took to get the camera and return, nothing had changed.

"Just keep on with what you're doing," I cautioned as my daughter glanced up and saw me with the camera. I was glad that my family had learned one lesson thoroughly: to pay no attention to a camera in use. But better than that, she was so absorbed in what she was doing that the scene remained the same . . . instructions or no instructions.

METER READING

With Tri-X film rated at 400 ASA, the meter reading was 1-30 of a second at f-4. I took a shot from the doorway, came in closer and took several more snaps, varying the angle slightly. The camera was back in its case within five minutes.

The pictures that resulted are a wonderful return on the few moments invested in photographic effort. They make a delightful and permanent record of a precious memory that would have dimmed with time. They made me think of the many other times I had let similar family scenes slip by because I wasn't prepared to shoot immediately or it was "too much trouble".

"I'm aware of the alibis used by camera fans to justify inaction because I've thought of them too. "Probably not enough light so why bother?" is a common excuse.

SOMEONE SAID

"If you can see it, you can photograph it!" some one has said, and it's truer today than ever before. The point is that you certainly have to try it or you'll never know whether you can or not. In any event, the least you can do is to open the lens to its widest aperture and set the shutter speed to the slowest handheld speed, 1-25 of a second, and shoot.

In cases of doubt or where it's difficult to get an accurate meter reading, it's best to bracket the exposures. This often - used trick of professional photographers is a means of hedging or playing it safe. First they settle on their best guess and make an exposure. Secondly they double the exposure by opening the lens one stop. And on the third shot, they halve the exposure by closing the lens down one stop more than the first. One out of the set is likely to be correct.

Another thing to try in low - light situations is slow camera speeds like 1-5th, 1-10th and ½ second exposures. However, the camera must be steadied by propping it against a wall or door edge if there is no table or chair back handy. Of course if a tripod were available, there'd be no need for make-do substitute.

There's also the string trick to steady a camera. The string, tied to the camera, must be long enough to reach the floor from shooting position. By stepping on the end and keeping the string very taut, the camera is held firm by the upward and downward pressure.

EXTENSION NEWS

Plant Food Is Important

By AUDREY DAWSON

February and March are the months to fertilize those plants, Mrs. Gardener — but be sure you take care not to over fertilize your shrubbery. Many people harm plants with too much fertilizer. Never apply more than four ounces of fertilizer (about ⅛ cup) per square yard of bed area at one time. This amount should be applied by broadcast, and not in bands. If the bed area is only ½ square yard, apply 2 ounces (about ¼ cup) at one time — no more.

Use fertilizer such as 8-8-8 around your plants. This is a complete fertilizer which contains eight per cent nitrogen, eight per cent phosphorus, and eight per cent potash.

You, Mrs. Gardener, will want to use a mulch in those flowerbeds to keep down weeds and grass to hold moisture and to add humus to the soil. The use of sawdust as a mulch adds organic matter to your soil and decomposes quickly. Of course, pine needles and oak leaves are good mulches also. If you do not want to pull weeds and grass in those flower beds, a good mulch is a must, and, too, the labor cost is high for weed pulling.

REMINDER

Mrs. L. J. Bower, president of the Parish Council, asked me to remind the home demonstration members that the council meeting will be held Friday, February 10th, at 10:00 a.m. in the Agricultural Building.

Yours truly will hold the second sewing workshop at the Agricultural Building in West Monroe this week on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. The homemakers who will be with the agent this week are: Mrs. Pat Wright, Mrs. Ruth Hathaway, Mrs. W. A. Agin, Mrs. J. A. Coon, Mrs. Claude Davidson, Mrs. J. H. Holley, Mrs. Jesse W. Jackson, Mrs. Claude Davidson, Mrs. Guy Gannaway, Mrs. Norman Deaton, Mrs. H. B. Hawkins, Mrs. Nancy Smith, Mrs. E. W. Earl, and Mrs. Bill Bardwell.

HOMEMAKER HINTS

Don't bake cookies in pans with deep sides, because they won't brown easily.

The tablespoon of the measuring spoon set is an excellent tool to speed the making of meat balls or ball cookies.

When baking fish, line pans with aluminum foil for an easy cleanup job.

Canned cranberry sauce cuts so nicely into hearts — so it is excellent for St. Valentine Day decorations for the table.

SOMETHING NEW

Doctors may soon be using microphones to help in the diagnosis of arthritis. Dr. Herbert Fischer, of the Rehabilitation Institute in Chicago, reported at the International Congress of Physical Medicine that a microphone fastened to the knees can detect rheumatoid arthritis before any changes could show up on X-ray. According to Dr. Fischer, osteoarthritis knees give off high-frequency bursts at irregular intervals while normal knee sounds are relatively uniform in intensity, frequency and wave pattern.

BABY COLIC

The first three months of a baby's life are the hardest on the parents. Dr. Williams D. Little, Jr., of Fredericksburg, Va. conducted a study of 28 colicky babies, aged 11 to 70 days, all of whom were at home under their mothers' care. One group of babies received bonadoxin drops, the other group received sugar water. To make the test objective, neither group of mothers knew whether they were giving the medication or the sugar water. Fourteen of the 15 babies receiving bonadoxin improved notably. The 15th baby was later found to have a milk allergy and improved dramatically when switched to a non - milk diet. Ten of the 13 babies on sugar water showed no improvement, while three did improve. Fruit flavored bonadoxin drops, Dr. Little concludes, are of considerable value in the treatment of infant colic.

POLISHING FURNITURE

Polishing furniture every few weeks doesn't help it. Our specialist recommends polishing about twice a year. Oiled walnut finishes generally are cleaned with boiled linseed oil, but Mrs. Jessie Hill, specialist of LSU, advises you to follow the instructions that come with the furniture. Don't experiment. Wood experts warn that pre - treatments with some easy to do polish forms a film almost impossible to remove.

A THOUGHT

A smile is a curve that can set a lot of things straight.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Good Purpose For Yaupons

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

In front of a handsome old historic house with a porch on its front, the present day owners made a foundation planting of yaupons and nandinas. As the yaupons grew taller and taller, they screened the front windows from the blazing sunlight which had made the front porch and rooms of the house almost uninhabitable before the yaupons were there.

Time went on, and the yaupons became so dense that they made the house and porch gloomy. The owner decided that he would experiment. He clipped the dense yaupons back until they were only a foot thick and seven feet tall — a perfect screen which let just the right amount of sunlight into the porch and house. To his astonishment, he has been able to keep this screen at approximately the same thickness for some six years, now, and intends to keep it as the perfect screen.

GOOD EXAMPLE

This experiment with our native yaupon from the coastal regions is a good example of how we southerners are slowly discovering the usefulness of this shrub in our yards and gardens. We have mentioned in the column several times what a fine hedge the "dwarf" yaupon makes. More and more southern nurseryies are carrying it, and people who live outside the areas where boxwood is practical and these who do not wish to nurse boxwood are planting it.

If the Englishmen and Europeans of the 17th and 18th centuries had had yaupon, they could have clipped it into no telling what shapes with no trouble at all. Some of the formal gardens in Florida have all kinds of shapes and forms — including animals — made out of yaupon. If you suddenly become enamored with this idea, however, be sure to practice your art on the "dwarf" kind, because the ordinary kind will keep you busy trimming your animals back into shape. We prefer to call the dwarf variety the slow growing variety. It is not truly dwarf, as it will, in time, grow to great size, even though very slowly.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Plant Bulbs Of Gladiolus

By MARY M. JARDINE

By GLADYS M. KULCKE
Guest Writer

Begin planting gladiolus corms or bulbs in February. In order to have continuous blooms plant gladiolus every two weeks. They will grow well in any garden soil, but do best in an enriched sandy loam. Best results will probably be obtained if gladiolus are planted in rows, three feet apart, spaced four to six inches apart in the row. When planted in beds the rows should be at least one foot apart.

Work the soil well and work in an application of complete commercial fertilizer several days before planting. Plant the corms in trenches so that they will be covered with three or four inches of soil.

Water and cultivation is especially essential at the time the bloom stalks is elongating and when the florets are opening. The soil should be thoroughly soaked about once a week during periods of dreuth.

After foliage has yellowed the corms can be dug from the garden. Clean and dry thoroughly. Put in a shallow box and cover with moth flakes or dust with five per cent DDT. Store in a place that is cool. Don't buy inferior gladiolus bulbs. Good gladiolus bulbs are almost round and have a high crown. Large, sprawly ones are inferior stock.

The Winnsboro Garden Club exhibited a pretty and varied flower show at the Garden Center last week.

An exotic arrangement was made by Mrs. B. G. Coulter. An oval grey-green container placed on a black oblong base was used for her design. Yucca was clipped to form a semi-circle. From the top down the yucca was cut diminishing in length to a degree sufficient to attain rhythm.

One large golden yellow mum with a small mum and buds were placed to form the focal area. Loquat leaves were used opposite the yucca giving an asymmetrical balance to the over all design. A lovely arrangement for an oblong table.

Miss Rowena Ramage chose a silver compote placed on a mahogany base for her diagonal design. Graceful curved branches of winged elm formed the upper and lower lines of the design. Red carnations formed the focal area. Red nandina and photinia foliage were used as fillers. A pretty arrangement for the living room table.

Mrs. Joe Pankie made an asymmetrical balanced composition of dried materials. A brass pillow vase was placed on a tiered maple base. Pink Celosia was placed to hang loosely over the rim of the container and extend up the vertical part of the design. Brown bean pods placed on either side of the celosia emphasized the focal area. Dried pale-green grass seeds filled in the voids at the focal area. Spikes of grass seeds, aspidistra and cat tails formed the vertical line. An interesting combination of materials well applied in the composition.

Mrs. Rob Simon made a buffet arrangement for that Valentine Party. She stood a red sytrafoam heart near one end of an oblong green styrafoam base. Evergreen cedar was used with red plastic roses. Large fully open roses were clustered at the base of the heart. Branches of cedar followed the curved line of the heart forming a background for rose buds and small roses. On the opposite side the cedar and roses were placed horizontally following the line of the base.

Woods Ghosts Reminders Of Another Era

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

There are ghosts in the woods to keep alive memories of a once flourishing American nut and timber industry. The ghosts, some of them showing sprouts of life, are the gray remains of the American chestnut trees that abounded in the east a little more than a century ago.

When we were very young, grandfather used to take us into the woods of his farm near Springfield, Mass., and point to the trees ravaged by a blight that slipped into this country from the Orient and relentlessly spread to virtually every commercial chestnut grove. The blight fungus was carried by birds, insects and wind.

For 50 years now, forest researchers have been trying to revive the chestnut, with small success.

MAJOR HOPE

The major hope lies in several hundred large trees that have survived the fungus Edothia parasitica. You can help in the fight. If you know of a large tree that still produces nuts, Dr. Jesse Diller of The U. S. Department of Agriculture Forest Service, Laurel Park, Md., would appreciate being advised.

Dr. Diller hopes to find a tree that not only has escaped the blight, but one that has a high degree of disease resistance.

"Such a tree," he says, "if its progeny are also resistant to the disease, could provide means by which the American chestnut could be helped to grow in our forests again."

The researchers test blight resistance in several ways. One method is to artificially inoculate existing chestnut trees with the blight fungus. Another is to obtain scionwood from blight - resistant trees to graft on small seedlings in areas where blight is present. Resistant trees will live; others will die after sufficient exposure to the disease.

The work is going on in at least 28 states, where cooperators have grafted material on seedlings. In this way, Dr. Diller explained, "we can be reasonably sure that grafted trees that survive in all these different places, from scionwood from a single source, have an excellent chance of being blight resistant. Later these trees also would be subjected to artificial inoculations as final proof.

SCARRED

Some of the trees that have survived are scarred by infections that have healed.

Dr. Diller said that more than 300 importations of seed and scions of nearly every type of chestnut species in the world have been made in the effort to get a good American chestnut.

Thousands of seedlings are distributed annually to land owners.

One variety of Chinese chestnut planted at Jackson County, N.C. 35 years ago has done quite well. But the Chinese variety is not very winter - hardy and needs special soil conditions.

There are trees almost as old in Delaware and Pennsylvania. In the Ozarks near Rosati, Mo., an Italian immigrant planted 120 trees nearly 60 years ago — two years before the blight first struck at New York City. The blight and time have eliminated about 70 of them but new ones have been planted.

A few trees are known to have survived in New York State, Missouri, Maryland, Virginia, Connecticut and Michigan. Many new ones planted grow to near maturity, then are girdled by the blight. In 1948, a scientist attached to the Knolls (atomic) Research Laboratory planted two Chinese chestnuts in his yard at Scotia, near Albany, N. Y. They were attacked by the blight but have survived and are now 20 - 25 feet tall, and appear healthy.

Stage Circuit Strenuous For Young Actress

NEW YORK (AP) — Jane Hoffman is a young actress on strenuous stage circuit.

Besides handling a first act role in Broadway's drama "The Rhinoceros," Miss Hoffman has taken over the feminine lead in off-Broadway production of "The American Dream." She got the latter call when another player decided the role was not for her.

An exact timetable enables Miss Hoffman to get across town in time for costume changes, even on matinee days when there are extra performances.

First American In Play's Lead

NEW YORK (AP) —Ann Moser is the first American girl assigned to the title role of "My Fair Lady" in that hit musical's five-year White Way run.

Miss Moser has taken over the part previously performed by Julie Andrews, Sally Ann Howes and Pamela Charles, all British.

Blooms Near For Magnolia

By MILDRED SWIFT

It's about time for the white Japanese magnolia (denutata) to bloom. This belongs to the same family as the purple one, often mistakenly called tulip tree because the blooms look like tulips. The white is very beautiful but stays in bloom such a short time. The freeze usually gets these blossoms, but still it's worth while buying a plant if you have room. They grow into small trees, but can be kept pruned.

ARDESIA

Ardesia is not particular as to to the need for small shrubs. It has a compact, upright growth habit and grows to about a two foot height. Its branch spread is about nine inches. It is relatively fast growing.

Ardesia produces terminal clusters of berries. The berries stay green all summer, change to red color in the fall. Birds like these berries.

The foliage is handsome. Glossy, lance-shaped leaves are dark green on top, lighter green underneath. The leaves, about two to three inches long are scalioped on the edges.

When planting ardesia, choose a partly shaded, semi-protected spot. The shrub is hardy in the open. Full shade is not recommended as it makes the growth too leggy. It grows well under the shelter of pine trees.

Ardesia is not particular as to soil requirements, but thrives in slightly acid soil such as suitable for azaleas and camellias. It is moisture loving and should be fertilized in March with 8-8-8. The shrub is not bothered by insects or disease and requires little or no pruning.

Ardesia reseeds itself from berries which drop on the ground. Balled and burlapped ardesia shrubs can be purchased in the nurseries and now is the time to plant them.

DIVIDE ASTERS

February is a good month to divide overgrown clumps of hardy asters. This will allow sufficient time for them to get established for spring blooming. The flowers are fine for cutting because they are long lasting. After a spike finishes blooming, break it off at the base and this will make several young plants.

Asters seem pretty free of insects and disease except for occasional red spider.

ALL AMERICA

This year, three seed plants won the All America award. They are: Alyssum Rosia O'Day, rose colored; Petunia Coral Satin, a coral salmon color; Gloriasa Double Daisy is a perennial. One of the most remarkable things about alyssum Rosia O'Day is its size. It is only two inches tall, which makes it as low as a nice turf of grass. One of it's best uses is for a ground cover. Give it lots of room because it has a spread of 10 to 12 inches.

A good way to do that is to sow the seed fairly thick, hoping you'll get about three plants to the foot, or possibly more. Then as they grow and develop, thin them out gradually - first a few at a time, and ultimately until they are from 10 to 12 inches apart.

The A A S people have this to say about Rosia O'Day. "It holds its color even in western and southern heat, deep rose in color and it is a blanket of blooms. It's early to flower in the spring and is an all - season bloomer."

DOUBLE DAISY

The Gloriosa Double Daisy is entirely different and unique. It is a hardy perennial blooming freely the first year from seed. Its a big golden yellow daisy, (actually a rudbeckia) far removed from the old Black Eyed Susan type of flower and just as easy to grow. Plants are upright in growth with luxurious green foliage. Long stemmed flowers are well supported above the foliage and measure four inches or more across. Opening fully double, some flowers will eventually open wide to display the contrasting black button eye in the center. Flowering begins when plants are about two feet high, but they keep on growing to over three foot bushy plants with correspondingly long stemmed flowers. Start seeds early and transplant when soil may be worked in the spring (March).

CORAL SATIN

Coral Satin petunia is a hybrid. Its color is a rich coral salmon, almost light red as it opens, but quickly mellowing to a rich satiny salmon pink or coral with a satiny sheen. It belongs to the multiflora class, a 12 inch compact mounded plant with blooms simply covering the foliage. Flowers are of good size, plain petalled and make a beautiful display.

GARDEN JOBS

Any limbs that were broken from ice and freeze should be cut and the wound sealed with tree seal. It remains to be seen just how much cold damage was done. Don't rush in and start cutting back evergreens that look sick. Remember the heavy freeze of February, 1951? Even ligustrums were stripped of leaves. However, most of these put out leaves, some as late as June and July.

If you haven't pruned your crepe myrtles do this as soon as the weather permits. These plants start putting out leaves in March and you want to get all unnecessary wood out before then. Prune nandinas.

Fertilize all shrubs and trees this month or next. Finish transplanting and planting shrubs and trees during February.

Put poinsettias in a dark place. Water only enough to keep them alive.

Look over your list of annuals and perennials that can be planted in February. Get these planted when the soil is dry enough.

HOME FURNISHINGS

There wasn't much of a new look to the home furnishings mart in Chicago this winter. In fact, the offerings had quite an old look to them. There were considerable numbers of furnishings with the early American and Colonial look. This leads authorities in the field to believe that roughly two-thirds of the furniture moving into stores this spring will be of 18th Century design. However a lot of work has gone into these design revivals. Construction seems better, as does the finish. And they maintain an authenticity of line that has not been so apparent here to fore in low priced reproductions. Mahogany, walnut and cherry seem to be the favorite woods of the furniture makes.

Wallpaper is making a comeback in American homes. New designs, new color combinations and new materials are making a hit with the average buyer. However, design experts caution against selecting wallpaper on appearance only — since a number of new finishes have been added.

Be sure you know something about the wallpaper you are buying and the care it requires. For example, the term washable does not mean the same as scrubbable. A washable wallpaper is water resistant, but will not stand scrubbing with strong soap. A mild soap solution is recommended. This can be applied with a sponge. Go over the wall lightly — but don't use harsh strokes.

There are, of course, some plastic type or oil cloth type wall coverings that go well in the kitchen. These are less porous than regular wallpaper and resist stain and soiling.

'Meaningful' Stamp Issue On Refugees

Taking a backward glance for a moment at the hundreds of stamps issued by many nations all over the world during 1960, it would be difficult to point a finger at any one particular stamp as the "outstanding" issue of the year.

However, this column does agree with "Stamps," one of the most respected weekly philatelic publications, that the "most meaningful" would be the World Refugee Years stamps.

These were issued by nearly 80 different countries of the free world echoing a common plea for and publicizing the plight of the millions of unfortunate victims of tyranny and oppression in all corners of the globe. The prime mover behind the scenes was the United Nations.

The government of Ceylon has issued a special stamp to honor its late prime minister, the Honorable S. W. R. D. Bandaranaike. The 10 cents blue adhesive shows a three quarter head portrait of Mr. Bandaranaike. The stamps were printed by Courvoisier of Switzerland in sheets of 100.

The Republic of Korea has issued a three value set honoring Christmas and New Years. The 15 hwan shows a boy with a cow. The 25 hwan depicts the star of Bethlehem. The 30 hwan illustrates a girl holding a New Year's Day greeting.

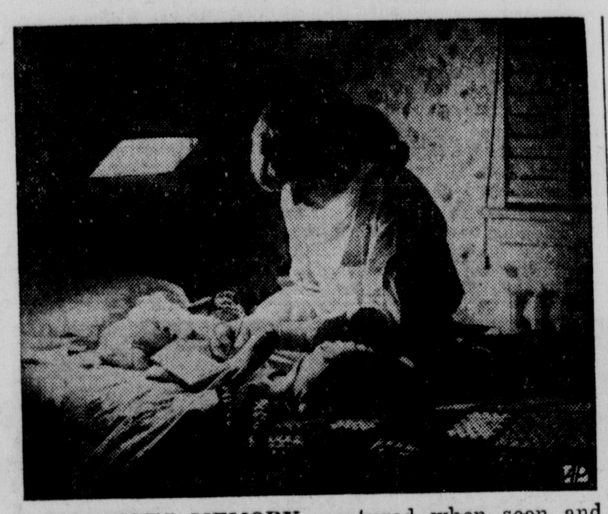
Nigeria has issued a 13 value definitive set designed to depict the manifold cultural, economic, natural and technological resources of the Federation of Nigeria. The designs feature groundnuts, coal mining, education, pottery, weaving, Benin Mask, Oyo Carver, horn bill bird, camel train and map, Central Bank, Nigerian Museum, Kano Airport, and Lagos Terminal. The last four are airmails.

Haiti has overprinted its United Nations 15h anniversary set for UNICEF. The two airmails and one for regular postage are overprinted "UNICEF plus 25 centimes." The design depicts a view of the United Nations Building against a skyline of New York City.

Also reported from Haiti is a set of six values to mark the inauguration of the first steps in the construction of the international airport at Port-au-Prince. The stamps show jet planes in flight.

FOR GOOD PICTURE

Moment To Remember Cameraman Catches



A MOMENT'S MEMORY, captured when seen and preserved in its natural light and action, makes a family memento for all time.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

The other night, I happened to pass my teenage daughter's room after she had bid us "Good night." She was still up, sitting cross - legged on the bed, busily writing in her diary. The lamp highlighted one side of her with a beautiful edge light that conveyed the story of what she was doing simply, expressively and naturally.

"What a nice picture!" I thought. Normally, it might have stopped at that but fortunately I felt ambitious, my camera happened to be handy and it had fast film in it. In the two minutes that it took to get the camera and return, nothing had changed.

"Just keep on with what you're doing," I cautioned as my daughter glanced up and saw me with the camera. I was glad that my family had learned one lesson thoroughly: to pay no attention to a camera in use. But better than that, she was so absorbed in what she was doing that the scene remained the same . . . instructions or no instructions.

METER READING

With Tri-X film rated at 400 ASA, the meter reading was 1-30 of a second at f-4. I took a shot from the doorway, came in closer and took several more snaps, varying the angle slightly. The camera was back in its case within five minutes.

The pictures that resulted are a wonderful return on the few moments invested in photographic effort. They make a delightful and permanent record of a precious memory that would have dimmed with time. They made me think of the many other times I had let similar family scenes slip by because I wasn't prepared to shoot immediately or it was "too much trouble".

"I'm aware of the alibis used by camera fans to justify inaction because I've thought of them too. "Probably not enough light so why bother?" is a common excuse.

SOMEONE SAID

"If you can see it, you can photograph it!" some one has said, and it's truer today than ever before. The point is that you certainly have to try it or you'll never know whether you can or not. In any event, the least you can do is to open the lens to its widest aperture and set the shutter speed to the slowest hand-held speed, 1-25 of a second, and shoot.

In cases of doubt or where it's difficult to get an accurate meter reading, it's best to bracket the exposures. This often - used trick of professional photographers is a means of hedging or playing it safe. First they settle on their best guess and make an exposure. Secondly they double the exposure by opening the lens one stop. And on the third shot, they halve the exposure by closing the lens down one stop more than the first. One out of the set is likely to be correct.

Another thing to try in low - light situations is slow camera speeds like 1-5th, 1-10th and ½ second exposures. However, the camera must be steadied by propping it against a wall or door edge if there is no table or chair back handy. Of course if a tripod were available, there'd be no need for make-do substitute.

There's also the string trick to steady a camera. The string, tied to the camera, must be long enough to reach the floor from shooting position. By stepping on the end and keeping the string very taut, the camera is held firm by the upward and downward pressure.

EXTENSION NEWS

Plant Food Is Important

By AUDREY DAWSON

February and March are the months to fertilize those plants, Mrs. Gardener — but be sure you take care not to over fertilize your shrubbery. Many people harm plants with too much fertilizer. Never apply more than four ounces of fertilizer (about ½ cup) per square yard of bed area at one time. This amount should be applied by broadcast, and not in bands. If the bed area is only ½ square yard, apply 2 ounces (about ¼ cup) at one time — no more.

Use fertilizer such as 8-8-8 around your plants. This is a complete fertilizer which contains eight per cent nitrogen, eight per cent phosphorus, and eight per cent potash.

You, Mrs. Gardener, will want to use a mulch in those flower beds to keep down weeds and grass to hold moisture and to add humus to the soil. The use of sawdust as a mulch adds organic matter to your soil and decomposes quickly. Of course, pine needles and oak leaves are good mulches also. If you do not want to pull weeds and grass in those flower beds, a good mulch is a must, and, too, the labor cost is high for weed pulling.

REMINDER

Mrs. L. J. Bower, president of the Parish Council, asked me to remind the home demonstration members that the council meeting will be held Friday, February 10th, at 10:00 a.m. in the Agricultural Building.

Yours truly will hold the second sewing workshop at the Agricultural Building in West Monroe this week on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. The homemakers who will be with the agent this week are: Mrs. Pat Wright, Mrs. Ruth Hathaway, Mrs. W. A. Agin, Mrs. J. A. Coon, Mrs. Claude Davidson, Mrs. J. H. Holley, Mrs. Jesse W. Jackson, Mrs. Claude Davidson, Mrs. Guy Gannaway, Mrs. Norman Deaton, Mrs. H. B. Hawkins, Mrs. Nancy Smith, Mrs. E. W. Earl, and Mrs. Bill Bardwell.

HOMEMAKER HINTS

Don't bake cookies in pans with deep sides, because they won't brown easily.

The tablespoon of the measuring spoon set is an excellent tool to speed the making of meat balls or ball cookies.

When baking fish, line pans with aluminum foil for an easy cleanup job.

Canned cranberry sauce cuts so nicely into hearts — so it is excellent for St. Valentine Day decorations for the table.

SOMETHING NEW

Doctors may soon be using microphones to help in the diagnosis of arthritis. Dr. Herbert Fischer, of the Rehabilitation Institute in Chicago, reported at the International Congress of Physical Medicine that a microphone fastened to the knees can detect rheumatoid arthritis before any changes could show up on X-ray. According to Dr. Fischer, osteoarthritis knees give off high-frequency bursts at irregular intervals while normal knee sounds are relatively uniform in intensity, frequency and wave pattern.

BABY COLIC

The first three months of a baby's life are the hardest on the parents. Dr. Williams D. Little, Jr., of Fredericksburg, Va. conducted a study of 28 colicky babies, aged 11 to 70 days, all of whom were at home under their mothers' care. One group of babies received bonadoxin drops, the other group received sugar water. To make the test objective, neither group of mothers knew whether they were giving the medication or the sugar water. Fourteen of the 15 babies receiving bonadoxin improved notably. The 15th baby was later found to have a milk allergy and improved dramatically when switched to a non - milk diet. Ten of the 13 babies on sugar water showed no improvement, while three did improve. Fruit flavored bonadoxin drops, Dr. Little concludes, are of considerable value in the treatment of infant colic.

POLISHING FURNITURE

Polishing furniture every few weeks doesn't help it. Our specialist recommends polishing about twice a year. Oiled walnut finishes generally are cleaned with boiled linseed oil, but Mrs. Jessie Hill, specialist of LSU, advises you to follow the instructions that come with the furniture. Don't experiment. Wood experts warn that pre - treatments with some easy to do polish forms a film almost impossible to remove.

A THOUGHT

A smile is a curve that can set a lot of things straight.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Good Purpose For Yaupons

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

In front of a handsome old historic house with a porch on its front, the present day owners made a foundation planting of yaupons and nandinas. As the yaupons grew taller and taller, they screened the front windows from the blazing sunlight which had made the front porch and rooms of the house almost uninhabitable before the yaupons were there.

Time went on, and the yaupons became so dense that they made the house and porch gloomy. The owner decided that he would experiment. He clipped the dense yaupons back until they were only a foot thick and seven feet tall — a perfect screen which let just the right amount of sunlight into the porch and house. To his astonishment, he has been able to keep this screen at approximately the same thickness for some six years, now, and intends to keep it as the perfect screen.

GOOD EXAMPLE

This experiment with our native yaupon from the coastal regions is a good example of how we southerners are slowly discovering the usefulness of this shrub in our yards and gardens. We have mentioned in the column several times what a fine hedge the "dwarf" yaupon makes. More and more southern nurseryies are carrying it, and people who live outside the areas where boxwood is practical and those who do not wish to nurse boxwood are planting it.

If the Englishmen and Europeans of the 17th and 18th centuries had had yaupon, they could have clipped it into no telling what shapes with no trouble at all. Some of the formal gardens in Florida have all kinds of shapes and forms — including animals — made out of yaupon. If you suddenly become enamored with this idea, however, be sure to practice your art on the "dwarf" kind, because the ordinary kind will keep you busy trimming your animals back into shape. We prefer to call the dwarf variety the slow growing variety. It is not truly dwarf, as it will, in time, grow to great size, even though very slowly.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Plant Bulbs Of Gladiolus

By MARY M. JARDINE

By GLADYS M. KULCKE
Guest Writer

Begin planting gladiolus corms or bulbs in February. In order to have continuous blooms plant gladiolus every two weeks. They will grow well in any garden soil, but do best in an enriched sandy loam. Best results will probably be obtained if gladiolus are planted in rows, three feet apart, spaced four to six inches apart in the row. When planted in beds the rows should be at least one foot apart.

Work the soil well and work in an application of complete commercial fertilizer several days before planting. Plant the corms in trenches so that they will be covered with three or four inches of soil.

Water and cultivation is especially essential at the time the bloom stalks is elongating and when the florets are opening. The soil should be thoroughly soaked about once a week during periods of drouth.

After foliage has yellowed the corms can be dug from the garden. Clean and dry thoroughly. Put in a shallow box and cover with moth flakes or dust with five per cent DDT. Store in a place that is cool. Don't buy inferior gladiolus bulbs. Good gladiolus bulbs are almost round and have a high crown. Large, sprawly ones are inferior stock.

The Winnsboro Garden Club exhibited a pretty and varied flower show at the Garden Center last week.

An exotic arrangement was made by Mrs. B. G. Coulter. An oval grey-green container placed on a black oblong base was used for her design. Yucca was clipped to form a semi-circle. From the top down the yucca was cut diminishing in length to a degree sufficient to attain rhythm.

One large golden yellow mum with a small mum and buds were placed to form the focal area. Loquat leaves were used opposite the yucca giving an asymmetrical balance to the over all design. A lovely arrangement for an oblong table.

Miss Rowena Ramage chose a silver compote placed on a mahogany base for her diagonal design. Graceful curved branches of winged elm formed the upper and lower lines of the design. Red carnations formed the focal area. Red nandina and photinia foliage were used as fillers. A pretty arrangement for the living room table.

Mrs. Joe Pankie made an asymmetrical balanced composition of dried materials. A brass pillow vase was placed on a tiered maple base. Pink Celosia was placed to hang loosely over the rim of the container and extend up the vertical part of the design. Brown bean pods placed on either side of the celosia emphasized the focal area. Dried pale-green grass seeds filled in the voids at the focal area. Spikes of grass seeds, aspidistra and cat tails formed the vertical line. An interesting combination of materials well applied in the composition.

Mrs. Rob Simon made a buffet arrangement for that Valentine Party. She stood a red sytrafoam heart near one end of an oblong green styrafoam base. Evergreen cedar was used with red plastic roses. Large fully open roses were clustered at the base of the heart. Branches of cedar followed the curved line of the heart forming a background for rose buds and small roses. On the opposite side the cedar and roses were placed horizontally following the line of the base.

Woods Ghosts Reminders Of Another Era

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

There are ghosts in the woods to keep alive memories of a once flourishing American nut and timber industry. The ghosts, some of them showing sprouts of life, are the gray remains of the American chestnut trees that abounded in the east a little more than a century ago.

When we were very young, grandfather used to take us into the woods of his farm near Springfield, Mass., and point to the trees ravaged by a blight that slipped into this country from the Orient and relentlessly spread to virtually every commercial chestnut grove. The blight fungus was carried by birds, insects and wind.

For 50 years now, forest researchers have been trying to revive the chestnut, with small success.

MAJOR HOPE

The major hope lies in several hundred large trees that have survived the fungus Edothia parasitica. You can help in the fight. If you know of a large tree that still produces nuts, Dr. Jesse Diller of The U. S. Department of Agriculture Forest Service, Laurel Park, Md., would appreciate being advised.

Dr. Diller hopes to find a tree that not only has escaped the blight, but one that has a high degree of disease resistance.

"Such a tree," he says, "if its progeny are also resistant to the disease, could provide means by which the American chestnut could be helped to grow in our forests again."

The researchers test blight resistance in several ways. One method is to artificially inoculate existing chestnut trees with the blight fungus. Another is to obtain scionwood from blight - resistant trees to graft on small seedlings in areas where blight is present. Resistant trees will live; others will die after sufficient exposure to the disease.

The work is going on in at least 28 states, where cooperators have grafted material on seedlings. In this way, Dr. Diller explained, "we can be reasonably sure that grafted trees that survive in all these different places, from scionwood from a single source, have an excellent chance of being blight resistant. Later these trees also would be subjected to articial inoculations as final proof.

SCARRED

Some of the trees that have survived are scarred by infections that have healed.

Dr. Diller said that more than 500 importations of seed and scions of nearly every type of chestnut species in the world have been made in the effort to get a good American chestnut.

Thousands of seedlings are distributed annually to land owners.

One variety of Chinese chestnut planted at Jackson County, N.C. 35 years ago has done quite well. But the Chinese variety is not very winter - hardy and needs special soil conditions.

There are trees almost as old in Delaware and Pennsylvania. In the Ozarks near Rosati, Mo., an Italian immigrant planted 120 trees nearly 60 years ago — two years before the blight first struck at New York City. The blight and time have eliminated about 70 of them but new ones have been planted.

A few trees are known to have survived in New York State, Missouri, Maryland, Virginia, Connecticut and Michigan. Many new ones planted grow to near maturity, then are girdled by the blight. In 1948, a scientist attached to the Knolls (atomic) Research Laboratory planted two Chinese chestnuts in his yard at Scotia, near Albany, N. Y. They were attacked by the blight but have survived and are now 20 - 25 feet tall, and appear healthy.

Stage Circuit Strenuous For Young Actress

NEW YORK (AP) — Jane Hoffman is a young actress on strenuous stage circuit.

Besides handling a first act role in Broadway's drama "The Rhinoceros," Miss Hoffman has taken over the feminine lead in off-Broadway production of "The American Dream." She got the latter call when another player decided the role was not for her.

An exact timetable enables Miss Hoffman to get across town in time for costume changes, even on matinee days when there are extra performances.

First American In Play's Lead

NEW YORK (AP) —Ann Moser is the first American girl assigned to the title role of "My Fair Lady" in that hit musical's five-year White Way run.

Miss Moser has taken over the part previously performed by Julie Andrews, Sally Ann Howes and Pamela Charles, all British.

PAR Luncheon To Kickoff Campaign

A luncheon will be held at noon Monday at the Paragon club to kickoff a membership campaign for Public Affairs Research Council, according to Ed Whetstone, a PAR trustee and chairman of the Ouachita Parish membership push. Members of the membership campaign committee will attend the luncheon.

Whetstone said Ed Steimel, executive director of PAR, will address the luncheon.

Giving a little background on PAR in Ouachita parish, Whetstone said that $6,540 was contributed to the council last year. "At one time we gave $11,000 a year," Whetstone said.

"PAR, in my opinion, is one of our most important watchdogs in the field of government study and I believe that it deserves our financial support," Whetstone said. "Not only do I believe we should continue to receive the objective findings of PAR but I think we should insist that it's recommendations become a guidepost in government."

He pointed out that PAR's only means of financial support is private contributions from individuals and business.

The stated purpose of Public Affairs Research Council is to analyse various facets of state government and offer non-partisan, unbiased recommendations for economy in public expenditures.

The organization is made up of 2,000 leading citizens and public officials who believe that the state government can best be improved through a continuous research program on governmental operations.

This research and education program, PAR hopes, will help Louisiana citizens and public officials to make sounder decisions on public affairs.

No lobbying is done by PAR.

The organization's policies are guided by an executive committee and board of trustees, who are elected by the membership. Work is done by a highly trained professional staff of 17 full-time persons, in addition to occasional temporary research staff employed for special studies.

"Anyone interested in this approach toward better government is invited to become a member of the organization," Whetstone said. He added that membership contributions are deductible for income tax purposes.

Members of the local membership committee who are expected to attend the luncheon Monday are:

Dr. Gene Worthen, Garland Shell, Bob Evans, Jim Williams, George Weeks, Ed Carter, Tommy Hayes, Dave Silverstein, Eugene Smith, Sam Hanna, Jack Gates, Mac Ward, Dick Hale, John Rudisell, Conway Cresslend and Lee Vanderpool.

Benton Wakefield, Moss Lofton, Slim Scoggins, H. M. James, Fred Petty, Tom Scott, Allen Givens, Louis Smith, John Kelso Jr., Jim Dana Fred Fudickar, Jr., P. B., Snodgrass and Kirk Touchstone.

Confederacy Birthplace Reliving War

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The birthplace of the Confederacy is reliving the Civil War days of a century ago in gay but solemn atmosphere of mint julep pageantry and continued racial strife.

The sight of bearded beaux and hoop-skirted belles in a 20th century city is more commonplace than rare as time draws near for the start of a week-long program commemorating the start of th war in 1861.

Highlighting the commemoration, which opens Feb. 12, will be a playback of the inauguration of Jefferson Davis as president of the young Confederate nation.

At precisely the same hour, 100 years after Davis was sworn in on the portico of the state Capitol, a make-believe leader of the defiant Confederate states will repeat the oath Davis took on Feb. 18, 1861.

Proud Southerners in beards, top hats and antebellum dress have given Montgomery a nostalgic reminder of the plantation life their ancestors knew.

From the downtown building where the order was given to fire on Ft. Sumter waves a Confederate flag, a salute to the men killed and maimed in the four years of fighting.

A short distance away stands the Federal Building, to many in Montgomery a symbol of stepped-up resistance to the old pattern of racial segregation.

There, in recent years, Negroes have won the right to desegregate city buses; they have complained of discrimination in voting, and, in the coming months, may demand integration of Montgomery schools.

There has been no outward sign of increased tension, however, as the centennial program draws near.

Even before the official program starts Montgomery will pause to recall the election of Davis as president of the Confederacy on Feb. 9, 1861 and his departure from Vicksburg, Miss., the following day.

His arrival in Montgomery on Feb. 17 will be re-enacted as the final events of the centennial program.

Uprising Fails In West Africa

West Africa (AP)—The government announced it crushed Saturday an armed uprising supposedly timed with the ill-fated seizure of the liner Santa Maria. This was the strongest gust of winds of African nationalism in this Portuguese territory so far.

A communique from Gov. Gen. Alvaro Silva Tavares said three bands of armed Negroes attacked Luanda's police headquarters and the civil and military prisons during the night in an attempt to free prisoners.

"In this they failed," the communique said. "Those responsible are already under arrest and for the most part order is re-established."

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

PAR Luncheon To Kickoff Campaign

A luncheon will be held at noon Monday at the Paragon club to kickoff a membership campaign for Public Affairs Research Council, according to Ed Whetstone, a PAR trustee and chairman of the Ouachita Parish membership push. Members of the membership campaign committee will attend the luncheon.

Whetstone said Ed Steimel, executive director of PAR, will address the luncheon.

Giving a little background on PAR in Ouachita parish, Whetstone said that $5,540 was contributed to the council last year. "At one time we gave $11,000 a year," Whetstone said.

"PAR, in my opinion, is one of our most important watchdogs in the field of government study and I believe that it deserves our financial support," Whetstone said. "Not only do I believe we should continue to receive the objective findings of PAR but I think we should insist that it's recommendations become a guidepost in government."

He pointed out that PAR's only means of financial support is private contributions from individuals and business.

The stated purpose of Public Affairs Research Council is to analyze various facets of state government and offer non-partisan, unbiased recommendations for economy in public expenditures.

The organization is made up of 3,000 leading citizens and public officials who believe that the state government can best be improved through a continuous research program on governmental operations.

This research and education program, PAR hopes, will help Louisiana citizens and public officials to make sounder decisions on public affairs.

No lobbying is done by PAR.

The organization's policies are guided by an executive committee and board of trustees, who are elected by the membership. Work is done by a highly trained professional staff of 17 full-time persons, in addition to occasional temporary research staff employed for special studies.

"Anyone interested in this approach toward better government is invited to become a member of the organization," Whetstone said. He added that membership contributions are deductible for income tax purposes.

Members of the local membership committee who are expected to attend the luncheon Monday are:

Benton Wakefield, Mose Lofton, Slim Scoggins, H. M. James, Fred Petty, Tom Scott, Allen Givens, Louis Smith, John Kelso Jr., Jim Dana Fred Fudickar, Jr., P. B. Snodgrass and Kirk Touchstone.

Confederacy Birthplace Reliving War

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The birthplace of the Confederacy is reliving the Civil War days of a century ago in gay but solemn atmosphere of mint julep pageantry and continued racial strife.

The sight of bearded beaux and hoop-skirted belles in a 20th century city is more commonplace than rare as time draws near for the start of a week-long program commemorating the start of th war in 1861.

Highlighting the commemoration, which opens Feb. 12, will be a playback of the inauguration of Jefferson Davis as president of the young Confederate nation.

At precisely the same hour, 100 years after Davis was sworn in on the portico of the state Capitol, a make-believe leader of the defiant Confederate states will repeat the oath Davis took on Feb. 18, 1861.

Proud Southerners in beards, top hats and antebellum dress have given Montgomery a nostalgic reminder of the plantation life their ancestors knew.

From the downtown building where the order was given to fire on Ft. Sumter waves a Confederate flag, a salute to the men killed and maimed in the four years of fighting.

A short distance away stands the Federal Building, to many in Montgomery a symbol of stepped-up resistance to the old pattern of racial segregation.

Kennedy Goes To See Movie On Free Ticket

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy slipped into a downtown theater with a free ticket Friday night to see Spartacus" because his brother Robert, the attorney general, told him it was a good movie.

The President related this while having an intermission coffee break in the office of theater manager Charles Grimes. Robert Kennedy had attended the movie earlier in the week.

Chatting over coffee, the President also volunteered that he liked "Spartacus," a tale of a gladiator revolt in ancient Rome, even better than he had enjoyed "Ben Hur," another movie extravaganza.

Kennedy made an unpublicized appearance at the theater while the city was digging out of a furious snowstorm. He stayed to the end of the three-hour-and-15 minute performance.

Five In Family Perish As Fire Destroys Home

MANIWAKI, Que. (UPI)—Five members of a family died Saturday in a flash fire which swept their two-atory frame home, 200 feet from the town's fire house.

Three other members of the family of Aldrem Richard escaped with injuries. They were Richard, his wife, and their one-month-old daughter. The victims were their four other children, Jean, 8; Christine, 7; Andre, 6, and Lynn, 2; and Paulette, 26, Richard's daughter by his first wife.

New Vicksburg Harbor Project Is Dedicated

VICKSBURG, Miss. (UPI) — Warren County's $3 million harbor project, hailed as a "launching pad for progress," was formally dedicated Saturday.

The project is composed of a 258-acre area for industrial sites and a fill along the channel on the Yazoo River diversionary canal, which empties into the nearby Mississippi River. It was constructed by the Army Corps of Engineers through federal, state and county financing.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., said the project means the development of port facilities on the state's 410-mile boundary on the Mississippi River no longer is neglected.

He noted that construction will begin in a few days on a port development at Greenville and that a new river terminal at Natchez already has been completed.

Stennis said the new project here should increase waterborne traffic through the port of Vicksburg by 223,000 tons a year.

Gov. Ross Barnett said the project likely would mean freight savings for shippers within a 250-mile radius of here, bringing more commodities to mid-south consumers at lower costs. He also predicted an increase in local industry.

Deputy Says Sheriff Got Some 'Slots'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A Jefferson Parish deputy sheriff arrested with 15 slot machines in his possession claimed Saturday night that Sheriff John G. Fitzgerald received some rehabilitated slots for his personal use.

Walter Vickrey, a one-time immigration agent, was suspended by Fitzgerald following a raid on Vickrey's Harahan home. Authorities said Vickrey was conducting a repair center for the gambling devices.

Fitzgerald admitted to reporters that a slot machine probably had been delivered to his home and was "probably still in a crate."

"There was a flock of these old slot machines sitting around the office one day and I told him (Vickrey) I'd sure like to have one for a souvenir," Fitzgerald said.

Vickrey said he delivered the machine to Fitzgerald's home in "November or December." He said he personally gave it to the sheriff.

Vickrey, who resigned as a federal agent to run against Fitzgerald in the 1950 Democratic primary, said he was resigning as a deputy.

He had earlier refused to name parish political figures whom he said got slot machines for use in their personal homes.

In a statement to The Times-Picayune, Vickrey said Councilman-at-large Cullen Schoest was to receive one of the slots he was repairing when arrested by Deputy Sam LeBlanc on Thursday night.

Vickrey said he learned that LeBlanc recently had released a slot machine owned by Aloysius P. Dargis which had been seized in a raid. He said the same slot had been seized again in another raid and was in his custody when his home was raided.

He previously said that administrative assistant Merlin Hudson had ordered him to take the machines home and repair them for distribution to parish political leaders for use in their game rooms. Hudson was also suspended.

Meanwhile, the Metropolitan Crime Commission of New Orleans called Saturday for a public hearing of evidence in connection with the slot machine case.

The commission asked Dist. Atty. Frank Langridge to initiate a public hearing immediately before a judicial officer.

Langridge was not available for comment.

Fitzgerald disclosed earlier Saturday that members of his department were feuding but called the conflict "seasonal."

He pledged anew to make a complete investigation of the slot machine affair.

Rescue Workers Recover Bodies

MOULIN-SOUS-FLERON, Belgium (AP)—Disaster workers dug three bodies from a sea of black mud and debris Saturday and feared at least a dozen other persons were buried by the slag heap avalanche that spilled through this village Friday night.

A snowstorm made rescue work more difficult.

First to be found were the bodies of a 40-year-old woman, her daughter, 12, and the 9-month-old baby daughter of a former Congo settler.

Municipal authorities said at least 12 other persons were caught under the slag and all are presumed dead.

The giant slag heap, on a hill overlooking the village, gave way when a load of cinders from a nearby electric power plant was being piled at the top. About six houses were swamped and 10 others were damaged. A butcher's shop was cut in two.

The missing included four children.

Kennedy, Aides Plan For New Congo Regime

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy and State Department officials worked Saturday on details of a sweeping new Congo plan which would set up under United Nations supervision a coalition government representing all warring elements in the chaotic jungle country.

The President, who has approved the general principles of the plan, conferred at the White House with U.S. ambassador to the Congo, Clare H. Timberlake.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk held separate conferences with Belgium Ambassador Louis Scheyvey and Tunisian Ambassador Mongi Slim.

Scheyvey and Slim represented different views on how to handle the crisis in which a number of countries are withdrawing the troops they have committed to the U.N. police force.

The Kennedy administration was expected to announce within the next week its support of the plan to "neutralize" the feuding factions and create a federation-type government. It would include followers of imprisoned former Patrice Lumumba.

The U.S. position may be disclosed soon after the U.N. Security Council resumes the Congo debate Tuesday. But officials doubted that consultations with interested governments could be completed by that time.

Timberlake gave Kennedy a one hour first-hand report on the situation in the crisis-ridden nation. He was accompanied to the White House by G. Mennen Williams, assistant secretary of state for African affairs.

Timberlake said any statement would have to come from the President.

U.N. Dispatches Reinforcements To Battle Scene

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — The United Nations rushed strong reinforcements Saturday to the scene of a fierce gunbattle between some 1,500 Congolese soldiers and three platoons of U.N. Nigerian troops.

A U.N. spokesman said the additional Nigerian troops were being moved into the Kasai Province town of Kindu where their countrymen had been under heavy attack since Friday by Congolese troops loyal to jailed ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba.

Malayan troops with armored cars also were alerted to move into the area left by the Nigerian reinforcements, the U.N. spokesman said.

At the same time the U.N. announced that 272 American missionaries and their families have been moved to safety in Uganda from the Congo's Oriental and Kivu provinces since Jan. 30. Both provinces are occupied by forces loyal to Lumumba.

Dean Of School Is Found Dead

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Very Rev. Edmond D. Benard, 46, dean of the School of Sacred Theology at Catholic University, was found dead Saturday beside a burning armchair in his study. A dropped cigarette apparently was responsible for the fire.

District Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said the dean apparently died of inhaling carbon monoxide, but shock from burns may have contributed. Father Benard had heart trouble and had been released from a hospital only last week.

Father Benard had been on the faculty of the School of Sacred Theology since 1943. He was noted as a Catholic theologian and in 1955 won the Cardinal Spellman medal for outstanding work in sacred theology.

U.N. Dispatches Reinforcements To Battle Scene

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — The United Nations rushed strong reinforcements Saturday to the scene of a fierce gunbattle between some 1,500 Congolese soldiers and three platoons of U.N. Nigerian troops.

A U.N. spokesman said the additional Nigerian troops were being moved into the Kasai Province town of Kindu where their countrymen had been under heavy attack since Friday by Congolese troops loyal to jailed ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba.

Malayan troops with armored cars also were alerted to move into the area left by the Nigerian reinforcements, the U.N. spokesman said.

At the same time the U.N. announced that 272 American missionaries and their families have been moved to safety in Uganda from the Congo's Oriental and Kivu provinces since Jan. 30. Both provinces are occupied by forces loyal to Lumumba.

Dean Of School Is Found Dead

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Very Rev. Edmond D. Benard, 46, dean of the School of Sacred Theology at Catholic University, was found dead Saturday beside a burning armchair in his study. A dropped cigarette apparently was responsible for the fire.

District Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said the dean apparently died of inhaling carbon monoxide, but shock from burns may have contributed. Father Benard had heart trouble and had been released from a hospital only last week.

Father Benard had been on the faculty of the School of Sacred Theology since 1943. He was noted as a Catholic theologian and in 1955 won the Cardinal Spellman medal for outstanding work in sacred theology.

Space Chimp Returns To Training Base

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Astrochimp "Ham" was flown back to his New Mexico training base Saturday, his accomplishments temporarily overshadowed by the latest Soviet space success.

The 37½-pound chimp blazed the way for U.S. space travel last week by taking a 5,000-mile-an-hour rocket ride out over the Atlantic.

He traveled in a one-ton space capsule, a relatively lightweight vehicle when compared to the 7.1-ton Sputnik Russia boosted into orbit Saturday.

The target date for America's first manned rocket flight into space is now April at the earliest, with more likelihood it will not come until May or June.

Barring further hitches in the nation's $400 million Project Mercury, one of seven human astronauts will be strapped into a space capsule similar to the one Ham rode and launched on a flight 115 miles high and about 300 miles down the Atlantic test rang onboard a Redstone rocket.

Ham's ride was considered a success. But it raised almost as many questions as it solved, and considerable work appears left before the rocket-capsule combination is declared safe for man.

Three major steps remain before the long-awaited manned flight:

The bell-shaped capsule which carried "Ham" will be taken to sea and dropped into the water in an effort to find out how about 18 inches of water leaked through its heavy metal frame.

Another Redstone, unmanned but possibly containing a chimpanzee, likely will be fired from Cape Canaveral within the next two months. This will be aimed primarily at working out the "bugs" which caused the rocket that Ham rode to burn its fuel too quickly.

A launching at Wallops Island, Va., in the "Little Joe" series, to give the final test to an escapse system designed to protect the life of an astronaut in case his rocket booster misfires. This shot is expected sometime in February.

Woman Shoots, Routs Prowler

A local woman drove a burglar from her home by shooting at him with an automatic pistol about 2:30 yesterday morning.

Monroe police said that a $20 bill and an undetermined number of silver dollars were stolen from Mrs. Elizabeth Dixon, 112 Georgia St.

Mrs. Dixon said she was awakened in her home during the night and went into the living room to investigate. She said she saw a Negro man leaning out the window and fired at him with a .25 caliber pistol but missed.

Mrs. Dixon was alone in the house at the time as her husband works at night.

The $20 bill was taken from her purse and the silver dollars from a dresser drawer.

Police said that Mrs. Dixon was unable to give a description of the man she fired at.

Central heating and air conditioning. Lovely drapes and carpet. Marvelous closets and cupboards all through the house. Double carport with model's laundry, separate breakfast nook and large dining area. Elegance and good taste are apparent throughout the house. Shown by appointment!

1911 COLLEGE - Want room to breathe? There is plenty of room for the growing family in this spacious older home. 7, yes 7 bedrooms, 2-baths, separate dining room, 16x18 gam, large porch. Gleaming hardwood floors, carpeted in living room, dining room and den. Completely redecorated inside and out within the past 4 months. Lot 220x175 with nice trees and shrubs. On the bus line, near the College. This nice large home needs a nice large family—we hope it's you.

901 SOUTH 7TH - Don't overlook this good bet! There's a world of living area in this 2-bedroom and den home. Large living room, dining area, plenty of closets and good outside storage. The financing is the best part — only $350 down and the owner will pay one-half of the closing costs. We're anxious to show you this one!

2307 PORT MIRO - No waiting — you can move right into this 3-bedroom, brick charmer. Only 1 yr. old, 1850 sq. ft. of living area, 1½ baths, Central heat, ducts for air conditioning. The walls are in a finish that cannot be scuffed or scarred. Beautiful built-in kitchen with electric range and oven, and disposal. A real livable home, one we're proud to show!

107 FAIRFIELD, W. M. - We've been able to get exceptionally good financing on this split and open 3-bedroom cottage. In excellent condition inside and out. Big closets, good storage, plumbed for washer and dryer. Only a block to the bus, near Shopping Center and Highland Country Club. See this top value by all means!

THE TREND FOR Better Living

$600. Down

AND you'll be amazed at what it will buy in this 2 bedroom home located in South Monroe. The home has recently been redone and is in splendid condition. The rooms are nice large ones, the floors are hardwood and there are plenty of cabinets. This home would be ideal for the couple just starting out, as the total down payment would not have to be all cash and the monthly notes are only $65.

$700. Down

THIS fine home is located in East Monroe, near Lakeshore School. The 3 bedrooms are all large ones, the bath is full ceramic with a shower, the central heating is by Mathis, the kitchen is built for efficiency with a built-in Caloric oven and range; the living-dining area is very large (14 x 28) and contains a fireplace, sliding doors to the yard and a window wall. There is plenty of closet space with sliding doors and a fenced back yard. Total payments are $81 per month. This would be an assumption buy taking advantage of a $1,500 equity for only $700.

SUNSHINE HTS.
ENJOY getting something for nothing? You CAN get this newly decorated home for NOTHING down if you're a G.I.— or will FHA for very small down payment! It's hard to adequately describe the features which make up the charm found here: both bedrooms are large with huge closets, spacious living room, and inviting kitchen to please "Mom"! Also hardwood floors, attic fan, aluminum screens. Attached garage (could easily be made into den). On a beautifully landscaped 100x150 ft. lot at 1424 Cedar St. W. M., near Highland School. We're anxious to show you this home!

$250 DOWN
THIS IS A "hurry-or-you-will-miss-out" deal — for $250 is all that's needed to assume the loan on this brick home. Its 1½ years "young" and has 3 bedrooms, step - saving kitchen that includes built-in Tappan oven and range, central heating, and attic fan. Carport with storage room. All this and more ON A LARGE LOT ON Lacy Drive, W.M. Call early on this one!

PRICE REDUCED
IF YOU'D like a low assumption, low monthly payments, and immediate possession, you've come to the right place! No red tape here — just pay $300 down and assume payments of $53 — and move right into this 2 bedroom home! It's near Highland Park Country Club and convenient to shopping, at 231 Oaklawn, W. M.

WELL, LET'S NOT STAND HERE IN THE HALL! LOT TO TALK ABOUT! LET'S GO INTO MY OFFICE! THIS CALLS FOR A CELEBRATION!

OH, YOU LEAD THE WAY, MAJOR!

SO, MAJOR, WE MEET AGAIN!

I DARE SAY THIS, TOO, IS A SURPRISE?

WHY, NO, CHICK! I'VE BEEN EXPECTING YOU!

YOU? IVAN CHIKOVARICH? HE CALLS YOU "CHICK"?

HA, HA! ALWAYS THE ONE FOR THE SHORT CUT! YOU NEVER CHANGE, JOHNNY!

HM-M! NO, CHICK! I DO CHANGE! WHY DO YOU THINK I WAITED HERE FOR YOU TO COME? SIT DOWN AND I WILL TELL YOU A STORY!

DO AS HE SAYS, COMRADES! I LIKE A GOOD STORY!

WHILE BACK BY THE OLD WOODPILE ---

HM-M! HEAVY BLOW, MAYBE A PISTOL BUTT! VERY BAD CONCUSSION! LUCKY YOU FOUND HIM AS SOON AS YOU DID, ANNIE!

IT WAS SANDY FOUND HIM!

DOC'S SURE HE'LL MAKE IT, BUT HE'LL BE UNABLE TO TALK FOR DAYS! IS JOHNNY OUT AT HIS PLACE?

NO! I PHONED! NO ANSWER! HE SAID HE MIGHT BE AWAY SEVERAL DAYS, ON A DEAL!

OMAR KHAYYÁM'S POETRY GETS A POINTED REJECTION SLIP....

A LOAF OF BREAD-- A JUG OF WINE AND THOU--

UP TO YOUR CHAMBER, UNGRATEFUL DAUGHTER! AND YOU, NOGOODNIK POET!! OFF WITH YOU! THE MAN WHO WOULD MARRY INTO MY FAMILY MUST OWN A VINEYARD AND A STRING OF BAKERIES!!

B-BUT, PAPA...

THAT POETRY WON'T GET HIM A SEAT IN THE COFFEE HOUSE-- HE BETTER LEARN A TRADE...

THERE JUST AREN'T ANY NICE BOYS ANY MORE... LAST YEAR SHE WAS SMITTEN WITH ALI BABA...

HE WAS TELLING THE BOYS AT THE BAZAAR HE WAS THINKING OF TAKING UP TENT-MAKING BY MAIL! HEH-HEH...

B-BUT-- OUR ISMA ISN'T GETTING ANY YOUNGER--AN' DON'T FORGET HER FATHER WAS JUST A STREET FAKIR WHEN HE MARRIED YOU, CHILD...

HOW'S THE ACT, WEIRD ONE?

I'M BREAKIN' IN A NEW COBRA-- BUT THAT'S SHOW BIZ...
